THE CINEMATOGRAPH FILMS ACT, 1927.

(17 & 18 GEO. 5, CH. 29.)

CHAPTER 29.

AN ACT TO RESTRICT BLIND BOOKING AND ADVANCE BOOKING OF CINEMATOGRAPH FILMS, AND TO SECURE THE RENTING AND EXHIBITION OF A CERTAIN PROPORTION OF BRITISH FILMS, AND FOR PURPOSES CONNECTED THEREWITH. A. D. 1927.

[22nd December, 1927.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

PART I.

RESTRICTIONS ON BLIND BOOKING AND ADVANCE BOOKING OF FILMS.

Restrictions on blind booking of films.

1. (1) As from the commencement of this Act, no agreement shall be entered into to rent, or imposing an obligation when called on to rent, for public exhibition in Great Britain any film to which this Act applies unless every such film to which the agreement relates has been registered under this Act or a valid application for the registration thereof has been made :

Provided that—

(a) this provision shall not apply to a film which has been exhibited to exhibitors or to the public in Great Britain before the commencement of this Act ; and

(b) in the case of a serial film or a series of films within the meaning of this Act, it shall be sufficient if any three parts thereof have been registered or a valid application for the registration of three parts thereof has been made.

(2) In the case of a film which has not been previously exhibited to exhibitors or to the public in Great Britain, this section shall not operate so as to prohibit the making prior to the registration or application for registration thereof of an agreement for the exhibition of the film in one theatre only on a number of consecutive days.

Restrictions on advance booking.

2. (1) As from the commencement of this Act, no agreement shall be entered into for the exhibition to the public in Great Britain at a date later than the expiration of the authorised period from the date of the agreement of any film to which this Act applies :

Provided that, in the case of a serial film or a series of films within the meaning of this Act, the authorised period shall apply only in respect of the date of exhibition of the first three parts.

(2) For the purposes of this section, the authorised period shall—

(a) in the case of an agreement made before the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, be twelve months :

(b) in the case of an agreement made on or after the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, and before the first day of October, nineteen hundred and thirty, be nine months ;

(c) in the case of an agreement made on or after the first day of October, nineteen hundred and thirty, be six months.

Penalty on contraventions.

3. If any person enters into an agreement in contravention of this Part of this Act, or if any person exhibits to the public in Great Britain a film the right to exhibit which has been acquired by him under any such agreement, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds, and any agreement in contravention of this Part of this Act, wherever made, shall be invalid.

Provisions as to existing agreements.

4. Any agreement entered into after the twenty-fifth day of September, nineteen hundred and twenty-six and before the commencement of this Act which, if entered into after the commencement of this Act would be an invalid agreement under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, shall, if and so far as it affects any films to which this Act applies to be delivered for public exhibition in Great Britain after the thirty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, cease to have effect on that day.

PART II.

REGISTRATION OF FILMS.

Prohibition against exhibition of unregistered films

5. (1) On and after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, no film to which this Act applies, or, in the case of a serial film or a series of films, no part thereof, shall be exhibited to the public in Great Britain unless the film or the part thereof exhibited has been registered in accordance with this Part of this Act :

Provided that—

(a) a film in respect of which a provisional application for registration has been made may, before registration, be exhibited at a series of public exhibitions held at one theatre only on consecutive days ;

(b) the prohibition contained in this section shall not apply to a film which has been exhibited in Great Britain before the commencement of this Act.

(2) If any person exhibits a film, or, in the case of a serial film or a series of films, any part thereof, in contravention of this section, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds for each day on which the film or part has been so exhibited.

Registration of films.

6. (1) The Board of Trade shall keep a register of films to which this Act applies, and shall enter therein such particulars as may be prescribed ; and the register shall specify whether the film is registered as a British film or a foreign film :

Provided that a film which has been exhibited to exhibitors or to the public in Great Britain before the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, shall not be registered unless the Board of Trade, after consultation with the advisory committee hereinafter mentioned, determine that the registration of the film shall be allowed.

(2) The Board of Trade shall publish weekly in the Board of Trade Journal lists of the films registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(3) An application to register a film shall be made by or on behalf of the maker or renter of the film, and shall be accompanied by the prescribed fee, and by such information as the Board of Trade may require, and in particular, where the application is for the registration of the film as a British film, such information as may be necessary to determine whether the film is a British film.

(4) An application shall not be a valid application unless the film has been trade shown, nor if more than fourteen days have elapsed since it was trade shown :

Provided that—

(a) a provisional application may be made before a film has been trade shown, and in such case on the film being trade shown within six weeks after the lodging of the provisional application, the provisional application shall as from the date of the trade show become a valid application ;

(b) an application made more than fourteen days after the film was trade shown may be accepted by the Board as a valid application if satisfied that the delay was due to special circumstances and was not intentional.

(5) On the registration of a film, the Board shall issue to the applicant a certificate of registration, and the certificate shall state the length of the film and whether the film is registered as a British film or a foreign film.

Inspection of register, etc.

7. (1) The register of films kept under this Act shall at all reasonable times be open to inspection by any person on payment of the prescribed fee, and any person inspecting the register may make copies or extracts from the register.

(2) Any person may on payment of the prescribed fee require to be furnished with a copy of any entry in the register certified to be a true copy by an officer of the Board of Trade appointed to keep the register.

(3) The registration of a film may be proved by the production of a copy of the Board of Trade Journal containing a notification of the registration of the film, or of the certificate of registration, or of a certified copy of the entry in the register relating to the film ; and a certificate purporting to be a certificate of registration or a copy of any entry purporting to be certified as a true copy by such officer as aforesaid shall in all legal proceedings be evidence of the matters stated therein without proof of the signature or authority of the person signing it.

Correction of register.

8. (1) If the Board of Trade at any time have reason to believe that the length of a film has been or has become incorrectly registered, or that a film has been incorrectly registered as a British film, they may call for such evidence as they think fit as to the correctness or otherwise of the registration, and if satisfied that the film has been or is incorrectly registered, they shall correct the register and issue an amended certificate of registration.

(2) On the issue of an amended certificate, the former certificate shall cease to have effect except that the Board of Trade may in any particular case allow the film to be counted for the purposes of the provisions of Part III of this Act relating to renters' and exhibitors' quotas as being of the length originally registered, or as a British film, as the case may be.

Power to require reference to High Court.

9. (1) If any person is aggrieved by the refusal of the Board of Trade to register a film or to register a film as a British film, or by a decision of the Board to correct the registration of a film, the matter shall, subject to rules of court, be referred by the Board of Trade to the High Court for determination, and the decision of the Court on any such reference shall be final and no appeal shall lie therefrom to any other court.

(2) Where the person aggrieved is a person whose principal place of business is in Scotland, this section shall apply as if the reference to the High Court were a reference to the Court of Session.

Provisions as to alterations of the length of films.

10. If the length of a film is altered to the extent of more than ten per cent. thereof after an application for registration thereof has been lodged or after the registration thereof, it shall be the duty of the maker of the film or, if at the time of the alteration the film has been acquired by a renter, the renter, to send to the Board of Trade notice of the alteration, and if he fails to do so, he shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds.

Marking of registered films.

11. (1) On every copy of a registered film there shall be marked in the prescribed manner :—

(a) the registered number of the film ;

(b) the person in whose name the film is registered ;

(c) the registered length of the film ;

(d) the words "registered as a British film" or "registered as a foreign film" as the case may be :

Provided that it shall not be necessary to comply with the above requirements in respect of any film if, whenever a copy thereof is issued to an exhibitor for exhibition to the public in Great Britain, an invoice containing such particulars as aforesaid is sent by the renter to the exhibitor.

(2) If after copies of a film have been so marked or invoices have been so sent, the registration of the film is corrected in manner provided by this Part of this Act, then

(a) in the former case, a corresponding alteration shall be made in all copies of the film ; and

(b) in the latter case, new invoices containing the correct particulars shall be sent.

(3) If any person fails to comply with any of the provisions of this section, or issues a copy of any registered film incorrectly marked or any invoice containing incorrect particulars, he shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds in respect of each copy.

Special provisions as to serial films, etc.

12. In the case of a serial film or a series of films, the provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply subject to the following modifications :—

(i) The separate parts of the film or series of films shall be separately registered and each part shall be treated as a separate film :

(ii) Where three parts of the film or series have been trade shown, any other part may be registered without having been trade shown and notwithstanding that more than fourteen days have elapsed since the said three parts were trade shown :

Provided that, if the Board are at any time of opinion that it is no longer desirable to dispense with a trade show in the case of the remaining parts of serial films and series of films, they may make an order to that effect, and on the making of the order this paragraph shall cease to apply.

PART III.

PROVISIONS FOR SECURING QUOTA OF BRITISH FILMS.

Renters' quota.

Provisions as to renters' quota

13. (1) In the year commencing on the first day of April, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, and ending on the thirty-first day of March, ninteen hundred and twenty-nine, and in each of the nine succeeding years, any person engaged in the business of renting registered films to exhibitors for the purpose of public exhibition in Great Britain (hereinafter referred to as a renter) shall acquire for the purposes of such renting a total length of registered British films representing at least such proportion of the total length of all registered films so acquired by him in the year as is specified as respects the year in Part I of the First Schedule to this Act, and such proportion is hereinafter referred to as the renters' quota, and if the films so acquired include both long films (that is to say, films the registered length of which is three thousand feet or upwards) and short films that is to say, films the registered length of which is less than three thousand feet), the requirements of this section must be satisfied as respects the long films so acquired as well as respects all films so acquired.

(2) If in any such year a renter fails to comply with the requirements of this Part of this Act as to the renters' quota, he shall be guilty of an offence, unless such a certificate as is hereinafter mentioned has been issued by the Board of Trade, or unless he proves to the satisfaction of the Court that the reasons for non-compliance were reasons beyond his control.

(3) In this section, "registered British film" means a British film which either at the time of its acquisition by the renter is, or later within the same year becomes, a registered British film ; and "registered film" means a film which either at the date of its acquisition by the renter is, or later within the same year becomes, a registered film.

(4) If a film is not registered at the time of its acquisition by a renter, and is registered after the expiration of the year in which it is so acquired, the film shall, for the purposes of this part of this Act, be treated as if it had been acquired by the renter in the year in which it is registered.

(5) Where a renter has in any such year acquired any registered films and subsequently in the same year his business as a renter, by assignment or will, or on intestacy, or by operation of law, becomes vested in some other licensed renter, that other renter and not the first-mentioned renter shall for the purposes of the provisions of this part of this Act as to the renters' quota be deemed to have acquired the films.

Power of small renters to combine.

14. Any number of renters, none of whom, or of whom not more than one, during any such year acquires for the purpose of renting to exhibitors more than six long registered films as hereinbefore defined, may, if the Board of Trade consent, combine for the purposes of the provisions of this part of this Act relating to the renters' quota the total length of registered British films so acquired by them in that year and the total length of all registered films so acquired by them in that year, and in such case if the total length of such registered British films bears the proper proportion to the total length of all such registered films, and the total length of such long registered British films bears the proper proportion to the total length of all such long registered films, each renter shall as respects that year be deemed to have satisfied the provisions of this part of this Act as to the renters' quota.

Provisions applicable where same film rented by different persons for different areas

15. Any renter, whose business is limited to the renting of films for exhibition exclusively in a limited geographical area within Great Britain, may for the purposes of his renters' quota count any registered British film for the renting of which in that area he has acquired the exclusive right and which has not been previously exhibited to the public in that area, notwithstanding that the film has been already counted for the purposes of the renters' quota by some other renter, being a renter who has acquired the exclusive right to rent it for exhibition in some other limited area, or in Great Britain exclusive of the first-mentioned area.

Prohibition of counting film more than once for quota purposes

16. No British film shall be counted more than once for the purposes of the provisions of this part of this Act with respect to the renters' quota, nor, save as hereinbefore expressly provided shall any British film be counted for the purposes aforesaid by more than one renter:

Provided that, if a renter in any year acquires any old British films and also acquires old foreign films, he shall be entitled to count the old British films for the purposes of the renters' quota—

(a) if the only films acquired by him during the year are old films; or

(b) if he has acquired films other than old films during the year and the requirements of this Part of this Act as to renters' quota would have been satisfied as respects those other films had they been the only films acquired by him during the year.

For the purposes of this proviso, the expression "old," in relation to a film, means acquired by a renter not less than one year after the close of the year in which it was acquired by an other renter.

Prohibition against carrying on business of renter unless licensed

17. (1) On and after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, and until the thirty-first day of March, nineteen-hundred and thirty-eight, no person shall carry on the business of renting registered films for exhibition to the public in Great Britain unless he holds a licence for the purpose from the Board of Trade:

Provided that, where an application for such a licence has been made, it shall be lawful for the applicant to carry on such business as aforesaid pending the determination of the application.

(2) No film to which this Act applies shall, during the period aforesaid, be exhibited to the public in Great Britain unless—

(a) the film has been acquired by the exhibitor from a person entitled to carry on such business as aforesaid; or

(b) the exhibitor is himself a person who is entitled to carry on such business as aforesaid and has acquired the film for the purpose of renting it for public exhibition in Great Britain.

(3) If any person carries on such business as aforesaid or exhibits any film in contravention of this section, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds for each day during which he so carries on the business or exhibits the film, as the case may be.

Returns and records.

18. (1) Every person who at any time during any year ending on the thirty-first day of March was a licensed renter shall furnish to the Board of Trade before the first day of the following May, or such later date as in any particular case the Board of Trade may allow, a return giving such particulars as may be prescribed with respect to the registered films acquired by him during the year in question, in order to enable the Board of Trade to ascertain whether the requirements of this Part of this Act with respect to the renters' quota have been satisfied by him during the year to which the return relates;

Provided that, if any licensed renter in the course of any such year ceases to carry on business as a renter, the return shall be made within one month from the time when he so ceases to carry on the business, unless previously and in the same year his business as a renter has become vested in some other licensed renter.

(2) Every person required to make a return under the last foregoing sub-section shall, before the first day of May in the year following the year in which the return was made, furnish to the Board of Trade a supplementary return relative to the year to which the original return related, giving such particulars as could not have been given in the original return owing to bookings for exhibitions not having been completed.

(3) Any such return as aforesaid may be used for the purpose of ascertaining whether the films entered in the return as having been acquired by the renter making the return were in fact acquired by him for the purpose of renting them to exhibitors for exhibition to the public in Great Britain.

(4) Every licensed renter shall also keep a book and shall as soon as practicable record therein the title, registered number, and registered length of every film acquired by him (distinguishing between British and foreign films), the theatres at which each film has been booked for exhibition and the dates for which such bookings are made, and shall when so required produce the book for inspection by any person authorised in that behalf by the Board of Trade.

Exhibitors' Quota.

Provisions as to exhibitors' quota

19. (1) In the year commencing on the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, and ending on the thirtieth day of September, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, and in each of the nine succeeding years, every person who carries on the business of exhibiting registered films to the public in Great Britain shall exhibit at each theatre during the period in any year during which he so exhibits films at that threatre at least such proportion of registered British films as is mentioned with respect to the year in question in Part II of the First Schedule to this Act, and such proportion is hereinafter referred to as the exhibitors' quota, and, if the films so exhibited include both long films and short films as hereinbefore defined, the requirements of this section must be satisfied as respects the long films so exhibited as well as respects all the films so exhibited.

(2) The proportion of British registered films exhibited during such period as aforesaid at any theatre shall be ascertained by comparing—

(a) the aggregate arrived at by adding together the products of the total number of feet of each registered British film which has been exhibited during the normal hours in the ordinary programme multiplied by the number of times the film has been so exhibited during the said period ; and

(b) the aggregate arrived at by adding together the products of the total number of feet of each registered film which has been so exhibited multiplied by the number of times the film has been so exhibited during the said period.

(3) If in any year an exhibitor fails to comply with the requirements of this Part of this Act in respect of any theatre, he shall be guilty of an offence, unless such a certificate as is hereinafter mentioned has been issued by the Board of Trade, or unless he proves to the satisfaction of the Court that the reasons for non-compliance were reasons beyond his control.

Prohibition against carrying on business of exhibitor unless licensed

20. (1) On and after the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, and until the thirtieth day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-eight, no person shall carry on the business of exhibiting registered films to the public in any theatre unless he holds a licence for the purpose in respect of that theatre from the Board of Trade :

Provided that, where an application for such a licence has been made, it shall be lawful for the applicant to carry on the business in any theatre to which the application relates pending the determination of the application.

(2) If any person carries on such business as aforesaid in contravention of this section, he shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for each day on which he so carries on the business.

Returns and records.

21. (1) Every person who at any time during any year ending on the thirtieth day of September was a licensed exhibitor shall furnish to the Board of Trade before the first day of the following November a return giving such particulars as may be prescribed with respect to the registered films exhibited by him in each theatre during the year in question, and the dates and number of times on which they were exhibited, in order to enable the Board of Trade to ascertain whether the requirements of this Part of this Act with respect to the exhibitors' quota have been satisfied by him in respect of the theatre during the year to which the return relates :

Provided that, if any licensed exhibitor in the course of any such year ceases to exhibit at any theatre, the return with respect to that theatre shall be made within one month from the time when he so ceases to exhibit thereat.

(2) Every licensed exhibitor shall also keep in respect of each theatre at which he exhibits films a book, and shall as soon as practicable record therein the title, registered number and registered length of each film exhibited by him at the theatre to the public (distinguishing between British and foreign registered films), the dates of all exhibitions of each film and the number of times of exhibition of each film each day during the normal hours in the ordinary programme, and every such book shall be open to inspection by any person authorised in that behalf by the Board of Trade.

The book relating to any theatre shall be kept at that theatre so long as the exhibitor continues to exhibit thereat.

Provisions as to itinerant exhibitors.

22. In the case of any exhibitor who in any such year as aforesaid does not exhibit in any one theatre on more than six days nor in more than one theatre at the same time, the provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply subject to the following modifications :—

(a) It shall not be necessary for any such exhibitor to comply with the provisions as to the exhibitors' quota as respects any particular theatre, if, had all the exhibitions given by him in the year been exhibitions at the same theatre, those provisions would have been complied with ;

(b) It shall not be necessary for the exhibitor to make a return to the Board of Trade after ceasing to exhibit at any particular theatre, or to keep a separate record book in respect of each theatre at which he exhibits ;

(c) A licence to carry on the business of exhibiting films to the public shall suffice, and it shall not be necessary for the exhibitor to obtain a licence in respect of each theatre at which he exhibits.

General.

Examination of returns.

23. (1) The Board of Trade shall examine every return furnished to them under this Part of this Act, and for the purpose of such examination may call on the renter or exhibitor making the return for such information and explanations as they may think necessary, and may authorise any person appointed by them for the purpose to examine the record books kept by the renter or exhibitor.

(2) Where on submission by the renter or exhibitor or otherwise it appears to the Board of Trade after consultation with the advisory committee hereinafter mentioned in any case where the Board of Trade contemplate the refusal of a certificate that though the requirements of this Part of this Act with respect to the renters' quota or the exhibitors' quota, as the case may be, have not been complied with, the reasons for non-compliance were reasons beyond the control of the renter or exhibitor, they shall issue a certificate to that effect.

Proceedings for failure to comply with provisions as to quotas.

24. (1) Any offence of failing to comply with the provisions of this Part of this Act as to the renters' quota or exhibitors' quota may be prosecuted summarily or on indictment, and—

(a) if the accused is proceeded against summarily, he shall on conviction if a renter be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and if an exhibitor to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds ; and

(b) if the accused is proceeded against on indictment, he shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds.

(2) In the case of a conviction on indictment, the court, in addition to imposing any such fine as aforesaid --

(a) where the offender is a renter, may, if of opinion that the offence was deliberate, and if the offence is a third offence, order that his licence be revoked and may order that no licence shall be issued to him, or to any person with whom he is financially associated, or to any person who acquires his business, or to any person who took part in the management of his business and was knowingly a party to the offence, for such period in each case as may be specified in the order :

Provided that, where any such order is made, the order shall not operate so as to prevent the renter carrying out for a period not exceeding six months any obligations under any contrac entered into by him before the institution of the proceedings ;

(b) where the offender is an exhibitor, may, if of opinion that the offence was deliberate, and if the offence is a third offence, order his licence under this Act in respect of the theatre with respect to which the offence was committed to be revoked, and may order that for such period in each case as may be specified in the order no licence in respect of that theatre shall be issued to him or to any person with whom he is financially associated, or to any person who took part in the management of his business and was knowingly a party to the offence, or to any person whose licence in respect of any theatre has been revoked during the twelve months previous to the date of the conviction.

(3) Summary proceedings for the offence of not complying with the requirements of this Part of this Act as to the renters' quota or as to the exhibitors' quota may, notwithstanding anything in the summary Jurisdiction Act, be instituted at any time within two years after the commission of the offence in the case of a renter, and one year after the commission of the offence in the case of an exhibitor.

Provisions as to licences.

25. ORGANIZATION.

No. 140.—The following correspondence on the subject of the report of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee is published for general information :—

ARMY DEPARTMENT DESPATCH NO. 8, DATED THE 24TH JUNE 1926, TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

MY LORD,

Referring to our Army Department telegram No. 420, dated the 13th July 1925, we have the honour to inform Your Lordship that we have completed our examination of the report of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee, and are now in a position to state our views upon the Committee's recommendations. As regards the genesis of the Committee we need add nothing to the information contained in the first chapter of the report and the information previously communicated to Your Lordship in our Army Secretary's letter No. 26551-1 (A.D.), dated the 13th March 1924, addressed to the Under-Secretary of State for India ; and we may therefore proceed at once to discuss the results of the Committee's inquiry.

2. In our opinion, the report is on the whole a useful one and makes a valuable contribution towards the discussion of a very important subject. We agree in general with the majority of the Committee's recommendations, and the enclosed correspondence will show that the Local Governments, all of whom were very fully consulted in conjunction with the local military authorities, have expressed opinions which reflect substantially the same conclusion. The Committee, vide paragraph 6 of their report, have taken as their starting point the principle that the promise to India of self-government implies the grant to her people of an opportunity of training themselves for her defence. This premiss is in harmony with authoritative pronouncements which have been made at various times since the inauguration of the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms, for example, the statement contained in your predecessor's telegram No. 807, dated the 22nd February 1922, that His Majesty's Government are anxious to assist Indians to defend their own country. * * *

The observations and the proposals which the Committee have made, following upon this premiss, impress us as being generally sound, reasonable and prudent. * * *

They have framed no large and ambitious scheme for the expansion of the non-regular forces, to be carried out unconditionally or indiscriminately. It is recognised that the success of each stage of the developments recommended should be tested by experience. The Committee appear to have appreciated duly the military point of view and they have recognised the necessity of providing effective means to control the progress of their scheme and the additions to our armed forces which the scheme is designed to create. The moderate character of nearly all the recommendations made is reflected generally in the criticisms received, and is expressly acknowledged in the favourable comments received from the Punjab Government.

In these preliminary observations we desire to stress one other vitally important matter, namely, the causes assigned by the Committee for the relative failure up to date of the Territorial Force movement. In paragraph 10 of their report, the Committee say :—

> "The evidence produced before us has made it clear that the existing provincial battalions are composed almost entirely of men belonging to classes from which the regular army is recruited, in other words, of men who already have a natural inclination for military service. It is recognised that this is not the result of deliberate policy on the part of Government, or of misdirected efforts on the part of the agents of Government. The fact seems to be clear that service in the Territorial Force, as at present constituted and organised, does not attract the non-military classes and in particular the educated middle class Indian. Government have therefore failed to secure one of the principal objects for which the Force was created. The fault may lie with the educated middle-classes themselves and may be irremediable : but the evidence which we have heard does not suggest that this is the correct inference to draw. Due account must be taken of lack of opportunities for military service in the past : and it must be recognised that a national military spirit cannot be created in a short space of time or without patient, intelligent and sympathetic encouragement. We ourselves adhere to the original conception of the Territorial Force as inter alia a means of providing national education in military service, and consider that the reforms most urgently called for are those which will enable the Force to fulfil this purpose."

We are satisfied that this analysis of the existing situation is substantially correct. It must be borne in mind that the Territorial Force was inaugurated at a time when many battalions of the regular army were being demobilised after the Great War, and there has also been a general tendency, commencing from about the same time, to contract the field of recruitment for the regular army. With reduced establishments it has been necessary to concentrate on those classes which, in the opinion of the military authorities, provide at the present day the best fighting material, and to eliminate classes the men of which were found, during the Great War and the subsequent frontier operations in India, to be relatively less efficient as fighting soldiers. The natural consequence was that demobilised soldiers and members of the recently excluded classes, since soldiering had been their hereditary profession for many years, were the first to present themselves for admission to many of the provincial battalions of the Territorial Force; and they forestalled other classes of the population to whom it was the purpose of the Territorial Force, as originally created, to afford an opportunity of learning to share the burdens of national defence. As the Committee have pointed out, a national military spirit cannot be created in a short space of time, or without patient, intelligent and sympathetic encouragement; and, as has been shown, circumstances have been such as to render necessary a more carefully planned and specific means of encouragement than the original constitution of the Force provided.

With these general remarks we turn in the succeeding paragraphs to examine individually the more important recommendations of the Committee.

3. Expansion and development of the University Training Corps.—The recommendations of the Committee in this respect have received the unanimous support of all Local Governments, and we think it convenient to quote the opinions of two—the Government of Bihar and Orissa and the Government of the United Provinces. The former state that "they give their fullest support to the two main recommendations of the Committee, namely, (1) that the University Training Corps should be subject to no arbitrary limitation of numbers but should be encouraged to expand and to foster the growth of the national military spirit in India, and (2) that an opportunity to students to continue their military training after leaving the University should be afforded by the constitution of urban units of the Territorial Force."

The Government of the United Provinces say that "the Governor in Council recognises the value of the University Training Corps. Much good has been done by its agency already and much more can be accomplished."

With these opinions, and with the recommendations of the Committee, we are in entire agreement. It has been established that the influence of the University Training Corps is for good, that it has improved the discipline, the character, and the physique of University students; and the movement has the full support of the education authorities in India. We have, in fact, in the recent past, received several applications from local Governments recommending the creation of additional units of the University Training Corps * * * There is one further consideration which our political critics would undoubtedly urge in support of the demand for the expansion of the University Training Corps, namely, that so long as the military and University authorities in the United Kingdom continue to exclude Indian students from their Officers Training Corps, it would ill become the Indian Government to place any unreasonable bar in the way of the growth of the University Training Corps at Universities in India. The main recommendations of the Committee in regard to the University Training Corps, which in principle we support, may, for convenience sake, be recapitulated as follows:—

(i) The function of the University Training Corps should be primarily educational.

(ii) The University Training Corps should have no liability for actual military service.

(iii) The University Training Corps should be allowed to expand up to its natural limits, subject only to financial considerations permitting of this. The military authorities should place no obstacle in the way of any University or College forming a contingent of the University Training Corps, provided that the University or College authorities can guarantee a fixed minimum number of members and can provide suitable officers.

The subsidiary recommendations of the Committee in regard to the University Training Corps do not, in our opinion, require discussion in detail. We agree in the arguments by which the Committee have supported them, and we find nothing in the recommendations themselves to which exception can reasonably be taken on military or other grounds.

4. Liability of the Auxiliary Force, India, for general military service.—The recommendation of the Committee that the Auxiliary Force, India, should have a liability for general military service has met with strong opposition from certain Local Governments, notably from the Governments of Bombay and Bengal. These two Presidencies, it may be observed, are specially concerned with any departure likely to affect the popularity or the existence of the Auxiliary Force, since the considerable European population of the cities of Bombay and Calcutta provide units of the Auxiliary Force which are numerically stronger and relatively much more efficient than the Auxiliary Force units of other parts of India, and in these two cities also the Auxiliary Force units constitute a specially valuable adjunct to the regular forces for the purpose of coping with local disturbances. We may say at once that we accept the views of these two Local Governments, and reject the recommendation of the Committee. However attractive in theory the proposition of the Committee may be, and however plausible the arguments by which they have supported it, we are convinced not only by what the Governments of Bombay and Bengal have said, but by other testimony also, that it would be impracticable to impose upon the Auxiliary Force a liability for general military service, and that any attempt to do so would be liable to cause so serious a diminution in strength of the Auxiliary Force as to render it necessary to employ additional regular British troops for internal security duties.

5. Creation and training of urban units of the Indian Territorial Force.—The Committee have recommended that in selected large centres of population special companies or battalions should be constituted which should be recruited from the educated classes, and mainly from those engaged in the learned professions, and that these urban units should be trained on the system at present applied to the Auxiliary Force, namely, a system of training throughout the year combined with a short period of annual training in camp. The Committee point out that the advantage of this system of training from the point of view of encouraging the educated classes to join the Territorial Force, is that it will not interfere with the civil avocations of the Territorial soldiers of this special category; and the Committee contemplate that in the course of time the urban units should be open only to men who have previously undergone a period of training in the University Training Corps, an arrangement which should have the effect of increasing the efficiency of both formations and also of preserving the value of the training received in the University Training Corps. With these recommendations and observations we agree in the hope that ex-University men will become available. But in view of our conclusion regarding the military liability of the Auxiliary Force, we are unable to accept the further recommendation of the Committee that the urban battalions should be liable for general military service. Here we find ourselves in sympathy with the very emphatic criticisms put forward by the Government of Bombay. We feel that it would not be equitable to impose liability for general military service upon the urban units of the Territorial Force and not upon the Auxiliary Force, in view of the fact that it is definitely contemplated that the former should be composed of individuals whose social circumtances and civil avocations may be said to place them in a position corresponding closely to the position of those from whom the Auxiliary Force is drawn; and moreover it would be very unjustifiable to attach to the creation of urban units a condition known to be of such a character that it might from the very start prevent the experiment from materialising. The Committee have said that if only a limited military liability is imposed, it would be useless to create the urban units. This proposition, however, we cannot admit. The units, it is true, may have no immediate military value, but they should be regarded as belonging to that section of the Territorial Force which is intended to have an educative purpose. This aspect of the question is well put in the following passage from a letter of the Bombay Government :—

> "Apart from this potential value, this Government would strongly press the view that the educative value of these battalions justifies expenditure, though the fruits of such expenditure may not be reaped even in this generation, and that to a wider vision it would appear that it would be of profit to incur expenditure even in merely teaching and educating the members of the urban battalions in military science."

Finally, it may be said definitely that without the urban battalions no real and practical opportunity would be given to the educated middle classes of learning the lessons of national military service and national defence. But that they should have such opportunities is the main object with which the Territorial Force was created. It is one of the primary obligations arising out of the policy mentioned at the commencement of the second paragraph of this despatch, upon which the present discussion is founded.

6. Extended training of Indian Territorial Force Provincial units.—We agree in general principle with the recommendations of the Committee in regard to the provincial units. The military authorities are satisfied that the limited amount of training at present authorised is not sufficient to produce, even out of good material, a second line force of real military value. As we explain in a later passage of this despatch we propose to apply the extended system of training which the Committee advocate to four of the existing provincial battalions, selecting representatives of different types. After a suitable interval it will be necessary to review, in the light of the success which attends the experiment, the whole question of maintaining rural or provincial units as a second line to the regular army. In our conception of the matter, it will be necessary that all questions arising in future in regard to the provincial battalions should be judged mainly by the criterion of the direct military results obtained: and the battalions must be required to stand the test of comparison from this point of view with the regular army reserves. It will be observed that the Committee themselves have recognised that increase in the number of provincial units must be subject to financial considerations, and have laid it down that their number should not in any case be allowed to expand beyond the limits of the second line force required on purely military grounds.

7. The form of commissions in the Auxiliary Force, India, and in the Indian Territorial Force.—We accept without reservation the proposals of the Committee under this head, and agree with the remarks made in paragraph 18, paragraph 24 (IV) (a), and paragraph 25 (IV) (ii) of the report. The proceedings of the Committee show that the opinion of serving officers in the Indian Territorial Force is definitely and justifiably opposed to the present dual commissions. In fact the existing arrangements in regard to commissions in the Indian Territorial Force constitute one of the most acute grievances of all that were represented to the Committee, and there is no doubt that, apart from the sentimental aspect of the question, there can be no possibility of progress in a force in which no officer of that force can hold a commission higher than that of Jemadar, Subadar, Honorary Lieutenant and Honorary Captain. The proposal as regards the commissions to be granted to officers of the Auxiliary Force settles in a satisfactory manner, from the military point of view, a question which has long been outstanding and which is of great importance. The grant of commissions similar in form to officers both of the Auxiliary Force and the Territorial Force is not only suitable in itself but will also meet to a considerable extent the political demand that the two forces should be treated alike in all essential matters.

8. Members of the Auxiliary Force and of urban units of the Indian Territorial Force should not receive pay for periodical parades.—This recommendation has given rise to some difference of opinion, but on careful consideration we are of opinion that the arguments set forth in paragraph 19 of the report are sound, and that the proposal should be accepted. * * *

9. Conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force, India.—There is only one matter here calling for comment, namely, whether the Auxiliary Force should now be confined to British subjects; and this may be conveniently disposed of by quoting the following opinion of the Government of Bengal :—

> "In a large centre such as Calcutta there may always be expected to be a fair number of persons whose nationality as British subjects is doubtful for one reason or another, or who are definitely nationals of other and friendly countries. If they feel disposed to enrol themselves in the Auxiliary Force, they might prove a useful accession of strength at times of disturbance; while, if not enrolled they would appear to be without any definite status for self-defence at a crisis. The Governor in Council does not wish to attach undue importance to the point but would suggest that there are grounds for consideration whether any occasion for deleting sub-section (d) of section 4 of the Act will remain if the liability for service in the Auxiliary Force is not extended beyond India."

We agree in this view, and since we propose that the Auxiliary Force should not be made liable for general military service, we do not propose to alter the provision in the Auxiliary Force Act which permits the enrolment of persons other than British subjects.

10. Preliminary military training in schools.—The Committee have expressed the opinion that it is desirable that physical training accompanied by some form of military discipline should be adopted as part of the routine of all schools. The opinion is, we think, unexceptionable; but the accomplishment must be left to the efforts of Local Governments and local Educational authorities, official and non-official. We do not ourselves read in the expression of the Committee's opinion anything intended to be at variance with the somewhat fuller exposition of the same matter contained in paragraph 2 of the letter from the Government of Bengal, No. 1194-P.D., dated the 21st July 1925.

11. Penalisation of employers who impose disabilities on employees belonging to the non-regular forces.—This proposal has been unanimously condemned and we have ourselves no hesitation in rejecting it as impracticable.

12. Custody of arms.—We endorse the observations of the Committee contained in paragraph 26 (g) of their report. Agreeing with the Local Governments, we attached the very greatest importance to the safe custody of arms and ammunition belonging to the non-regular forces, and regard it as essential that absolute control of arms and ammunition should be exercised by Government acting through the military authorities.

13. Enrolment of Government servants in the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces.—We agree generally with the observations of the Committee on this subject contained in paragraph 26 (h) of their report. It, may, however, be necessary to examine in some further detail the conditions on which the enrolment of Government servants may be permitted; for example, it may be necessary to provide that the consent of the Local Government or other prescribed authority should be obtained not only before enrolment but also before a civil Government servant is withdrawn on embodiment from his normal official duties. This, however, is a matter of domestic concern with the details of which it is unnecessary to trouble Your Lordship.

14. Exemption from capitation tax of members of the Indian Territorial Force in Burma.—It is only necessary to mention this minor recommendation, for the reason that the Government of Burma have declined to grant the concession proposed. We feel that we would not be justified in pressing the suggestion.

15. We have for the present left on one side the various recommendations of the Committee in regard to the enrolment of railway employees in the Auxiliary or Territorial Forces and the constitution of non-regular railway units of a special character. We have found it necessary to reserve these for separate consideration. Otherwise we have surveyed all the recommendations of the Committee and it is to be understood that we accept in general principle any which have not been specifically mentioned in this despatch. If the main proposals which we have expressly recommended are approved by Your Lordship, we will put into practice the other minor and ancillary recommendations as the occasion arises and as circumstances permit. It will further be necessary for us to consider, when we have received your Lordship's decision, which of the accepted recommendations will involve legislation and to take action towards that end.

16. Turning to the financial aspect of the case, we desire, in the first instance, to invite attention, with special emphasis, to that passage in paragraph 27 of the report in which the Committee say—

> "We wish to make it clear that in our opinion, for the reasons stated in the debate in the Legislative Assembly as the result of which this Committee was formed, any increase in the expenditure on the Territorial Force must not be allowed in any way to prejudice the strength and efficiency of the regular army. These reasons are summarised in paragraph 1 preceding."

We entirely agree in this view; and it is particularly satisfactory to find that the Committee rejected unanimously the mistaken, and indeed dangerous, suggestions which were put forward in the resolution originally moved in the Legislative Assembly as regards the possibility of the non-regular forces taking the place of a large and increasing portion of the relatively small regular army on which the defence of India at present depends.

It follows therefore that new expenditure on the development of the non-regular forces must depend upon our general financial circumstances permitting outlay in excess of the provision found necessary from time to time for the proper maintenance of the regular military services; and we propose to deal with the financial issue generally on this basis. There is, however, little doubt that a considerable body of Indian public opinion would demand that a real effort should be made to provide additional funds for the purpose in question. To commence with, we desire to authorise the expenditure of a sum of 10 lakhs of rupees to be spent, if possible, in the course of this financial year, in giving effect to an instalment of those recommendations of the Committee which we have accepted, and we have accordingly drawn up a preliminary scheme, of which details are given in an annexure to this despatch. The various measures making up the scheme require little comment, but we may explain that we have endeavoured to base the experiment as widely as possible: and it may interest Your Lordship to have the following particulars of the four provincial units selected for more extensive training. Two are relatively good and keen units recruited mainly from the professional military classes. Of the remaining two, one, namely, the 11/19th Hyderabad Regiment, is recruited from classes which by recent tradition are entirely non-military. The local military authorities had recommended that this battalion should be disbanded as being inefficient. But the Government of Bengal have held that it would be premature to create an urban unit in Bengal at present: and we do not think it would be right therefore to disband the only Bengal unit of the Territorial Force without giving it a further chance to improve itself under the extended system of training and the more effective methods of instruction which military opinion acknowledges to be necessary. In the case of the 14th 3rd Madras Regiment the personnel are classified by the military authorities as non-military, but they include men of the classes which formerly enlisted in the Madras regiments of the regular army. It may be added that the scheme contemplates the conversion of the existing Parsi unit in Bombay into an urban unit with limited military liabilities. The other Parsi unit in Poona will be disbanded as it has been a complete failure. Budget provision has not been specifically made for the proposed expenditure of Rs. 10 lakhs; and it will be incurred only to the extent to which it can be met by reappropriation from grants not otherwise required. The concurrence of the Local Governments concerned will be obtained before any new unit provided for in the scheme is actually raised.

17. * * * Neither the Government of India nor His Majesty's Government are asked to commit themselves to a large, indefinite or unconditional expansion of the Territorial Force. What is essentially desired is approval to certain methods and principles of advance. The actual scheme for immediate expansion will, if approved, bring the establishment over the present authorised strength of the Territorial Force, including the University Training Corps, by 204 men only; and under the financial rules which define the powers of the Government of India, Your Lordship's separate sanction would be necessary to any further increase costing 5 lakhs of rupees per annum. We are ourselves fully alive to the dangers which might attend an indiscriminate expansion of the Territorial Force. We do not propose to recommend any increase which we cannot effectively control through the regular military services, and we trust that this assurance will help to remove any hesitation which Your Lordship might otherwise feel and which might be inspired by previous discussions.

18. Your Lordship will recognise that it would be convenient from our point of view if when the Indian Legislature meets in August next we were in a position to make some announcement of the decisions arrived at in regard to the report. We recognise, however, that this would give Your Lordship but little time for full consideration of our proposals, and we must therefore refrain from urging too strongly upon Your Lordship the desirability of arriving at a final conclusion by the time mentioned. We should, however, be glad to receive your orders at the earliest possible moment.

19. We propose in due course, subject to Your Lordship's approval, to publish the correspondence with Local Governments if the Legislature request that this should be done. The Local Governments have expressly agreed to this course.

We have the honour to be,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servants,

Enclosure No. 1 to A. D. despatch No. 8, dated the 24th June 1926

LETTER TO ALL LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND ADMINISTRATIONS, No. A. 31794—1 (A. G.), DATED THE 9TH APRIL 1925.

I am directed to invite attention to the Report of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee. A copy of this Report has already been supplied to Local Governments.

2. The Government of India desire to be favoured with $\frac{\text{the views of the Local Government}}{\text{your views}}$ on the principal recommendations of the Committee. It appears to them that Local Governments are likely to be concerned with the measures which the Committee advocate from two points of view, namely :—

(1) Their bearing on the responsibility of the Local Government for the maintenance of law and order, and

(2) The attitude which the various sections of the community are likely to adopt towards the recommendations that affect them individually.

In the annexure to this letter an indication is given of those proposals in which it appears to the Government of India that the Local Governments will have a special interest from one or other of the two points of view mentioned, but if $\frac{\text{the Local Government}}{\text{you}}$ desire to express an opinion on any other matter arising out of the report, the Government of India will be glad to receive it.

3. I am further to request that so far as this is found to be appropriate $\frac{\text{the views of the Local Government}}{\text{your views}}$ on the questions referred to $\frac{\text{them}}{\text{you}}$ may be framed in consultation with the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief $\frac{\text{Northern}}{\text{Southern}}$ $\frac{\text{Southern}}{\text{Eastern}}$ $\frac{\text{Eastern}}{\text{Western}}$ Command to whom a copy of this letter is being sent through the Adjutant General in India.

COPIES OF REPLIES FROM LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND ADMINISTRATIONS TO LETTER NO. A.-31794-1 (A. G.), DATED THE 9TH APRIL 1925, FROM THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA IN THE ARMY DEPARTMENT.

Letter from the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Baluchistan, No. 1668 (a), dated the 1st June 1925.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. A.-31794-1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925.

2. The conditions in Baluchistan appear to be such as to make the recommendations of the Committee applicable in a very small degree to the Province. Throughout the rural areas the people might be described as all belonging to the martial races : they are in general required to go armed for their own protection and are accustomed to bearing arms and are in general organised in a rough tribal way to meet tribal conditions. Presumably therefore the present recommendations would not apply to them.

The only urban area of any size is the town of Quetta. That town is inhabited practically entirely by shopkeepers from the Punjab and Sind, Government officials and a floating population which comes chiefly from Afghanistan and out districts in search of labour. There is no University and excluding the floating population the male population between 20 and 50 does not amount to more than a few thousands. The Auxiliary Force consists of 40 members of whom some half dozen are Chinese and Parsis. Most of the members are Government officials who in case of emergency would probably be much more usefully employed on their own duties.

3. Beyond therefore saying that the recommendations of the Committee seem to him generally sound and that he can see no objection to these being acted on in their entirety so far as Baluchistan is concerned, the Agent to the Governor-General thinks that there is little he can usefully add. Should there be any movement, of which there is at present no sign, among the citizens of Quetta to constitute a unit of the Indian Territorial Force, there would appear to be no objection to such a Force being raised under careful supervision on a scale which would necessarily be small, but with the small amount of material available and the large military garrison which must necessarily be retained in Quetta, such a force would be of little value as regards strengthening defence or giving added assistance in the maintenance of law and order.

4. This letter has been shown to the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Western Command, who expresses himself as in general agreement with the view contained in it.

Letter from the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Coorg, No. 60-T.—129-20, dated the 6th June 1925.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. A.-31794—1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, and to say that after careful consideration and in consultation with the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Southern Command, the Chief Commissioner desires to offer the following views on the recommendations of the Committee.

(1) Expansion and development of University Training Corps. Paragraph 28 (i) and (vii).—There is no University Training Corps in Coorg, but the Chief Commissioner generally agrees with the recommendations of the Committee. The Chief Commissioner considers it desirable that there should be elementary military training in schools in order to instil the necessary sense of discipline.

He is of opinion however that Cadet Corps should in the first instance be confined to selected schools.

(2) Liability of Auxiliary Force and Indian Territorial Force (Provincial and Urban battalions) for general military service. Paragraph 28 (ii).—The Chief Commissioner agrees that the Auxiliary Force and the Indian Territorial Force should be liable for general military service both within and without the borders of India, but he considers that only men of military age should be made so liable. Men over military age would not ordinarily be liable for general service, and the Chief Commissioner suggests that in the case of such men the liability should be optional.

(3) Creation and training of urban units. Paragraphs 28 (iii) and 24 (v) (i) (b).—There is no scope for urban units in Coorg, the towns being merely large villages. The Chief Commissioner thinks the experiment of creating such units might be tried, but he doubts its success. Such units should have the same liabilities for service as other Indian Territorial Force units.

In regard to the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore : in view of the fact that the bulk of the population consists of Anglo-Indians, outcastes and low class Muhammadans the Chief Commissioner does not consider that an urban unit could usefully be formed.

(4) Extended training of Indian Territorial Force (Provincial Units). Paragraph 28 (iv).—The extension of the training period is essential. It remains to be seen whether even if the training period is extended to two months it will make the force fit for general service. The Chief Commissioner thinks that the period of training in Coorg must necessarily be confined to the dates, 10th March to 10th May, so that agricultural work would not be interfered with. Similar arrangements will probably be necessary in most parts of India.

(5) Members of the Auxiliary Force and of urban units of the Indian Territorial Force not to receive pay for periodical parades. Paragraph 28 (v).—The Chief Commissioner agrees that some form of allowance may be given instead of pay during periodical parades to members of the urban units of the Indian Territorial Force and Auxiliary Force.

(6) Constitution, duties and functions of Advisory Committee. Paragraphs 28 (ix) and 26 (d).—Owing to the smallness of the Province one Committee will suffice for Coorg and should consist as proposed of 5 members the Commissioner being the Civil Official member. The Chief Commissioner agrees that advisory committees be given wider responsibility but is opposed to the suggestion that committees be "made entirely responsible for recruiting". The activities of these committees should be confined to exerting all possible moral influence in stimulating recruiting The Chief Commissioner does not agree to the allotment of funds to committees which should be considered as purely advisory and not executive bodies.

(7) Responsibilities of Local Government. Paragraphs 28 (x) and 24 (iv) (i) (b).—The question will not arise in Coorg, but the Chief Commissioner considers that responsibility for the creation of new units should rest with the Local Government concerned.

(8) Conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force. Paragraph 25 (iv) (i).—The Chief Commissioner concurs in the recommendations of the Committee.

(9) Penalisation of employers who impose disabilities on employees belonging to the non-regular Forces. Paragraph 26 (f).—The Chief Commissioner agrees that employers who impose disabilities on employees who belong to the non-regular Forces should be penalized in some form or other. The difficulty is to devise a means of bringing them to book. On the other hand it would appear desirable to encourage firms which promote recruitment by putting them on a special list with a view to their being given priority in Army contracts whenever possible.

(10) Custody of arms. Paragraph 24 (g).—The Chief Commissioner is not in favour of the formation of small and scattered armouries for Provincial units as he considers that the system imposes unfair responsibilities on the police. Where central armouries are impossible he is of opinion that members of the Auxiliary Force should keep their own arms.

(11) Employment of Government servants in Auxiliary or Territorial Forces. Paragraph 26 (h).—The Chief Commissioner agrees that Government servants should be recruited but on the understanding that in the event of mobilisation the Local Government should be allowed to retain a minimum number of officials to carry on the administration and that its selection should not be subject to challenge.

(12) Rifle Clubs. Annexure B. I.—The Chief Commissioner agrees with the proposal to raise Rifle Clubs. Members of the Auxiliary Force and Territorial Force could perhaps combine for this object and the instructional staff of the former could be utilised. It is suggested that allowances for men coming from a long distance should be granted to encourage attendance and add to the popularity of these clubs.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Burma, No. 188-E.—24 (R. N. 603), dated the 15th June 1925.

In reply to your letter No. A.-31749-1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, I am directed to say that the General Officer Commanding, Burma District, Lieutenant-Colonel Crosthwaite, Commanding Burma Railways Battalion, A. F. I., and Lieutenant-Colonel Heald, Commanding Rangoon Battalion, A. F. I., were consulted regarding the fourteen recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee which are detailed in the Annexure to your letter, while the Burma Chamber of Commerce was consulted regarding the recommendation that employers should be penalised for imposing disabilities on employees belonging to non-regular forces. Their views and the view of the Local Government are summarised in the following paragraph.

2 (1) Expansion and Development of University Training Corps. Paragraph 28 (i) and (viii).—Colonel Heald would give University Training Corps a separate constitution with officers of their own, under a separate Act. He considers that they should be allowed to expand to the extent to which funds allow. Colonel Crosthwaite also favours expansion. The General Officer Commanding presses for sanction for the addition to the Headquarters and three Companies already sanctioned of a Sappers and Miners Company (already formed) in consequence of the introduction of Engineering and Forestry Courses at the Rangoon University. The Governor in Council considers that the expansion of the University Training Corps, so far as funds permit, is desirable and supports the General Officer Commanding's application for sanction for the extra Company. He also agrees with Colonel Heald that a separate Act is advisable.

(2) Liability of Auxiliary Force and of Indian Territorial Force (Provincial and Urban Battalions) for general military service. Paragraph 28 (ii).—Colonel Crosthwaite holds that general military service is not feasible so far as the Railway Corps is concerned. This view finds support in the proposals made by the Committee in paragraph 24 (VI) (k) and paragraph 25 (V) (b) of their report for the organisation of Railway Corps on a purely technical basis on the ground that in an emergency the personnel of these corps would not as a rule be able to do more than maintain communications. Colonel Heald would exempt members of either the "A" or the "B" reserve of the Auxiliary Force (India) and members of the corresponding Reserves of Urban Units when constituted, from liability for service outside India.

The General Officer Commanding concurs in the recommendations of the Committee, but suggests that on necessity arising, members of the University Training Corps might be made liable for service by being posted to suitable units for intensive training, with a view to fitting themselves for general service. The Local Government accepts the conclusions of the Committee while recognising that liability for general service will tend to restrict recruiting. It does not support the General Officer Commanding's proposal. The reasons set out in paragraph 9 of the Report appear to His Excellency in Council to be conclusive against the imposition of any liability for general service on members of the University Training Corps.

(3) Creation and training of Urban Units. Paragraphs 28 (iii) and 24 (V) (i) (b).—Colonel Crosthwaite is opposed to the creation of Urban Units. Colonel Heald sees no objection except that of expense. The General Officer Commanding recommends that as a tentative measure one Urban Company should be formed in Rangoon. He anticipates difficulty in providing guards over the armoury for an Urban Unit anywhere else. The Governor in Council does not think that this difficulty is insuperable: but he considers that for the present it will suffice to start with one Urban Company in Rangoon as proposed by Colonel Commandant Sangster.

(4) Extended training of Indian Territorial Force (Provincial Units). Paragraph 28 (iv).—Colonel Crosthwaite asserts that railway employees could not be spared for more than 28 days. The remarks against proposal (2) apply here also. Colonel Heald favours extended training, though he doubts whether provincial units will be worth the cost. He would prefer a reserve of ex-regulars. The General Officer Commanding would fix the period of training at three months for recruits and two months for trained soldiers. He reports that the Commandant of the Provincial Battalion (11-70th Burma Rifles) considers that there would be no difficulty in getting the necessary personnel. The Local Government accepts the conclusion of the Committee that the extended period of training which they recommend is essential to ensure an efficient second line of defence. If the Provincial Battalions are confined to agricultural and other classes whose occupation is seasonal, it should not prove impossible to recruit an adequate force. This restriction will be facilitated by the recruitment of urban units, for which, as the Committee recognises, so long a period of intensive training is out of the question, and by the organisation of Railway Corps on a purely technical basis as suggested by the Committee.

(5) Members of the Auxiliary Force and Urban Units of the Indian Territorial Force not to receive pay for periodical parades. Paragraph 28 (v).—Colonel Crosthwaite agrees with the Committee's recommendations. He suggests that liberal travelling allowance should be granted to cover the expenses of a man attending a distant parade. Colonel Heald sees difficulties in fixing a sufficient scale of allowances and he would retain "pay." He writes:—"Pay is a simple and not particularly expensive method of preventing the individual member from losing pecuniarily. It amounts to only one rupee for a two hours' parade. The proposals in Annexure AII introduce alterations which I consider open to objection. I see no reason why the training for Infantry which is necessary to earn bonus (or bounty) should be increased when that for other branches of the Force is not to be increased. The present training is in my opinion excessive for the conditions in Rangoon at any rate, and I have recommended to the military authorities that the training prescribed for efficiency be reduced by half, bonus (or bounty) being paid only for completion of the whole present training. Members of the "A" and "B" Reserves who do the training of the active class and members of the "B" Reserve who do the training of the "A" Reserve should receive the allowances of the class or reserve whose training they do and should earn capitation grant. So far as the Rangoon Battalion is concerned the special capitation grant will be useless if given subject to the conditions proposed, since few if any members of the unit will do the necessary 16 hours' additional training. I would allow pay and ordinary capitation grant to be earned for half the present training, and bounty to be earned for the full present training, the special capitation grant being earned only by first class shots who complete the full present training for the active class."

The Governor in Council concurs with the General Officer Commanding in accepting the Committee's recommendations.

(6) Constitution, duties and functions of Advisory Committees. Paragraphs 28 (ix) and 26 (d).—Colonel Crosthwaite and Colonel Heald believe that Advisory Committees are valueless and that the Committee's recommendations for their improvement will produce no effect. The General Officer Commanding is in favour of Advisory Committees; he suggests that very careful selection of the members will be necessary and advises that the Chairman should be nominated by the Local Government. He deprecates interference by the Advisory Committees in recruitment for the University Training Corps.

The Local Government considers that if Advisory Committees were reconstituted on the lines approved by the Committee they would prove of greater utility than the present Committees in popularising the Indian Territorial Force and in educating public opinion. In Burma very little interest is at present displayed in the Force.

(7) Responsibilities of Local Governments. Paragraphs 28 (ix) and 24 (IV) (i) (b).—The Committee's recommendations call for no remarks.

(8) Conditions of eligibility for enrolment in Auxiliary Force. Paragraph 25 (IV) (i).—The Committee's recommendations regarding the future composition of the Auxiliary Force are accepted by all as suitable. The General Officer Commanding suggests that verified proof of parentage should be provided before enrolment. In cases of doubt it is believed that some proof is required but generally in the smaller centres of population too strict an examination of credentials would involve a disappearance of the unit.

(9) Preliminary Military Training in Schools. Paragraph 26 (a).—Colonel Heald and Colonel Crosthwaite agree that School Cadet Companies (not Corps) are eminently desirable provided that the training is given by reliable military pensioners. The General Officer Commanding considers that the cost and lack of suitable staff at present stand in the way of the formation of cadet corps in Burma. The Governor in Council concurs in the Committee's recommendations but is not in a position to state how far Provincial Funds will be available to give effect to them.

(10) Penalisation of employers who impose disabilities on employees belonging to the Non-Regular Forces. Paragraph 26 (f).—The Burma Chamber of Commerce oppose the proposal on the ground that it would merely serve to put men who joined up at a disadvantage with those who did not, so far as the employment is concerned, as many employers would probably prefer to employ men who had not this contingent liability on them to those who had. They hold that the suggested provision "would not attain the object the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee have in view; but, on the contrary, would to some extent militate against men joining up". Colonel Commandant Sangster sees difficulties in the proposal and Colonel Heald remarks that the penalties could be avoided by employers refusing to employ members of the Auxiliary Force (India) and Indian Territorial Force unless service in these forces was made compulsory. The Governor in Council considers that this objection is insuperable.

(11) Custody of Arms. Paragraph 26 (g).—The officers consulted agree generally with the recommendations of the Committee. Colonel Crosthwaite suggests that armouries for Indian Territorial Force urban units, if created, might be on the lines of British units. The General Officer Commanding mentions the undesirability of having armouries guarded by civil police.

The Governor in Council while recognising the importance of safe custody of arms and the advantages of a uniform system, is of opinion that, owing to the difficulty of providing guards for armouries, the most convenient system is that which hitherto has been followed of making the best local arrangements possible in the case of each unit. In this Province no case of serious loss or danger to life has arisen through the adoption of this system.

(12) Enrolment of Government servants in Auxiliary or Territorial Forces. Paragraph 26 (h).—The General Officer Commanding points out that the inclusion of Government servants is almost essential to the Auxiliary Force (India), as they are generally the keenest and most influential members of the force. He considers that, not being debarred from joining the Indian Army Reserve of Officers, they might be placed under the same conditions as are laid down in India Army Order No. 325 of 1924, paragraph 3, in the event of a crisis necessitating the embodiment of the force for service. It is in the view of the Governor in Council most desirable that Government servants should be encouraged to enrol and that Government should give a lead in this respect and he accepts the recommendations of the Committee under this head en bloc.

(13) Rifle Clubs (Annexure B I).—Colonel Heald approves of Rifle Clubs so long as there is a permanent instructional staff and Colonel Crosthwaite sees no objection to them. The General Officer Commanding on the other hand considers that in Burma rifle clubs are both "unnecessary and inadvisable"—he does not say why. There are three rifle clubs in the Rangoon Battalion A. F. I. The Local Government considers that rifle clubs should be encouraged in the manner and on the conditions proposed.

(14) Exemption from Capitation Tax of Members of Indian Territorial Force (Annexure A. I.-11).—The General Officer Commanding recommends exemption from Capitation tax on the ground that it "would be very popular and an incentive to enlistment." Colonel Crosthwaite supports the proposal. Colonel Heald on the other hand does not think that the exemption is necessary.

The Governor in Council is not prepared to act on the recommendation. It is opposed to the present policy of this Government of reducing the number of exemptions from the tax. The following additional recommendations have been made by the General Officer Commanding:—

(i) Advisory Committees should be consulted in regard to the conversion of the Burma Railways Battalion as suggested in paragraph 25 (V) (b) and also as regards the formation of an Indian Territorial Force Light Railway Company on the lines laid down in Appendix III-B.

(ii) The Indian Instructional Staff should be seconded from their active unit and attached to the Training Battalion as extra personnel under arrangements similar to that obtaining at present for British officers seconded as Company Commanders with the Indian Territorial Force. [Paragraph 24 (U) (i) (a)]

(iii) With the exception of the Light Railway Company no other specialist unit should be formed in Burma at present. [Paragraph 24 (VI) (e) to (i).]

The Local Government concurs in these recommendations.

Letter from the Officiating Chief Secretary to Government of Bihar and Orissa, No. 884-P.R., dated the 18th June 1925.

I am directed to reply to your letter No. A.-31794-1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, in which you ask for the views of the Local Government on the principal recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee,

2. With most of the recommendations of the Committee the Local Government are in agreement. They give their fullest support to the two main recommendations of the Committee, namely :—

(1) that the University Crops should be subject to no arbitrary limitation of numbers but should be encouraged to expand and to foster the growth of a national military spirit in India, and

(2) that an opportunity to students to continue their military training after leaving the university should be afforded by the constitution of urban units of the Territorial Force.

* * * * * * *

3. The Local Government agree that the question of compulsion of students to join the University Training Crops should be left to the University authorities. In this province resolutions advocating compulsory service have been adopted both in the Legislative Council and the Senate. Should the principle be introduced seriously, presumably only those students who could produce the necessary certificates of efficiency or exemption would be permitted to appear at the University examination, but there are practical difficulties which have not perhaps been sufficiently considered by local enthusiasts and it is at least doubtful if the proposal will materialise. Assuming that compulsion is not introduced, the Local Government support the recommendation of the Committee that days spent in camp by the members of the University Training Corps should count towards University or College attendances, with a view to making the training more popular. They also agree that there should be no liability on the students joining the University Training Corps for general military service. The question of the liability of members of the urban units for general military service is dealt with later in this letter.

4 The Local Government agree with the Committee's views on the extension of the training in the case of the provincial units of the Indian Territorial Force. Experience in Bihar has shown that a period of fifty-six days gives far too short a training for the material composing the force, and that a period of three months in the first year and two months in each subsequent year is desirable.

5. On the question of the constitution and functions of the Advisory Committee and the responsibilities of the Local Government in regard to the provincial units of the Territorial Force, the Local Government see no objection to expanding the provincial Advisory Committee to five members instead of three and to constituting local unit committees where necessary, and probably a separate committee for the University Training Crops. At the same time it is feared that if the whole responsibility of collecting the material is left to the Advisory Committee and unless Government continue to nurse the movement for at least a few years to come, it is not likely that the Territorial Force will be successfully organised.

6. On two important points the Local Government are not wholly in agreement with the Committee. These points concern the liability of the Auxiliary Force and the urban units of the Territorial Force for general military service and the conditions of enrolment of Government servants in the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces. His Excellency's Government are doubtful of the wisdom of imposing the liability to general military service on the Auxiliary Force without much fuller investigation of its probable effect on the strength of the Force than appears so far to have been undertaken. They share the apprehensions of the General Officer Commanding, Presidency District, that the unlimited imposition of this liability might destroy the Auxiliary Force and deprive Government of the undoubted advantages which it derives from its existence. They would suggest that the military liability of the Auxiliary Force remain limited as at present, subject only to this addition that the Force should be liable for general military service within or without India on the occurrence of a grave emergency, to be certified by a special order of the Governor-General in Council. To meet any objection on the ground of differentiation, the Local Government consider that the military liability of the urban units of the Territorial Force should be similarly limited, that is, their normal liability should be confined to the province, and their liability for general service should only arise on special certification by the Governor-General in Council.

As regards Government servants, whether enrolled in the Auxiliary Force or in the urban units of the Territorial Force, their liability for military service should be the same as that of other members of these forces, except that the Local Government should be empowered to exempt from enforcement of the general service liability, when it arises, such Government officers as they certify to be required to carry on the essential work of the civil administration. Unless this latitude is allowed it will be very difficult for Government to encourage their servants to enrol.

7. On one other point the Local Government are doubtful of the expediency of the Committee's recommendation. While they would welcome any measure designed to create a healthy recognition of the duty of a citizen in the matter of national military service they fear that any attempt to penalise employers would defeat its own object and give the latter either an excuse to prohibit their employees from enrolling in the Auxiliary Force or the urban units of the Territorial Force, or an incentive to get rid of those employees who have enrolled in either Force. It is a matter which the Governor in Council considers must be left to the growing strength of public opinion,

8. On the remaining points of reference it is not necessary to reply at length. The proposed conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force, the proposal for the custody of arms and the proposal for rifle clubs are acceptable to the Local Government. The question of preliminary military training in schools will be considered in consultation with the educational authorities.

9. Lastly I am to say that there is a strong local feeling that the Bihar and Orissa Companies of the 11-19th Hyderabad Regiment should be separated from the Bengal Companies of that Regiment and should be styled "the Bihar and Orissa Territorial Battalion" in addition to its army designation.

10. I am to say that the above recommendations have been made by His Excellency in Council after consultation with the Hon'ble Ministers, particularly with reference to the recommendations relating to the University Training Corps, and that both sides of His Excellency's Government agree in the opinions expressed in this letter.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of the Central Provinces, No. C.-1084—584-II, dated the 19th June 1925.

I am directed to refer to Army Department letter No. A.-31734-1 (A.G.), dated the 9th April 1925, asking for the views of this Government on the principal recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee. In reply, I am to say that on a number of the recommendations of the Committee, in particular those concerning the University Training Corps, provincial and urban units of the Territorial Force, and physical training in schools, this Government would prefer to defer its opinion until it has had an opportunity of consulting non-official opinion. This is the more necessary as no University Training Corps, nor yet any unit of the Territorial Force, at present exists in this province, whilst the province is also without Ministers who would take responsibility for any change in the ordinary curricula of the schools and the university. The situation in this respect will become clearer in August next. In the meantime I am to submit the views of this Government on the recommendations of the Committee which concern the Auxiliary Force.

2. The first proposal of importance affecting the Auxiliary Force is that the present restricted liability for military service should be extended to a liability for general military service both within and without the borders of India, and that the Force should be regarded as a second line to the regular British troops in India. The present conception of the Auxiliary Force is that of a defensive organization formed from a special class of the population, designed to aid the regular troops in times of internal trouble by taking over certain military duties, such as the manning of the heavy gun armament in the local military centres, the provision of rapid moveable patrols with light guns, and the safeguarding of important strategic points, such as bridges and lines of communication. Other duties of the force would be to protect Government treasuries and bring in refugees. In introducing the idea of the force as a second line to the British regular army the Committee do not appear to have taken sufficient account of the fact that the paper strength of the Auxiliary Force is greatly in excess of the strength which would be available for military service, i.e., the active class. While the total strength of the Nagpur Rifles is 562, only 234 are in the "active" class, and if the same proportion prevails elsewhere it means that, out of the total of 33,000 for the whole of India, not more than 15,000 belong to the "active" class. It is also a matter for surprise that while imposing far greater obligations on the present force the Committee has not made any proposals for increasing its training and efficiency. This Government does not, however, desire to lay too much stress on these practical difficulties. It recognizes the importance of the considerations which were in the mind of the Committee when making the proposal, and would be quite prepared to accept the new conception of the Indian Auxiliary Force, provided the Committee's suggestions for the revision of its pay are dropped. (Vide paragraph 4 below.) This Government is advised that the effect of the changes in the pay of the Force, combined with the extension of liability for service, will be a reduction in the whole strength in this province by 30 or 40 per cent.; in other words the practical destruction of the Force. If the present conditions of pay are retained, the bulk of the Force will, this Government is confident, cheerfully undertake any responsibility which it is thought necessary to impose upon it.

3. In connection with the question of liability for general military service, this Government desires to refer to another matter of practical importance. The position under the Auxiliary Force Act at present is that, as soon as an enrolled member [Section 5 (i)] attains the age of 18 years (Section 7), he is liable to be called out for military service in the military area in which he is enrolled. Except for purely local emergencies he can only be called out by a special order of the Civil Government [Section 18 (b)]. Under the Committee's proposals it is presumed from paragraph 14 of the Report that the calling out of the men for service will be in the hands of the military authorities without the safeguard provided at present by section 18 (b) of the Auxiliary Force Act. I am to point out that in this province the A. F. I. is almost entirely composed of the civil servants of Government. It is only natural that in an emergency the military authorities should subordinate all other considerations to military requirements. The point of view of the Civil Government is, however, of equal importance, and this Government regards it as essential that, in any amendment of the Act which may be undertaken, the power to order the general embodiment of the A. F. I. should remain as at present with the Civil Government. When embodiment has taken place the control would, of course, pass to the military authorities.

4. The question of the pay of the Auxiliary Force has been referred to in paragraph 2 above. The Committee propose to abolish the staff pay of officers, and to give no pay for any work done by officers or men except at camp (paragraph 19). This Government can see no justification for this distinction, which will have most unfortunate consequences. It will, for instance, entirely ruin the training of big gun teams, which has to be done largely at headquarters. For the reasons given in paragraph 2 above, this Government presses for the retention of the present system of pay and allowances.

5. This Government has no comment to make on the recommendations of the Committee regarding the conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force. The amendments suggested are the inevitable result of the change in the liability for service.

6. In paragraph 14 of the Report the Committee recommends that an employer, who places any hindrance in the way of one of his employees, who is a member of the Force, carrying out his training, should be made by law liable to punishment. This Government regards this proposal as both useless and dangerous. It is useless because—

(a) An employer who desires to penalise an employee for attending a course of training in the Indian Territorial Force need not explicitly give his real reason, but will give any other trivial excuse, knowing that the employee will know the real reason of the punishment.

(b) An employer need not directly penalise his employee for attending such a course of training, but when that employee commits any other small fault the employer will deal with him more severely than he otherwise would.

(c) An employer may refuse permission, or withhold the grant of a bonus from an employee who insists upon attending a course of training against the wishes of the employer. He need not give any reason for doing so, but the employee will know, and, as these matters are and must be purely within the discretion of the employer, the employee will have no redress.

(d) There are many employers who will simply refuse to employ any man who is a member of the Indian Territorial Force; and it will be impossible to compel them.

The proposal is dangerous because—

(a) An employee who has been refused permission, or penalised in some other way, will have it within his power to allege that he has been penalised because he attended a course of training; and he may use his power of bringing a criminal complaint against his employer as a kind of blackmail.

(b) The proposal is likely to hinder recruitment rather than to promote it, for employees may get the impression that membership of the Indian Territorial Force is a disqualification in the eyes of many employers.

7. In paragraph 26 (g) of the Report the Committee refer to what is one of the most serious matters connected with the problem of expanding the non-regular forces, namely the custody of arms and ammunition. Unless the military authorities are prepared to undertake expenditure on a large scale, the provision of armouries for the custody of all arms is impracticable. Pending a more complete examination of this question this Government merely desires to affirm its adhesion to two general principles, first, that no arms should be entrusted to persons who are not liable to be called up for embodiment under a military Act, and secondly that no arms should be kept, save under conditions approved by the military authorities.

8. This Government accepts the Committee's conclusions regarding the enrolment of Government servants in the Auxiliary Force. It is prepared to give every reasonable facility and encouragement to its servants to join the force.

9. In Annexure B (i) mention is made of the formation of rifle clubs. This Government would oppose the formation of such clubs except in connection with a definite military organisation. It regards it as illogical and dangerous to give arms to an organization which is not subject to a military Act, and the members of which are not qualified individually for licences under the Arms Act.

10. Lastly this Government desires to refer to one other matter connected with the Auxiliary Force. Annexure A-II of the Report appears to contemplate a revival of the old capitation grant system. This is a system, which, in the opinion of the Local Government lends itself readily to abuse and is founded on entirely wrong premises. It was rightly abandoned when the old Volunteer Force gave place to the Indian Defence Force and this Government would deprecate any proposal for its revival.

11. A copy of this letter has been sent to the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Southern Command.

Letter from the Officiating Chief Secretary to the Government of Assam No. 472C., dated the 19th June 1925.

I am directed to refer to your letter No A.-31794 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, in which the Government of India have asked for the views of this Government on certain recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee.

2. In reply, I am to say that the Governor in Council would have been glad if the Government of India had been able to allow more time for the examination of the important questions involved in these recommendations. The local branches of the Indian Tea Association, which are closely affected by some of the proposals, have not yet replied to the request for their advice. Moreover, the Governor in Council has not been able to obtain the opinion of the General Officer Commanding, Eastern Command, as desired in paragraph 3 of your letter. A copy of the letter will be sent to the General Officer Commanding with the request that he will send his comments on it direct to the Government of India. In all these circumstances the views expressed in this letter must be regarded as provisional.

3. The Committee in their Report have as their ideal the creation of a national army against the time when India attains full responsible government and takes on herself the whole burden of her defence, but while attaching perhaps the greatest importance to national education in this direction they are not unmindful of the military consideration of providing a second line of defence to support the regular forces in time of war. With the natural and laudable desire of thoughtful minds in India to foster steadily the military spirit by the careful inculcation of ideas of patriotism and the responsibilities of citizenship the Governor in Council is in the fullest sympathy. It would be idle to disguise the fact that the giving of practical effect to many of the Committee's recommendations would, in Assam particularly, be attended by many difficulties, but this Government are prepared cheerfully to carry out to the best of their powers any measures of encouragement accepted for the rest of India.

4. I am now to discuss the particular recommendations on which this Government have been asked to advise. The recommendation regarding preliminary military training in schools will be taken first, and thereafter the subjects will be dealt with on general lines in the order followed in the annexure to your letter.

Preliminary military training in schools.

(1) The Committee apparently want for school boys physical training accompanied by some form of military discipline to be adopted as part of the routine of all schools. The Governor in Council is of opinion that the objects of the Committee can best be attained in the first instance by the development of the Boy Scout movement which has made a promising beginning in many of the high schools of this province. The Scout training with its high ideals must give the necessary sense of discipline and patriotism, and there could be no better preliminary training for any military duties which a boy may be constrained to undertake in later life. It is true that the Scout movement was in its early days viewed with some suspicion because it was believed to be connected with military training and this suspicion may recur, but clearly there can be no hope of attaining the objects of the Committee unless a change in popular feeling can be brought about. In the opinion of the Governor in Council, the best results will follow from a development of this movement, and a readier response may be expected from the various sections of the community than a more strictly military form of training would evoke.

Expansion and development of the University Training Corps.

(2) The Committee propose that the functions of the University Training Corps should be primarily educational. The intention is that young men should be trained in military ideals and have the spirit of patriotism and the sense of discipline encouraged and that these Corps should ultimately become the recognized recruiting ground first for the Indian Territorial Force and then for officers for the regular army. With these general principles the Governor in Council is in complete agreement, but he is advised that for the present more will be gained by the development of the "Rover Scout" movement in the Colleges of Assam than by the formation of contingents of the University Training Corps. Assam has no recent military traditions and it would be wiser to be content with small beginnings. The chief difficulty would be the supply of officers on whose suitability the success of a University Training Corps must depend. In the Assam Colleges it will for many years to come be extremely difficult to obtain suitable officers. Moreover, apart from the actual training in the use of lethal weapons there is no virtue claimed for military training which cannot be as well attained by the Scout movement, while the latter goes beyond a purely military training in seeking to develop the idea of service to mankind in general and the development of the idea of human brotherhood. Should it be decided that fresh attempts should be made to form contingents of a University Training Corps in the Assam Colleges this Government will do all they can to co-operate, though the figures of enrolment in Calcutta itself are not encouraging. They must, however, stipulate that effective arrangements be made beforehand by the military authorities for the safe custody of the arms.

(3) With the recommendations of the Committee about the liability of the Indian Territorial Force to general military service the Governor in Council is in complete accord, but the case of the Auxiliary Force is altogether different. The Governor in Council has been favoured with a copy of the letter addressed by the General Officer Commanding, Presidency and Assam District, to the Government of Bengal, and endorses absolutely what is said in the following extracts :—

Liability of the Auxiliary Forces and of the Indian Territorial Forces for general military service.

"The provision of a trained reserve in India for regular units both British and Indian is obviously desirable in the national interest."

"It is for the Bengal Government to decide whether they have a margin which would enable them to make such a sacrifice as the liability of the whole Auxiliary Force to general service implies. One-third of the Auxiliary Force in India is in this District ; the scheme of the Committee for the whole of India thus is largely dependent on the decision of the Presidency and the associated provinces of Bihar and Orissa, and Assam."

"It is an axiom that the primary duty of the Auxiliary Force is the maintenance of law and order. If they are also to be made liable for general military service, other troops will have to be found for the first duty, when the Auxiliary Force is required elsewhere. These are not likely to be forthcoming. The protection of the planters of Bihar, Northern Bengal and Assam is a difficult problem which affects Bengal in a minor degree. At present these Corps are normally adequate for their serious responsibilities of protecting British lives and capital over widely scattered areas. A liability imposed on them of general military service—apart from the wastefulness of using such material in the ranks as reinforcements—would appear likely to have one of two results :—

(a) they would all resign at once,

"I have, I admit, only six months' experience of local conditions. I have, however, formed the opinion that at this moment an unlimited liability of the Auxiliary Force to general military service is not feasible in Bengal, Assam and Bihar ; there is no margin to justify it. On the other hand I consider a very valuable contribution to the Army in India Reserve of Officers could be made : a point which will be referred to later. The effect on enlistments of this recommendation of a liability of the Auxiliary Force for general military service must be a matter of surmise. I may add, however, that the mere suggestion in the report has already been advanced to me as a reason for poor recruiting results in a Calcutta unit."

"In conclusion * * * I suggest that with a strong lead from the Government of Bengal the Planter Class of Corps in which a high percentage of the Government officers under 35 years of age should serve, would provide a large percentage of officers for the Army in India Reserve of Officers in peace time ; and in war would expand at once into Officers Training Corps, in addition to their duties of maintaining law and order locally. None of these men should be wasted in the ranks as was so often done—in the Honourable Artillery Company and London-Scottish, for instance—in the early days of the late war. In the Industrial Corps a fair percentage should belong to the Army in India Reserve of Officers and in favourable cases, such as the Cossipore Artillery, a service unit battery or company should be raised and maintained on a basis of limited liability for the individual, e.g., for two years, out of say 10 years' service the man volunteering for this unit should be liable for general service on mobilization. As regards the Railways, strategic lines, such as the East Indian Railway, can release officers more slowly and sparingly than others, still there would be a percentage available for engineer service overseas. There would be few, if any, rank and file from these units available ; the Indianization of the Railways has had a marked effect on the Railway Battalions in this respect."

"On such lines much might be done to meet the desire of the Government of India to provide a reserve of officers in India in case of war. It must be admitted, however, that this will not help towards the provision of a reserve for the rank and file. Personally I am unable to see any reservoir from which to draw ; the Jute trade alone can as I have suggested provide a few, but the white man who works with his hands in India never has been numerous and does not appear to be increasing."

With the desire of the Committee to remove all distinctions and cause of jealousy between the Indian Territorial Force and the Auxiliary Force the Governor in Council has every sympathy, but the safety of the province must override such considerations. There is at present no Territorial Force in Assam and it must be many years before such a force of any military value can be brought into being. The only military forces in Assam besides the Auxiliary Force is one battalion of the regular army and five battalions of Assam Rifles, all stationed in the hill districts and frontier areas. If the Auxiliary Force were called out for general military service there would be no margin for the protection of the province against internal trouble.

(4) The question of the creation and training of urban units does not arise in this province where there are no large towns.

Creation and training of Urban Units.

(5) The Committee are of opinion that unless members of the Indian Territorial Force undergo a period of three months of continuous training in the first year and of two months every year thereafter, they will be of no value as a second line of defence. This is a military question on which this Government are not competent to express an opinion, but the Governor in Council does not believe that men will enlist in the Indian Territorial Force on these terms in this province in any numbers.

Extended training of the Indian Territorial Force.

(6) The Governor in Council expresses no opinion on these recommendations.

Auxiliary Force and urban units not to receive pay for periodical parades.

(7) and (8) The Committee's remarks on this subject are confined to the Advisory Committees for the Indian Territorial Force. The Governor in Council has no experience of the working of these Committees and refrains from commenting on the proposals. There are in existence two Committees each consisting of five members for the Auxiliary Force in Assam, one in the Surma Valley and one in the Assam Valley, but this Government are not in a position to say whether those Committees have been of much practical use.

Constitution, duties and functions of Advisory Committees
Responsibilities of Local Governments

(9) The Committee's proposals on this subject are accepted.

Conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force

(10) The Governor in Council doubts the wisdom of inserting in the Auxiliary Force Act and the Indian Territorial Force Act a provision making it a penal offence for employers to impose disabilities on employees who belong to the non-regular forces, but His Excellency in Council has no knowledge of how this works in Australia.

Penalisation of employers who impose disabilities on employees belonging to the non-regular forces.

(11) The Governor in Council agrees that the strictest precautions are required for the safe custody of arms, and that generally such arms should not be left in the personal custody of the members of any unit but should be kept in armouries or arsenals. An exception to this general rule must, however, be made in the case of those members of the Auxiliary Force who live at a distance from their headquarters. The majority of the members of this Force in Assam are scattered over the province in isolated places, and if in the event of any internal trouble they are required to rally at any centre they must be in a position to arrive at the rallying point armed. The delay involved in their having to go to the headquarters armoury to obtain their arms would be fatal. Moreover, individuals or small parties making long journeys without arms to the rallying point would be in grave danger. The subject of the effective guarding of armouries is one on which much correspondence has passed between this Government and the military authorities, and the present arrangements cannot be said to be altogether satisfactory.

Custody of arms.

(12) The Governor in Council is unable to agree to the recommendation that once the Local Government has given permission to an officer to join either the Auxiliary or the Indian Territorial Force the orders of the military authorities will be paramount in the event of embodiment of the Force. The Government of Assam have hitherto, so far as the Auxiliary Force is concerned, endeavoured to induce all their officers to join, acknowledging the weight of the reason given in paragraph 26 (h) of the Committee's Report. But it would clearly be impossible to allow officers like Deputy Commissioners and Superintendents of Police to abandon their regular posts at a time when exceptional duties would fall on them. If Government servants are to join these Forces the Government of Assam must insist on their consent being obtained before any officer is called out for military service.

Enrolment of Government servants

5 I am to annex extracts from notes recorded by the Hon'ble Ministers on this reply. The Governor in Council does not desire to comment on these notes, beyond recalling the fact that the Assam armies of a hundred years ago had to face invaders from Burma rather than Bengal. The part played in the Great War by the Rabhas, Kacharis and other races who enlisted and were trained in the local battalions will always be a matter of pride to Assam. It may be, as the Hon'ble Minister for Education declares, that their example will inspire the less martial races, but of this there have so far been no indications.

Note recorded by the Hon'ble Minister for Local Self-Government.

I agree with the recommendations of the Committee entirely. I would in addition insist that the Universities should by their regulations make it obligatory on every undergraduate, subject to medical advice, to join the University Training Corps.

Assam indeed has no recent military traditions, but we need not despair. Given proper facilities and encouragement, the proper spirit will be forthcoming.

Eagerness for military training will be the acid test of our fitness for self-Government. To the extent to which we respond to the call, we shall show ourselves worthy of the goal promised to us.

Incidentally this might moderate the zeal of those who cry for immediate full self-government in season and out of season.

(Sd.) P. C. DUTTA.

18th June 1925.

Note recorded by the Minister for Education.

With the whole of the reply, except that proposed for the Educational institutions, I agree.

I am for opening military training to our youths, and during the Great War, somewhere in 1915 or 1916, I moved a resolution in the local Council to arrange training centres in Assam, particularly at Gauhati, where a very crowded and enthusiastic meeting asking for volunteers for military training was successfully convened. I cannot forget the enthusiasm of our college boys in that meeting

I am confident that if University Training Corps are started in our two colleges, very strong contingents could be formed.

For the schools, I will content myself with military drill without weapons, supplementing the boy scout movement.

I have a quarrel with the phrase and Hon'ble Minister (L. S.-G.) that Assam has no recent military traditions. Assam came last under British possession of the Provinces of India Till a hundred years ago, they had their own army, an army that showed its mettle against invasions from Bengal. Even now, in the last war, contingents of Jharuas, Ravas, Kacharis, were under fire both in the Western Frontier and Mesopotamia. If the Bhadralog classes of Assam were not barred from military service, they too would have followed their illiterate brothers.

The ultimate aim of the Committee's recommendations being the creation of a national army, it is my deliberate opinion that our graduates and undergraduates—who are now fighting for a clerkship with a paltry pittance—will be attracted in large numbers and they will form a more efficient army.

(Sd.) M. SAADULLA.

The 18th June 1925.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras, No. 610, dated the 22nd June 1925.

Recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee—Your letter No. A.-31794-1 (A.G.) Organization, dated 9th April 1925.

The Government of India have drawn attention to those proposals in which it appears to them that the Local Governments will have a special interest, but have also invited the Local Government to express an opinion on any other matter arising out of the report if they desire to do so.

2. I am now to convey to you the final conclusions of the Madras Government after the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Southern Command, had been consulted with reference to their provisional conclusions.

3. Expansion and development of the University Training Corps.—The Local Government see no objection other than financial to the unlimited expansion of the University Training Corps provided that any members of the Corps, who are inefficient or show a lack of sufficient interest in it, are removed from the Corps without delay There should, however, be no compulsion as it is necessary to test the willingness to undergo training and to undertake the eventual obligations involved in joining the corps. While the Local Government recognise the desirability of developing the technical units in view of the fact that reinforcements for such units in the regular army will be almost certainly required at an early stage in the event of an outbreak of war, they consider that the real issue will be the extent to which the classes who have demanded these extended opportunities will evince a readiness to enter the combatant ranks and not only miscellaneous and non-combatant services

4. Liability for general military service.—The Local Government agree that there should be a common liability for the Indian Territorial Force and the Auxiliary Force as proposed by the Committee; the University Training Corps should not be subject to any liability for actual military service or be called upon to deal with internal disturbances. If, however, semi-trained troops are not to be used in the case of internal disturbances, it is essential that the Madras Presidency should not be denuded of its proper complement of regular troops.

5. Creation and training of Urban Units.—The Local Government accept the Committee's proposals and see no objection to an attempt to form urban units. The formation of urban units should be undertaken by degrees; the Government suggest that a beginning should be made in Madras and, if the movement is successful there, it may be extended to other towns later.

Technical units may be formed but, as stated above, the Local Government consider that what has to be tested is willingness to join the combatant ranks.

6 Extended training of the Indian Territorial Force (Provincial) Units.—The Local Government fear that the proposal to expand the training of provincial units on the lines suggested by the Committee may seriously affect recruitment; but notwithstanding the difficulties pointed out the Local Government are prepared to give a trial to the Committee's recommendations as they recognise that the Territorial Force should receive more intensive training than at present. Propaganda will be necessary to encourage the right class of persons to join it. The old military families should be induced to take an interest in it, and every large landholder should be induced by an appeal to his patriotism and to his sense of public duty to recruit for the force. Platoons formed by such landholders should be commanded by officers of the land-holding class carefully selected with reference to their character and status.

7. Pay for periodical parades.—The Local Government agree with the Committee that the members of the Auxiliary Force and of urban units of the Indian Territorial Force should not receive pay for periodical parades, but only allowances on a sufficient scale to prevent any individual member losing pecuniarily by attendance at such parades.

8. Constitution, duties and functions of Advisory Committees.—The Local Government accept the Committee's recommendations on this head. Military opinion and experience must be largely represented on the committees if they are to function at all.

9. Responsibilities of Local Government.—The Local Government accept the Committee's proposals that, before any new unit is raised, their concurrence should be obtained and its composition should be determined on their advice given after consultation with the local advisory committee and the local military authorities.

10. Conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force.—The Local Government consider that respectable and selected subjects of friendly European and American nations should be permitted, if they so desire, to undertake obligations towards the country in which they live. In other respects the Local Government accept the recommendations of the Committee.

11. Preliminary military training in schools.—The Local Government will give the suggestions made by the Committee their careful consideration. While physical training in schools is an excellent thing if intelligently conducted, the Government doubt whether it fosters military instincts ; they also doubt whether it is necessary or desirable directly to foster militarism in schools and would prefer to develop physical training and to encourage the scout movement which is already very popular in mufassal schools in this Presidency. They consider that the establishment of cadet corps should wait until some experience is gained of the progress made by the main movement for the establishment of the Indian Territorial Force.

12. Penalisation of employers.—The Government are not in favour of the proposals made by the Committee for the penalisation of employers who impose disabilities on employees belonging to the non-regular forces. They would prefer so far as the Auxiliary Force is concerned to rely on the influence of the Chambers of Commerce and of the more public-spirited employers. As regards Indian employers the Local Government would, at any rate at first, test their professions of patriotism by leaving them entirely untrammelled. Any attempt to penalise employers, as suggested by law, would probably be found to be of little use owing to difficulties in its administration and it might by arousing resentment prejudice employers against the movement.

13. Custody of Arms.—The Local Government accept the recommendations of the Committee.

14. Enrolment of Government servants.—The Local Government can allow Government servants to enter only the Auxiliary Force and the urban units of the Territorial Force. They cannot, without incurring considerable public expenditure and administrative dislocation, permit their officers to be absent for the long periods of training proposed for provincial units. The loyalty and patriotism of Government servants ought not to be open to question, but the fact remains that, as few Government servants could be spared for mobilization, the obligations undertaken by them would not be real ; they would be aware of this and their presence in provincial units would give a false impression of the results obtained.

15. Rifle clubs.—The Government agree with the Committee that it is desirable to establish rifle clubs where proper arrangements for the effective protection of arms and ammunition exist. Where this cannot be assured the establishment of miniature rifle clubs may be considered.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, No. 5003, dated the 1st July 1925.

In reply to your letter No. A.-31794—1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, I have the honour to forward my opinion on each matter detailed in the annexure thereto * * * * No reply has yet been received by me from the Superintendent of Education, Delhi, on the recommendation in 26 (a). * * * *

(e) 28 (v)	...	I agree.
(f) 28 (ix)	...	There is in Delhi an Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee but no I. T. F. Committee. The existing Committee does not actually function. I doubt if the proposals for the extension of the functions of the Committees would put any life into them : unless the military members were empowered and instructed to convene the Committees at stated intervals, say once a month, and record regular proceedings. There would be no I. T. F. Committee in Delhi unless urban companies were raised and even so the unit Committee would be the Provincial Committee.
26 (d)	...	Subject to the above I agree.
(g) 28 (ix) 24 (IV) (i) (b)	...	I accept this.
(h) 25 (iv) (i)	...	I agree.
(i) 26 (a)	...	I am making enquiries from the Superintendent of Education.
(j) 26 (f)	...	I agree.
(k) 26 (g)	...	From the civil point of view there is no objection to this.
(l) 26 (h)	...	The principles suggested are appropriate.
(m) Annexure B. I.	...	I agree.
(a) 28 (i)	...	I accept this.
28 (viii)	...	I agree as to the U. T. C.
		I agree that the possibility of raising urban companies in Delhi should be explored and such companies if possible should be raised. I do not think that we can touch the technical units in Delhi at present.
(b) 28 (ii)	...	I accept this.
(c) 28 (iii)	...	An urban company would at first have to admit untrained educated men, but as soon as recruits from the U. T. C. become available they should be preferred ceteris paribus to new untrained men and if necessary slack men of the original recruits should be compelled to make way for the U. T. C. recruits. The training of urban companies should be the same as that for the U. T. C. if that is possible and in Delhi they should form part of the same unit. The liability for service in the urban companies should be that of the I. T. F.
24 (v) (i) (b)	...	I agree.
(d) 28 (iv)	...	There is no provincial unit in Delhi but prima facie the period of training is at present insufficient.

Letter from the Home Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 1153-S.—Mily., dated the 1st July 1925.

I am directed by the Governor in Council to forward for the intermediate information of the Government of India a copy of Punjab Government letter No. 1040-S., dated 27th June 1925, addressed to the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, and to say that any modification of the conclusions of the Governor in Council which may be found necessary on receipt of the reply of the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, will be communicated later.

Copy of a letter from the Home Secretary to the Government, Punjab, to the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, No. 1040-S., dated the 27th June 1925.

I am directed to address you as desired in paragraph 3 of the Government of India, Army Department, letter No. 31794 of the 9th April 1925, of which a copy was sent to you through the Adjutant-General in India, and to say that the Governor in Council has delayed consulting you till he had received the opinions of Commissioners and other officers.

2. The Punjab Government find little to criticize in the Committee's report, which does not suggest any far-reaching changes in the existing constitution of the two forces. They feel some doubt regarding the probability of the growth of the urban or educated corps, unless indeed this is stimulated by recruitment for sectional or partisan reasons. But the correctness of this anticipation may be left to the test of experience. The Auxiliary Force will, if the Committee's proposals are carried out, see some reduction in numbers. The Governor in Council does not see any serious objection to the proposals regarding the class of commissions to be granted in the two Forces.

3. The Committee's proposals regarding obstruction by employers, the enrolment of Government servants and military training in schools are not essential features of their scheme. As regards the first, I am to say that the Governor in Council's opinion will depend on the specification of the disabilities whose imposition will be rendered penal, but that on general grounds he is opposed to the creation of offences which are difficult of proof, and to provisions which will prejudice members of the forces in obtaining employment. As regards the second, Government accepts the recommendations of the Committee but anticipates administrative and financial difficulties in making Government servants available for enrolment more freely than the past. In the Punjab at all events these difficulties are likely to impose a strict limit on enrolment. The Governor in Council appreciates the advantages of inculcating in pupils while at school the principles of patriotic military service but, for reasons connected with the corporate unity of schools, considers it unlikely that for the present anything can be done to give military training to school pupils or to introduce military instructors there. As school staffs gradually become composed of old members of University Training Corps, conditions may, it is hoped, approximate to those obtaining in England.

4. More important than any of these considerations is the question of the custody of arms. From the point of view of this Government, this will be the chief difficulty, and it is a matter which already gives rise to some anxiety. The Governor in Council accepts the recommendations of the Committee in this regard contained in paragraph 26 (g) of their report, and lays great stress on their uniform observation in practice.

Telegram from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Home Department, No. 5655-2, dated the 2nd July 1925.

Your wire A.-31794-4 (A. G.), June 30th. Bombay Government agree generally with recommendations of the Territorial and Auxiliary Forces Committee on following points as set out in annexure to your No. A.-31794—1 (A. G.) of 9th April 1925 :—

(1) Expansion, etc., of University Training Corps.
(2) Creation and training urban units.
(3) Extended training Indian Territorial Force Provincial units.
(4) No pay periodical parades.
(5) Responsibilities of Local Governments.
(6) Preliminary military training in schools.
(7) Custody of arms.
(8) Enrolment of Government servants.
(9) Rifle clubs.

It considers proposals about penalisation of employers inexpedient and impracticable. Views on other points will be telegraphed in a day or two.

Letter from the Deputy Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces, General Administration Department, No. 3429, dated the 3rd July 1925.

I am directed to reply to the Government of India, Army Department, letter No. A.-31794—1 (A. G.), dated April 9th, 1925. In this letter the Government of India, besides asking for the views of this Government on certain definite proposals, invite an opinion on any other matter arising out of the report, and I am therefore to discuss first the Committee's general conclusions on the functions and constitution of the Territorial and Auxiliary Forces.

2. In paragraph 24 (i) (iv) of their report the Committee, for reasons stated in paragraph 6, say that the active section of the Indian Territorial Force should be regarded as—

(i) a means of imparting military and patriotic ideals to the non-martial classes and of familiarising them with military training and service ;

(ii) a second line to the regular army, its functions as such being to relieve regular units of garrison duties, to reinforce the first line in time of war and to be used in aid of the civil power.

The Governor in Council considers that these objects are incompatible. If the provincial battalions are to be really a second line supplementary to the regular army, they must be composed of the same classes as that army. Similarly the University Training Corps cannot " be viewd as a foundation for the national army " or " envisaged as the recognised recruiting ground for the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Indian Territorial Force "—vide paragraphs 9 and 20 of the report. It is not possible to combine an educational scheme with one for the formation of units of real military value. From the military point of view it is indisputable that any addition to strength should be of the highest quality obtainable and that no recourse should be had to inferior material so long as the superior can meet the demand caused by expansion and wastage. During the Great War the Indian army attained a strength in the neighbourhood of 750,000 men. New experiments in recruiting yielded little results. It needed no demonstration to prove that those classes whose recruitment ha l been restricted or stopped before the war owing to a systematic policy aimed at securing improvement in quality could still produce troops of known, if not the highest, value. Many of those classes were hardly touched : at any rate, the number enlisted was but a minute fraction of the number obtainable. It is clear that in case of need a number at least as great as that obtained recently could be secured without recourse to classes of unknown and untried value. It is idle to urge that untapped sources might prove as valuable as those whose worth is known for so risky an experiment could not be attempted in time of war. Apart from this, it is clearly an advantage to have an army as homogeneous as possible. This is a matter of practical consideration and enters largely into the question of drafts, supplies and many other matters which are of vital importance to a commander in the field. It would be a fatal mistake to maintain a second line differing widely in composition from the regular army, and the logical result is that if new classes are to be admitted to the second line, they should have their counterparts already existing in the peace establishments of the regular forces. It will be impossible in war to evade the vexed question of drafting. A second line must fulfil its proper functions and, if it is not to be used to make good wastage, it becomes necessary at once to create another for that purpose. The logical conclusion is that the provincial battalions cannot be used as a training ground for the so-called non-military classes. The present composition of the units supports this conclusion. Many of the non-military classes came forward at the beginning but they rapidly drifted away. Recruits from educated classes, particularly those who had been brought up in towns, found the routine, discipline and hard work of the training distasteful. The expansion of the period of training will make matters worse. The work is harder and more prolonged and young men of the educated classes will find it difficult to abandon their professions for so long a period as eight weeks. The Committee themselves admit that the provincial battalions have failed to achieve their educational purpose. It is better to recognize facts and to confine the active battalions of the Indian Territorial Force to their proper functions of providing a second line to the regular army.

3. It follows that the University Training Corps cannot be viewed as a foundation of the national army, nor as the principal training ground for officers and other ranks. The Governor in Council recognizes the value of the University Training Corps. Much good has been done by its agency already and much more can be accomplished. But he has no belief in its military value so far as the immediate problem of Indian defence is concerned. In this country the number of young men who go to the Universities with an idea of subsequent military service is negligible. For the vast majority the university is simply a road to employment. A young man is expected to earn his living as soon as he has obtained his degree. Competition in the public service and in the professions is already so severe that few, if any, can risk their chance of success by following a secondary calling until they are established in life. The young man of education, moreover, is not in the least likely to take keenly to the life of a sepoy. He may aspire to a commission, but it is highly improbable that he would be able to afford the greater length of time required to fit him for that responsible position. If, as is possible, the requisite numbers could be found from those of independent means, another difficulty arises. The young man of position is very unwilling to face the hard work, both on the parade-ground and in the lecture-room, necessarily demanded of those who would qualify for appointment as officers. It is not likely that the University Training Corps can ever produce in their thousands the men who would be needed in the ranks either of the Indian Territorial Force or of the regular " national " army.

4. The urban units for similar reasons are unlikely to be of much military value. The period of training is too short for that. But if it is accepted that their object is primarily educational and not military, they will be of great utility, and from this point of view the expenditure on them will be justified. They will enable the cadets of the University Training Corps to carry on their military training after they have left the university and adopted a profession. The Governor in Council agrees with the view taken by the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Eastern Command, that these units should generally be technical units as suggested by the Committee in paragraph 16. As their appeal will lie to the educated classes, some definite educational standard, such as the high school (formerly school-leaving) examination, should be a condition for enrolment in the force.

5 But, if the urban units are to be definitely educational, it will not be desirable to impose on them a liability for general service. It may be possible to impose it later, but to insist on it at once would be to handicap the scheme from the start. The object in view is to familiarise the educated classes with military training and service and to impart military and patriotic ideals to the non-martial classes. The liability to general service would frighten many who would otherwise join, and defeat the object aimed at. Moreover this liability would have no real value from the military point of view. The Committee (paragraph 10) recognize that these units could be used for re-inforcements only as individuals and sub-units and not as complete units, and their military efficiency would probably be so low that it would take as long to make them fit for service in the field as to train a unit of new recruits. Their liability should therefore be confined to local service.

6. For these reasons the Governor in Council, while admitting the dual purpose of the Indian Territorial Force, considers that to attempt to achieve this purpose in the same units would be inconsistent and impracticable. He recommends therefore that the second line to the regular army should be provided by the provincial units which should be composed of the same classes as the regular army and should have a liability for general service within and without India. The urban units on the other hand should be regarded as mainly educational : they will provide scope for the patriotism of the educated classes, who for professional and other reasons are unable to undergo the more rigorous training of the provincial units. They should be liable for local service only.

7. In regard to the Auxiliary Force this Government are unable to concur in the more important proposals made by the Committee. These are—

(i) to abolish the pay and allowances now given to members of the force, and (ii) to impose a liability for general service.

In the opinion of many well qualified judges these proposals, if adopted, would entail the virtual abolition of the force. Both would be unpopular and would occasion so many resignations that the force would cease to be of any military value at all. Taking the proposals together, the justice of extending the liability and taking away the compensations is at least debatable. Taking them separately, the first is mainly a matter of finance. Whether the value of the force is worth the expenditure involved is a matter for the military authorities to decide. But even assuming that those whose membership is conditional on the grant of pay are not the best material, they at least swell the numbers of the efficient. Genuine enthusiasm can do little unless backed by numbers. Even among those who agree to serve without pay there will probably be less inclination to attend parades regularly and a consequent loss of efficiency. The second proposal has other disadvantages. Much the same can be said of it as has already been said above in connexion with urban units. In addition the Auxiliary Force is often regarded as a very fine potential reserve for the Indian Army Reserve of Officers, and the presence of its members in the ranks in a time of emergency would be wasteful. Again many of its members are officials and, if they are liable in times of emergency to be removed from their administrative duties without the consent of the Government, the latter might have no option but to refuse to allow them to join the force at all. The force has always been regarded as intended for internal security only, and the Governor in Council protests against any extension of this liability. If this view is accepted, membership of the Auxiliary Force need not be confined to British subjects and the proposal of the Committee in paragraph 25 (I) (IV) to excise sub-section (d) is unnecessary.

8. In discussing the general conditions of service of the four branches of the non-regular force, this Government have already expressed an opinion on several of the points specifically referred by the Government of India. The remaining points will be discussed in the order given in the annexure to the Government of India letter.

(i) Expansion and development of the University Training Corps.

As stated above, the Governor in Council recognizes the good work already done and the great possibilities of the University Training Corps and he entirely endorses the proposal of the Committee that it should be allowed to expand up to its natural limits without any restrictions save that of finance. He considers that it should be officered on the lines of the British Army. As the object of the force is admittedly educational, there is no point in assimilating its constitution to that of the provincial battalions and introducing the Indian commissioned ranks of Subedar and Jamadar. All commissions in this force should be Viceroy's commissions with European titles as in the old Volunteer Force. In this it would differ from the provincial battalions, which must be assimilated to the regular Indian Army for the reasons given previously.

(ii) Urban Units.

For the same reason these units also should be officered on the lines of the British Army. A difficulty arises in connexion with the question of payment. As stated above, the Governor in Council would prefer to maintain the present system of payment in the Auxiliary Force. It is not so easy to justify a similar system in the case of the urban units, but it would be politically undesirable to differentiate between these two branches, which are to have exactly the same training and the same liabilities. For this reason only this Government consider that urban units also should receive pay for their periodical parades, and the time spent by them in camp. As these units should, as proposed by the Committee, be confined to really large towns where military authorities can arrange for the safe custody of arms, the cost may not be very great.

(iii) Annual training of the Indian Territorial Force (provincial units).

The Governor in Council agrees that the training of the provincial units should be ncreased to three months in the first year and two months subsequently.

(iv) Advisory Committees.

These committees have in practice been of little use. A committee of three to serve whole province cannot be expected to achieve anything and no increase of numbers vithin reasonable limits would enable the provincial committee to take over esponsibility for recruiting or perform any other useful function. If there are to be dvisory committees at all, they should be constituted at and for the headquarters of ach provincial and urban battalion, as proposed by the Committee on page 55 of their eport. It has been suggested that these local committees should consist of seven nembers and not five, with a non-official majority, so as to emphasize the fact that the esponsibility for the movement must rest with the public and not with officials. The Jovernor in Council considers this suggestion to be worth consideration. In any case he vould prefer to abolish the provincial committee.

(v) Responsibilities of Local Governments.

The Governor in Council agrees with the proposal to make Local Governments esponsible for determining the composition of new units.

(vi) Preliminary Training in Schools.

In accordance with a resolution passed in the local Legislative Council the Goveinnent have already constituted a committee to consider whether military drill can be ntroduced in schools in conjunction with the present system of physical exercises. This Jovernment's opinion must necessarily depend to a great extent on the report of that ommittee, and the Governor in Council prefers not to anticipate it.

vii) Penalisation of employers who impose disabilities on employees belonging to the non-regular forces.

The Governor in Council considers this proposal impracticable. The introduction of uch a measure would do more harm than good and the position of an employee on iccount of whom an employer had been penalised would be impossible. The Upper India Chamber of Commerce opposes the proposal very strongly.

(viii) Custody of Arms.

The Governor in Council agree with the recommendations of the Committee and considers it essential that arms should be kept in safe custody and not by the members of the force. He is not, however, prepared to cancel the rule existing in this province forbidding the deposit of volunteer arms in police armouries. Consequently where military armouries are not available it will be necessary to build special armouries and to employ extra police to guard them, and the cost of these will naturally fall, as contemplated by the Committee (paragraph 10), on the military budget.

This is a difficult question and the Governor in Council does not feel that the Committee have found a satisfactory solution of it. He is anxious to encourage Government servants to join the non-regular forces, for their own sakes as well as for the sake of the example; and he also recognizes that when a Government servant has been allowed to join, the military authority must be paramount in order to maintain the efficiency of the unit. But the provincial administration must be carried on even in times of grave emergency, and it may be that on such occasions the Government will have most need of the services of its officers. It is partly for this reason that the Governor in Council deprecates the imposition of a liability for general military service on the Auxiliary Force and, to a lesser degree, on the urban units of the Territorial Force. It is also difficult without great expense and administrative inconvenience to allow prolonged absences from duty during the periods of annual training. It is, at best, a partial solution to lay down that Government servant before joining the force must obtain the written permission of the Local Government: it is impossible to forecast what the duties or position of a Government servant will be when an emergency arises at some future time. The Government, however, are prepared to accept this solution in the case of the Auxiliary Force and the urban units, especially if these units have no liability for general service and (with certain exceptions, as for example the Police service) will do its utmost to encourage its servants to join. The conditions of the provincial units are different, and the Governor in Council regrets that he will be unable to allow Government servants to join these units.

(xi) Rifle Clubs.

The Governor in Council concurs with the recommendation of the Committee on this point.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner, North-West Frontier Province, No. 2066-G. N.—12/28/23/25, dated the 4th July 1925.

With reference to your letter No. A./31794/1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, and in continuation of my telegram No. 103/G. N. /12/28, dated the 1st July 1925, I have the honour to forward a copy of my letter No. 971-G. N, dated the 6th June 1925, addressed to the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, and to say that the views expressed therein are those held by me, subject to any modifications on receipt of the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief's opinion.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner, North-West Frontier Province, to the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, No. 971/G. N., dated the 6th June 1925.

I have the honour to refer to the Government of India, Army Department letter No. A.-31794-1 (A. G.), dated Delhi, the 9th April 1925, a copy of which was forwarded to you through the Adjutant-General in India. In that letter my attention was invited to the Report of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee and I was requested to record my views on certain specified questions in consultation with you.

In recording my views it will be convenient to deal, one by one, with the questions referred to in the annexure to the afore-mentioned letter.

Expansion and Development of University Training Corps, 28 (i) and (viii).

I consider that as recruitment is purely voluntary, the recommendations of the Committee may be accepted.

Liability of Auxiliary Force and of I. T. F. for general military service, 28 (11).

I agree with the recommendations of the Committee regarding liability but the question as regards whether these units would be suitable for use as complete units in time of war, or whether they should be used to supply drafts for regular battalions, is one which will have to be decided according to the degree of efficiency to which they eventually attain.

Creation and training of urban units, 28 (iii) and 24 (v) (1) (b).

I agree with the recommendations of the Committee.

Extended training of I. T. F. (Provincial units), 28 (iv).

I agree that the period of training should be extended and suggest that 3 months in the first year and 2 months each year subsequently would be suitable.

Members of Auxiliary Force and I. T. F. not to receive pay for periodical parades, but conditions to be improved, (28) (v).

I agree with the recommendations of the Committee.

Constitution, duties and functions of Advisory Committees, 28 (ix) and 26 (d).

I agree that the duties and powers of the Advisory Committees should be more closely defined and that they should, in particular, be made responsible for recruiting and influencing public opinion in favour of the scheme.

Responsibilities of Local Governments, 28 (ix) and 24 (iv) (i) (b).

I agree with the recommendations of the Committee.

Conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force, 25 (iv) (i).

As there is no unit of the Auxiliary Force in this Province, the point does not at present arise, but I am generally in favour of the recommendations of the Committee.

Preliminary Military training in Schools, 26 (a).

I concur generally in the Committee's recommendations but there may be financial difficulties.

Penalisation of employers who impose liabilities on employees belonging to non-regular forces, 26 (f).

I agree that legislation on the lines proposed would be desirable.

Custody of arms, 26 (g).

I agree but would suggest that, at first, armouries should be in the charge of regular units.

Enrolment of Government servants in Auxiliary and Territorial Forces, 26 (h).

I agree generally but propose to emphasize that it will be very difficult for the Local Government to give permission for civil servants to join in the Frontier Province where military operations always involve a great increase of work in civil offices.

Rifle clubs, Annexure B. I.

I agree that rifle clubs would be useful provided the military authorities can make suitable arrangements for storing the rifles and ammunition and for checking the expenditure of the latter.

Owing to the delay in obtaining local opinions regarding these points I fear that it will not be possible to reply to the Government of India's letter by the 6th June, but in order that a reply may be communicated to them without further delay, I should be much obliged if you would kindly furnish me with an expression of your opinion on the points raised as soon as may be practicable.

Letter from the Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Home Department, No. 5655-II, dated the 6th July 1925.

I am directed to reply to Government of India letter No. A./31794/1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, dealing with the recommendations of the Committee on the Territorial and Auxiliary Forces. In my telegram No. 5655-II, dated the 2nd July 1925, I have already indicated those points of detail referred to in the annexure to your letter under reply on which this Government is in agreement with the recommendations of the Committee.

These are (1) the expansion and developments of the University Training Corps, (2) the creation and training of urban units, (2) the extended training of the Indian Territorial Force (Provincial units), (4) members of the Auxiliary Force and of urban units of the Indian Territorial Force not to receive pay for periodical parades, (5) constitution, functions and duties of Advisory Committees, (6) responsibilities of Local Governments, (7) preliminary military training in schools, (8) custody of arms, (9) enrolment of Government servants in Auxiliary and Territorial Forces, (10) Rifle clubs. Regarding the proposed legislation for the penalisation of employers, I am to say that this Government consider such a measure inexpedient and impracticable. These, I am to say, are regarded by this Government as points of detail, some, no doubt important, but none touching on the major questions of policy such as are raised by the remaining terms of reference in the annexure, viz, the question of the liability of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces for general service. I am to treat of the Territorial and Auxiliary Forces separately.

The suggestion of the Committee, so far as it concerns the Territorial Force, appears to be based on a view of the function of that Force with which this Government is unable to agree. At the outset the Committee very properly lay stress on the dual function of the Territorial Force in India—educative and military—but their concrete proposals, save in so far as these affect the University Training Corps, are based exclusively on military considerations. This Government is prepared to concede that so far as concerns the provision of a practical second line to the Indian Army, of immediate potential use, the proposals of the Committee are unexceptionable and that if the military budget of India is not to be burdened with training units which are not likely to prove in the early future of any practical use in emergency, then no units should be embodied which are not liable for general service. At the same time it must record its opinion that to adopt this policy would, so far as this Presidency at least is concerned, result in one important respect in a fiasco which will react most unfavourably on the credit of Government in India. The imposition of liability for general service on those units which are recruited from the Indian races and classes which have for centuries constituted the warlike forces of India would probably have little effect on recruitment and I am to say that with regard to the Provincial Units this Government accepts the views of the Committee. But those other races described by the Committee as non-martial in their paragraph 24-I (1) would, in the opinion of this Government, refuse to accept any such liability. The new urban battalions would never materialise and in Bombay at least the existing battalions would be seriously depleted if they were not absolutely extinguished. The Committee state their belief that "Public opinion if properly informed" would be in favour of the proposals. It is possible that it may be so—but this Government gravely doubts that the "Public opinion" will be that of persons who will not expect to be called on to serve and will not find any reflection in the figures of recruitment. The realisation by the Parsi Battalions in Bombay of the actual nature of their liabilities under the Territorial Forces Act has had a considerable effect on their keenness and efficiency and has raised a clamour in the public press which has only been stilled pending the report of the Committee. If that be the case with the only urban community in the Presidency which has shown any aptitude for military training and which has by its position in the society of the Presidency been practically forced into fitting itself for self-defence, there is in the opinion of this Government no likelihood whatever of other communities being found willing to take on themselves at present any liability which involves a prospect of actual warfare, save in the immediate defence of their homes. The political effect would be disastrous. The blame for failure would not be put on the lack of martial ardour among those affected. It would be laid on the shoulders of Government, who would be told that they have once more produced a scheme which while professing to satisfy popular claims postpones indefinitely the demand of the educated classes of India for military training.

The aguments of the Committee in their paragraph 11 are based on an a priori psychology which ignores facts and which forgets the importance of what they call "make-believe". The Parsi Company of the Auxiliary Force in Bombay with a limited local liability are keener and more efficient than the territorial battalions drawn from the same community. It is probable that few of the Territorial Forces in England ever envisaged the prospect of seeing active service, but the spirit of emulation in a manly art kept them keen and efficient. The first thing to be done is to arouse this spirit. The Committee appear to forget that they are dealing—in their proposals regarding urban battalions—with youths in whom the instinct even for manly games and physical exercises is in its infancy. The considerations which they apply to the University Training Corps in their paragraph 8 apply with practically equal force to the proposed urban battalions. Neither of them need be expected for many years to come to be of great or indeed of any military value, but this fact does not, in the view of this Government, give any ground for the conclusion of the Committee that "it would be useless to create the urban units if owing to their limited liability they were not available for service in time of emergency at the discretion of the military authorities". The argument has, in view of the nature of the problem, as little validity as if it were applied to School Cadet Corps and is a direct negation of the view already enunciated by them that the educative value of these forces is the first of their purposes (paragraph 6). Nor is it certain that even on the basis of limited liability such units would be entirely useless. It would be possible to secure an adequate number of recruits for such urban units if their liability was limited to the duties of relieving the regular army of the garrison, to the maintenance of internal security and to other less exacting duties.

Apart from this potential value, this Government would strongly press the view that the executive value of these battalions justifies expenditure though the fruits of such expenditure may not be reaped even in this generation and that to a wider vision it would appear that it would be of profit to incur expenditure even in merely teaching and educating the members of the urban battalions in military science. The budget expenditure of the regular army in 1924-25 was 58 crores. The expenditure on the Territorial Force in the same year was 33 lakhs and on the Auxiliary Force was 77 lakhs. In the opinion of this Government, the considerations which I have already set out indicate that in so far as the Territorial Force is concerned there is room for a considerable expansion of expenditure. If that cannot be provided from within the present limits of the army budget it is imperative that it should be found from some other source.

It appears to the Governor of Bombay in Council essential to attract, in the first instance, as many recruits as possible to the second line Forces. When such recruits have realised from their military training, the necessity of a second line of defence accepting a liability to serve overseas, more and more will be prepared to voluntarily accept the liability to such service; but until they have been trained to a full appreciation of the necessity of such a liability as set forth so clearly in the report, the Governor of Bombay in Council would view with grave concern the acceptance of the recommendation by the Committee for the imposition of any such liability.

The Governor of Bombay in Council would therefore suggest that the conditions of service for the urban units of the Indian Territorial Force should be made the same as those for the Auxiliary Force under the Auxiliary Forces Act of 1920, and that the conditions for the provincial battalions should remain as at present laid down in the Indian Territorial Forces Act of 1920.

Turning to the Auxiliary Force, I am to say that the information of this Government is to the effect that the imposition of liability to general service would be attended by a grave risk of the depletion of the existing units. It cannot accept the view that it should be looked on as "a second line to the British Troops in India" to be used presumably in the same way as second line troops raised in Great Britain. As pointed out by the Committee it is an organisation of peculiar nature with a definite function. It is in no way analogous to the territorial battalions of the Indian Army. Many of its members in Bombay are men engaged in civil activities which in war would be of vital importance—such as shipping and export, and to attempt to mobilise the local forces as units for employment on general service would be impossible. Experience has shown that in an emergency as many of the members of the Auxiliary Forces as can be spared from their civil activities will come forward and this Government is of opinion that it would be well to leave the present position undisturbed. No cry has ever been raised to assimilate the conditions of service to those of the provincial units of the Territorial Force. The cry of racial discrimination has been raised by those who if they join at all will join the urban battalions and has indeed been raised by those more often than not as an explanation or excuse of their own failure to join the Territorial Force. If the proposals of this Government with regard to the urban battalions are accepted the liabilities of the two forces will be the same and the proposal which appears to be based mainly on political grounds will be unnecessary.

With regard to the proposals of the Committee regarding conditions of eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force [25 (iv) (1)] this Government agrees with the proposals of the Committee, and if its proposals regarding the urban units are accepted would be willing to delete the reservation proposed and to see the present members of the Auxiliary Force transferred to the Territorial Battalions.

With reference to paragraph (iv) (c), I am to say that this Government is of opinion that the conditions of service (rations, uniform, etc.), should, for urban battalions, be such as to be suitable to the ordinary habits of the members of the force.

Telegram from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 6584-P., dated the 6th July 1925.

Your letter dated 25th June, No. 221 and your telegram dated 30th June, No. 31794. Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee. Local Government deprecate proposal to penalise employer as being calculated injure recruitment. Local Government accept view that the creation of new units should require Local Government's concurrence. On larger question Local Government not yet been able to obtain advice of community concerned and any of the views now formed are liable to reconsideration. University Corps proposal generally acceptable but must depend on the success of the efforts to make the Territorial Force an efficient reality. Great difficulty apparent in the Committee's attempt to fulfil both objects of Territorial Force, paragraph 6 and proposal to fulfil second, likely to destroy first. Attempts to convert Auxiliary Force into second line for British troops likely to destroy force and deprive Local Government of its assistance in internal commotion. Seems better to regard it as Officers' Training Corps rather than second line.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 1194-P.D., dated the 21st July 1925.

I am directed to refer to Army Department letter No. A.-31794-1 (A. G.), dated the 9th of April 1925, calling for an opinion on the recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee, and to submit the opinion of the Government of Bengal on the recommendations affecting military training in schools and the expansion and development of University Training Corps.

2. These recommendations may be summarised as follows:—

(i) Military training should commence wherever possible in schools [paragraph 28 (i) and paragraph 8];

(ii) The University Training Corps should be regarded as the foundation-stone of the national army and no artificial limit should be set to the expansion of the Corps. [Paragraphs 8, 9 and 28 (i), (ii) and (v).] Detailed recommendations for the constitution of the University Training Corps are made in Chapter III of the Report.

Military training in Schools.—On the important question of the introduction of military training in schools the Governor in Council finds himself widely at variance with the recommendations of the Committee. He is of opinion that the Committee have not sufficiently taken count of the essential difference between the principles of school drill and military training, which is now well recognised alike by educational and military authorities. The normal leaving age for boys in schools in Bengal may be taken to be 16 or 17; and for boys of this age to substitute military discipline and training for properly organised school drill would, in his opinion, be a completely mistaken policy. Military drill and discipline have a specific purpose, to train young men of good physique to better physique and endurance, and to teach them to carry out movements necessary in war. Advanced military work is interesting but elementary military drill must inevitably be the reverse to school boys. School drill has its own specific purposes, to give all children of varying physique better health, strength and mental and bodily alertness. It is the declared policy of the Government of Bengal to promote physical drill in Government and aided schools and the Governor in Council would be most reluctant to depart from this in favour of military training, nor does he believe for a moment that public opinion would support such a measure. The patriotic and educational aims which underlie the proposal to introduce military drill and discipline into schools can in his opinion be equally well met with less expense, and with more general advantage to the boys, by the Boy Scout movement, which has the support of the Governor in Council.

University Training Corps.—The Governor in Council is in general agreement with the views of the Committee as to the position which should be held by the University Training Corps. He has not obtained the opinion of the Calcutta University in the matter, and it is possible that the views of that body may be found to differ as to some of the details, though he feels some confidence that they would concur in the general conception of the function of the Corps. With this general qualification I am to submit the following views seriatim on the proposals formulated in Chapter III, paragraph 23, of the Report.

(I) Functions and Objects.—Some difficulty is found in understanding the exact intention of the recommendation that the University Corps should in time develop into a potential source for the supply of candidates for commissions in the regular Indian Army. If the proposal is that a commission in the University Corps should ipso facto, or under certain definite restrictions, qualify for a commission in the Indian Army, there is no doubt that the popularity of the University Corps would be greatly enhanced. It appears essential, however, in order to avoid exaggerated expectations, that the Government of India should define exactly what status membership of this Corps will give vis-a-vis the regular army and what process of infiltration from the Corps to the commissioned ranks of the regular army will be accepted.

(II) Liability of service.—The Governor in Council agrees that the University Training Corps should have no liability for actual military service.

(III) Organization.—The Governor in Council considers that this is a matter for the decision of the military authorities.

(IV) Composition. (i) Men.—The Governor in Council would accept this recommendation that all members of a University, whether Indian or Anglo-Indian, should be eligible for enrolment; but he presumes that this would not debar a member of the University eligible for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force from enrolment in that force, rather than in the University Training Corps, should he prefer that alternative.

(IV) (ii) Officers.—(a) The Governor in Council views with some doubt the suggestion that students should in any circumstances be appointed officers in the corps. He is inclined to think that commissioned rank should be reserved for teachers, who by their age and position are most suited to the task and are alone likely to remain as officers of the Corps long enough to justify the grant of commissions to them.

(IV) (ii).—(b) The observations made against paragraph IV (i) would apply.

(V) Training.—The proposals seem appropriate, but the matter is primarily one for the decision of the military authorities.

(V) (ii) Training of Officers.—This matter again is one primarily for the consideration of the military authorities, but the Governor in Council would observe that the scale of training proposed is one which could only be undertaken by a member of the teaching staff already settled in the university and which no student could be expected to undertake compatibly with the interests of his studies.

(VI) Expansion.—The Governor in Council is in entire agreement with the recommendation that the University Training Corps should be allowed to expand up to its natural limits. At the same time he feels bound to point out that unless far more liberal provision is made in the Army Budget for the Territorial Force than has been made in the past, the financial limits of expansion will be reached long before the natural limits. He fears that the principle however laudable is likely to remain in practice little more than an expression of an unattainable ideal.

(VII) Racial distinction.—The Governor in Council would accept the recommendation that all members of a University or College who are British subjects should be eligible for enrolment in the University Training Corps, subject to the proviso already mentioned that this should not debar any member of the University from enrolment in the Auxiliary Force should he be eligible for this as the Act now stands.

(VIII) (a) and (b). General.—The Governor in Council would be prepared to invite the co-operation of the University authorities in carrying out these recommendations.

Paragraphs IV (ii) (c) and VIII (c) and (d) of Chapter III raise questions of technical details on which no expression of opinion by the Government of Bengal would appear to be necessary.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 7235-P., dated the 27th July 1925.

I am directed to refer to Army Department letter No. A.-31794-I (A.G.), dated the 9th of April 1925, calling for the opinion of the Government of Bengal on the recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee, and to communicate the views of this Government on the recommendations affecting the custody of arms and the promotion of rifle clubs. I am to observe at the outset that in both these matters the Committee have avoided any differentiation between the Auxiliary and the Territorial Force, in accordance with their declared policy of treating the two on similar lines. It is difficult, however, to consider recommendations on these two matters, which involve the security of fire-arms and ammunition, without bearing in mind the different conditions and environment in which members of the two Forces habitually live.

2. Custody of arms, paragraph 26 (g) of the Report.—Generally speaking, the Governor in Council agrees that it is a sound principle that arms should be kept in the armoury of the unit, but there is need for considerable elasticity in following this principle in the case of units such as those of the Auxiliary Force in Calcutta which parade before office hours. Members of such units must almost necessarily keep their rifles at their own houses during the training season, because they have to appear on parade with them at a very early hour, and cannot be expected to put up with the waste of time which would be caused by their attending daily at the armoury to draw their arms before proceeding to the parade ground. There are no similar units in the Territorial Force at present, but should the proposed urban units come into existence, it does not follow that they can be allowed to keep their rifles in their own houses for similar reasons. In most cases, members of such units would live in quarters which afford less security for the custody of their rifles; and it is possible, therefore, that they would have to be required to draw their rifles daily from the armoury. Such considerations, however, clearly involve a knowledge of local detail, and I am to suggest that the custody of arms is rather a matter for the orders of the General Officer Commanding the district, who is aware of local conditions, than for any hard and fast rule issued by army headquarters.

3. Rifle clubs. Annexure B I of the Report.—The Committee recommend that every facility should be given for the permanent retention of a certain number of arms and rounds of ammunition by units wherewith to raise rifle clubs during the non-training period. It is by no means clear whether these rifle clubs would be open under certain conditions to persons other than members of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces; and it is difficult, therefore, to determine their exact scope. The Government of India are aware of the special care which has to be exercised among the mixed population of a large town such as Calcutta, both as to the custody of fire arms and as to the class of persons who should be encouraged to learn their use. It may be said further, without any unnecessary discrimination between the two forces, that these considerations apply especially to the section of the public from which the Territorial Force would find most of its recruits. The Governor in Council would deprecate, therefore, the promotion of rifle clubs, even in close association with the units of this force, without some measure of control by the civil authorities. He would suggest that this could be provided automatically if the formation of such rifle clubs, though using service arms and ammunition, required a licence from the Local Government in terms mutatis mutandis similar to those of Form XV under Rule 32 of the Indian Arms Rules, 1924. No fees should, however, be payable for the special form of licence suggested, in the case of rifle clubs attached to units of the Territorial or Auxiliary Force.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 7309-P., dated the 29th July 1925.

With reference to the Army Department letter No. A. 31794-1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, I am directed to refer to the recommendation in paragraph 28 (ii) of the Report of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee dealing with the liability for service of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces. The proposal is to make the liability for service of the Auxiliary Force identical with that of the Indian Territorial Force, thus extending this liability beyond India. The Auxiliary Force would be regarded as a second line to the regular British trops in India, and its units would be organised on the same lines as the regular British units. The Governor in Council considers it essential to examine this proposal independently on its merits as affecting either of the two forces; and I am to submit the following observations on the proposed extension of liability beyond India as affecting the Auxiliary Force.

2. The main object of the extended liability appears to be to place the Auxiliaries on the same basis as the Territorials, as the second line of the British Army in the same way as the Territorials are the second line of the Indian Army. The consideration at once arises whether there is any supply of men in India which can be tapped by the Auxiliary Force in sufficient numbers to make the slightest impression as a second line of British troops. It may be admittted that in an extreme emergency national needs must override private needs, but there is in India no sufficient margin of this material to draw upon as a second line for other than local defence. In such an emergency some troops would still be required for internal security and Auxiliary Force is best adapted for this purpose. With a large portion of the force it would be a waste of material to use them as fighting units rather than as training corps of reserve officers.

If the idea of their being a second line of British troops is abandoned, the only object of an extended liability to service would be the increase of their value as military units if they could be sent to other Provinces for the purposes of internal defence. The Committee in paragraph 14 of their Report admit that the primary basis of the Auxiliary Force is the right to protect individual life and property from possible attack ; the removal of the Auxiliary Force from its local area would strike at the root of this basis and the individual would have to face the possibility of his family and property being left unprotected while he was being used for military reasons elsewhere. This must inevitably affect recruitment to a force which accepts this liability. It is not only the member of the force that is affected, the employer cannot be neglected ; it is right that he should encourage his employees to train for self-defence, and, even in the last resort, for defence of the empire ; but he cannot face the possibility of having his own work ruined because of possible disturbances in other parts of India and he, therefore, cannot be expected to encourage the undertaking of this extended liability.

It is true that the Committee apparently do not contemplate calling out the Auxiliary Force for internal disturbances until the fully disciplined military force has been used up ; but in fact the Auxiliary Force is relied upon as part of the military force to deal with internal commotion ; and if it were not so, and the idea of its being a second line for British troops is abandoned, there remains no reason for the extended liability. In the opinion of this Government the military advantage of the additional mobility of the Auxiliary Force in dealing with disturbances in any part of India would be entirely neutralised by the very large decrease in the force if the extended liability is imposed.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 7430-P., dated the 30th July 1925.

I am directed to refer to the recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee on the following three subjects :—

(1) eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force [paragraph 25 (iv) (i)] ;

(2) payment for periodical parades [paragraph 28 (v)] ; and

(3) penalisation of employers [paragraph 26 (f)].

2. The first of these questions affects only the Auxiliary Force ; and the two latter, though nominally common to the Territorial and Auxiliary Forces, are of practical importance only in relation to the Auxiliary Force. Until the urban units come into existence there is no section of the Territorial Force to which the question of payment for periodical parades would apply, for it is presumed that they would not be made to members of the University Training Corps. Similarly, in the absence of any large class of employees in the Territorial Force, as it exists at present, penalisation of employers is not an issue affecting that Force.

3. Eligibility for enrolment in the Auxiliary Force.—The Committee recommend that sub-section (b) and sub-section (d) of section 4 in the Auxiliary Force Act should be excised, thus excluding from eligibility for the Auxiliary Force persons, not otherwise qualified, who were members of the Indian Defence Force in September 1920, and persons who not being British subjects satisfy the conditions prescribed for enrolment of persons of that class. This recommendation has been generally accepted by the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committees in Bengal ; and the General Officer Commanding, Presidency and Assam District, is of opinion that the conditions for enrolment should be strictly enforced even if a serious drop in numbers ensues in some railway battalions. The Governor in Council observes, however, that the excision of sub-section (d) of section 4 of the Act has been recommended by the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee on the ground that it is "an almost necessary corollary" to their proposal that the liability of the Force should be extended to service beyond the limits of India. In a separate letter the Governor in Council has advanced his reasons for not accepting the recommendation that the liability to service of the Auxiliary Force should be extended in the manner proposed. If this is not done, the question will then arise whether there remains any reason for the excision of sub-section (d) of section 4 of the Act, as it now stands, and thereby excluding from membership of the Auxiliary Force persons who are not British subjects. In a large centre such as Calcutta there may always be expected to be a fair number of persons whose nationality as British subjects is doubtful for one reason or another, or who are definitely nationals of other and friendly countries. If they feel disposed to enrol themselves in the Auxiliary Force, they might prove a useful accession of strength at times of disturbance ; while if not enrolled they would appear to be without any definite status for self-defence at a crisis. The Governor in Council does not wish to attach undue importance to the point, but would suggest that there are grounds for consideration whether any occasion for deleting sub-section (d) of section 4 of the Act will remain if the liability for service in the Auxiliary Force is not extended beyond India

4. Payment for periodical parades.—The Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee for the Calcutta military area are of opinion that the recommendation that payment for parades should be discontinued will not seriously affect the numbers of the richer units, but that it will have a deterrent effect on recruiting and parades in the poorer battalions in that district ; and they recommend that pay and allowances remain as at present, with the additional camp allowance as proposed in Annexure A. II. There would be no objection, however, on the part of the Governor in Council, should the military authorities decide to discontinue payment for daily parades. He believes that a large proportion of the Auxiliary Force in Calcutta would be unaffected but that the charge might operate as a slight discouragement for units recruited from sources which are perhaps of less military value.

5. The Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee for the Calcutta military area further point out that the recommendation for a capitation grant of Rs. 5 for every efficient man, and Rs. 10 for every extra-efficient man is not fully intelligible. If the intention is that this grant should take the place of the training grant, contingent grant and other grants by Government, they are of opinion that it is insufficient and would recommend that the present system should continue. They are in favour of the proposed grant of Rs. 7-8-0 to each man who fires his annual course, which they believe will induce a large number of men to complete their course. The Governor in Council agree with these views.

6. Penalisation of employers.—The general consensus of opinion in Bengal would appear to be against the penalisation of employers who do not permit their employees to join the Auxiliary Force. The Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee for the Calcutta military area and the General Officer Commanding the Presidency and Assam District alike advise against the introduction of such a provision : and the Governor in Council is of opinion that it would be an undesirable measure. The position at present is that employers as a whole are well disposed towards the Auxiliary Force, it being stated in fact some firms in Calcutta have gone to the length of making it a condition of contract that their employees should become efficient members of the Auxiliary Force. The penalisation of employers who place obstacles in the way of the enrolment of their men would therefore have little practical result ; and there would at the same time be an air of conscription about any such provision, which the Governor in Council believes would act disadvantageously on the recruitment for the Auxiliary Force. It is, moreover, a provision of law which it would be exceedingly difficult to frame in terms not open to evasion by any employer disinclined to allow his men to join the Auxiliary Force.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 7557-P., dated the 4th August 1925.

I am directed to refer to Army Department letter No. A.-31794-1 (A.G.), dated the 9th day of April 1925, asking for the opinion of the Local Government on the recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee and to make the following observations on the recommendations affecting the Indian Territorial Force. The recommendations regarding the University Training Corps have been dealt with in a separate letter.

2. Liability for service. Paragraph 28 (ii).—In his letter No. 7309-P., dated the 29th July 1925, the Governor in Council has already advanced the view that the question of liability for service should be considered quite separately for the Auxiliary Force and for the Indian Territorial Force. Once this position is admitted he does not feel that he has any very decided opinion to express on imposing a liability for service beyond India on the Indian Territorial Force. The position at present is that under section 10 of the Indian Territorial Force Act no person embodied in that force shall be required to perform military service beyond the limits of India except under a general or special order of the Governor-General in Council. The Governor-General in Council appreciates the Committee's ideal of making the Territorial Force a means of creating a national desire for patriotic military service and laying the foundation of a national army, though it may be difficult to apply this ideal without qualification to actual conditions in Bengal. He can appreciate that in order to make the Territorial Force in the full sense a second line of defence, and to justify the expenditure which must be incurred on their training up to the standard laid down, there is much to be said for imposing on them a liability for service outside India. At the same time he does not see any reason for modifying the liability for service as laid down in section 10 of the Act at present, and he is inclined to believe that the effect of giving greater prominence to the ultimate liability for service outside India which already exists would be to discourage such enthusiasm as there may be for the Force at present.

3. Urban units. Paragraphs 28 (iii) and 24 (v) (i) (b).—In approaching the recommendations for the constitution of urban units, the Governor in Council finds some difficulty in understanding what the precise object of these units is. It would seem to be the intention of the Committee to tap a source of recruits who do not at present come forward, and to spread the military idea in a class of men who are untouched by the present territorial battalion. The urban units are to consist of educated men, not apparently because it is intended to turn them into administrative or technical units, but merely because the educated classes, it is assumed, do not join the territorials. It is admitted that intensive training of these urban units is impossible and that they, therefore, will prima facie be not so efficient as the territorial unit, but it is apparently hoped to make up for that, firstly, by the fact that they are educated and therefore easier to teach, and secondly, by eventually confining the urban unit to men who have been through the University Corps and, therefore, have a solid grounding before they join the unit.

4. The Governor in Council would be inclined to take the view that this goes considerably in advance of the present necessity of the case. He believes that it is doubtful in the present circumstances whether any money spent on urban units would in fact have the effect of spreading the military idea to new classes, while it is admitted that the urban unit will be even less efficient than the territorial. The question of the development of urban units might, therefore, suitably wait in Bengal until the military idea is somewhat more widely spread in the classes that provide for the territorial force, and until there is a reasonable demand among the educated classes who are unable to spare time for the intensive training, to be furnished with facilities to make themselves partially efficient for military defence by means of special units which are not subject to intensive training. At present there is no sign of any demand of this kind in Bengal, and to provide facilities would not, in the opinion of this Government, create the demand, but would merely be a waste of money in the present circumstances.

5. Provincial units. Paragraph 28 (iv).—The Committee have based their recommendations affecting the provincial units largely on the assumption that this portion of the Territorial Force is drawn or should be drawn from the agricultural classes. The Governor in Council would point out that this assumption differs widely from the actual position in Bengal where recruits for the Territorial Force, even when drawn from the interior, come from certain sections of the educated classes rather than from the bona fide agriculturists. This point would not in itself, however, have much bearing on the increase recommended in the period of training, viz., that this period should be extended from 56 days in the first year and 28 days in the subsequent years to three months and two months, respectively. The Governor in Council can readily understand that the results of the training received at present are unsatisfactory, and that an extension of this period is intrinsically desirable in the interest of a second line of defence; but he fears that in Bengal any such extension would probably have the effect of making the provincial units so unpopular that they would before long cease to exist.

6. Territorial Force Advisory Committees. Paragraph 28 (ix).—In recommending in general terms an expansion in the system of the Indian Territorial Force Advisory Committees and an increase in their responsibilities the Committee have hardly given sufficient prominence to the essential difference between the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee and the Territorial Force Advisory Committee. It is not merely that the latter Committee is limited to two members in addition to the military member, but that under Rule 11 of the Auxiliary Force Rules, 1921, the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee possess certain definite quasi-executive functions which the Territorial Force Advisory Committee do not possess. This rule provides that on several matters such as variations of training, the discharge of enrolled persons, etc., the recommendations of the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee shall be carried into effect by the commanding military authority, provided that, if he disagrees, he may refer the matter to the Local Government. As no such reference appears to have been made in Bengal, it may be taken that the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee do in fact exercise material powers under this rule. This is not the case with the Indian Territorial Force Committee, as Rule 30 of the Indian Territorial Force Rules contains no similar provision requiring the General Officer Commanding the District normally to follow the advise of the Advisory Committee on any class of recommendation. The first question to be faced then in practical consideration of the recommendations affecting the Territorial Force Advisory Committee, is whether they should be given parallel powers to the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee in this respect. On this question the Government of India will presumably be guided largely by the advice of the military authorities and the Governor in Council has no dogmatic opinion to express. He is advised, however, by the General Officer Commanding, Presidency and Assam District, that from the military point of view the Advisory Committee have in the past proved of very little value indeed.

7. He is in agreement with the recommendation for an increase in membership of the Indian Territorial Force Advisory Committee and I am to mention a difficulty which has occurred through the exclusion of officials, as the Act now stands. In a certain case it became impossible to reappoint the President of the Territorial Force Advisory Committee, who was doing useful work in that capacity as a change in the status of one of the Railways had resulted in his becoming technically a Government officer. Should the membership of the Auxiliary Force Advisory Committee be enlarged there would appear to be no reason for the total exclusion of officials other than the military member, and in any case the Governor in Council would suggest that such exclusion should not apply to Government servants in branches of Government service which are not directly responsible for the civil administration. It would certainly be an excellent thing if the Advisory Committee would take a more active interest in recruiting, but the Governor in Council cannot but feel doubtful whether they can be induced to do so, and sees, therefore, some danger of stagnation if the Advisory Committees are given the sole responsibility for this task. He is in agreement with the proposal that new units should be formed only with the concurrence of the Local Government, who would rely largely on the advice of the Territorial Force Advisory Committee.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, No. 4521, dated the 21st July 1925.

In continuation of my letter No. 4103, dated the 1st July 1925, I have the honour to say that Superintendent of Education, Delhi, after consulting the schools in Delhi, reports that the routine of the schools already includes games, drill and indigenous physical exercises under certificated instructors, the instruction being of a non-military type. Scouting, though it is gaining ground, is confined to a very limited number of boys.

2. While agreeing that some advance on the lines suggested by the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee is possible, provided Government is prepared to meet the cost by substantial grants, the Superintendent of Education is averse on educational grounds to military discipline in schools and to the appointment of military pensioners as instructors.

Letter from the Officiating Chief Secretary to the Government of Assam, No. Mily.-194—3752, A. P., dated the 5th August 1925.

I am directed to refer to the correspondence ending with Lieutenant-Colonel Moore's letter No. A.-31794-9-(A. G.), dated the 18th of July 1925, and to say that the Governor in Council has since received the views of * * * the Assam Valley and Surma Valley Branches of the Indian Tea Association, but he does not desire in any way to modify the opinions already expressed in my letter No. 472-C., dated the 19th June 1925.

Letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 10263-P., dated the 19th October 1925.

With reference to the Army Department letter No. A.-31794-1 (A. G.), dated the 9th April 1925, I am directed to refer to the recommendation in paragraph 26 (h) of the Report of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee dealing with the question of the enrolment of Government servants in the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces, and to state, for the information of the Government of India, that the several Departments of this Government have been consulted, and that the general consensus of opinion is that in the uncertainty as to the period and conditions of training which are to be adopted, it is impossible to make any definite commitments about the enrolment of Government servants. The Governor in Council is however of the opinion that if the scale of training suggested by the Committee is accepted, so far from there being any increase in the enrolment of Government servants in this Presidency, it will be necessary to curtail the permission in the case of certain officers, such as police sergeants, whose enrolment at present in the Auxiliary Force it would be difficult to justify on a strict interpretation of the liability incurred even under the present system.

I am to add that this opinion should only be taken as applying to times of normal peace conditions; and in the event of a great national emergency arising, the question would have to be reviewed again on its merits in the particular circumstances, as was done more than once during the recent war. It is impossible however for the Local Government to forecast a policy for the enrolment of Government servants to which it could count on adhering in abnormal conditions.

No. 1.

A Measure passed by the National Assembly of the Church of the England to provide for the dissolution of the legal union between the Church of England and the Church of England in India, and to make provisions consequential thereon.

[23rd November, 1927.]

Whereas it is expedient that the legal union between the Church of England and the Church of England in India shall be dissolved, and that provision should at the same time be made for the last-mentioned Church as proposed to be constituted after the dissolution of the said union :

And whereas a petition to that effect has been presented to the Church Assembly by the General Council of the Church of England in India :

And whereas the Secretary of State in Council of India and the Governor General of India in Council, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the bishops and duly appointed representatives of the clergy and laity of the Church of England in India in Council assembled, have approved the dissolution of such union :

Interpretation

1. In this Measure—

the expression "date of severance" means such day not less than two years or more than three years after the coming into operation of this Measure as the Governor General of India in Council at the request of the General Council shall fix for the dissolution of such union as aforesaid ;

the expression "Indian Church" means, in respect of the period before the date of severance, the Church of England in India, and in respect of the period commencing on the date of severance, the Church of England in India as severed from the Church of England, notwithstanding the adoption by the said Church of any other name or names ;

the expression "rule" includes canon, article, declaration, constitution, and regulation ;

the expression "the rules of the Indian Church" means the ecclesiastical law and the articles, canons, doctrines, rites, rules, discipline and ordinances of the Indian Church existing at the date of the passing of this Measure with and subject to such modification or alteration, if any, as may after the passing of this Measure be duly made therein by the Indian Church ;

the expression "Bishop of Calcutta" means the occupant for the time being of the See of Calcutta, whether or not that See is constituted an archiepiscopal see ; the expression "General Council" means the body recognised as such by the Bishop of Calcutta.

Dissolution of union between the Indian Church and the Church of England.

2. Upon the date of severance the union legally existing between the Church of England and the Church of England in India shall be dissolved, and—

(i) The enactment mentioned in the first column of the schedule to this Measure shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column of the said schedule ;

(ii) The Metropolitan Bishop of the Indian Church shall not, in contemplation of the law, be subject to the general superintendence and revision of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the obtaining of the Royal Mandate to consecrate shall not be necessary in the case of the consecration of a bishop for a charge in India, nor shall the Bishops in Foreign Countries Act, 1841, apply to the consecration of any such bishop, nor shall any bishop of any diocese in England have any jurisdiction over the Indian Church in India ; 5 Vict. C. 6.

(iii) No ecclesiastical court or official of the Indian Church shall have or exercise any coercive jurisdiction ;

(iv) The ecclesiastical law of the Church of England, so far as it exists in India, shall in India cease to exist as law ; and no proceeding by way of rehearing or appeal from any decision, judgment, sentence, degree or other order of any ecclesiastical court or official of the Indian Church shall be entered, admitted, prosecuted, heard or determined in, by, or before any of His Majesty's Courts of Justice in India or elsewhere, any Court of Commissioners delegate in India, or His Majesty in Council ;

(v) The rules of the Indian Church shall be binding on the members thereof for the time being in the same manner as if they had mutually agreed to be so bound, and shall be capable of being enforced in the temporal courts in relation to any property lawfully held on behalf of the said Church or any members thereof in the same manner and to the same extent as if such property had been expressly assured upon trust to be held on behalf of persons who should be so bound.

As in the respects particularly in this section mentioned, so in all other respects the Church of England and the Indian Church shall, as from the date of severance, be legally severed, separate and distinct, and every law and custom shall, except as in this Measure expressly provided, be interpreted and applied accordingly.

Provisions for the constitution of the Indian Church.

3. (1) From and after the coming into operation of this Measure nothing in any Act of Parliament, law or custom, shall prevent the General Council from making amending or repealing rules for the general management and good government of the Indian Church and the property and affairs thereof, whether in respect of the whole of the said Church, or according to provinces or dioceses or other areas, and rules so made may provide for the future making, amending or repealing of rules for the like purposes and prescribe the persons or bodies by whom, or by which, such rules may be made, amended or repealed :

Provided that no rules so made shall come into operation before the date of severance.

(2) From and after the date of severance nothing in any Act of Parliament, law or custom, shall prevent the bishops, clergy and laity of the Indian Church from holding synods, councils or assemblies whether general, provincial, diocesan, or according to other areas, or from electing representatives thereto ; or any such synod, council, or assembly from acting in accordance with the rules of the Indian Church for the time being.

(3) Any rule of the Indian Church made by any synod, council, assembly or officer thereof shall not, after the date of severance, be subject to any legal limitation in respect to scope or effect (whether arising from the operation of an Act of Parliament or otherwise) other than such as would apply to the like rule if made by a voluntary association altogether distinct from the Church of England which should have come into existence on the date of severance :

Provided always that nothing in this section shall be deemed to confer upon the General Council or enable it to confer upon any other person or body of persons any coercive jurisdiction, without prejudice, however, to the operation of the law relating to obligations binding on persons who shall be deemed, in accordance with sub-section (v) of section 2 of this Measure, to have mutually agreed to be bound by any such rule.

Membership of the Indian Church, how proved

4. (1) If for any temporal purpose in connection with this Measure, or if in any proceedings in any temporal court, it shall be necessary to determine whether any person is or at any past date was a member of the Indian Church or of any Church in communion therewith, a certificate under the hand of the Bishop of Calcutta stating that such person is or is not, or was or was not, on a named past date, a member of the Indian Church or of a Church in communion therewith, shall conclusively determine the fact stated therein.

(2) A certificate purporting to be made and signed by the said Bishop shall be deemed to have been made and signed by him until the contrary be shown.

Recognition of General Council.

5. (1) The recognition of the General Council as such by the Bishop of Calcutta shall be sufficiently proved for all purposes by an expression of that recognition in writing under the hand of such Bishop ; and if any question at any future time shall arise as to whether any assembly was or was not the General Council for the purposes of this Measure, whether generally or on a particular occasion, or at a particular time, such question shall be referred to the Bishop aforesaid, and by him finally decided.

(2) (i) A document purporting to be a writing under this section, and to be signed by the Bishop of Calcutta shall be deemed to be such and to have been made and signed by him until the contrary be shown.

(ii) No proceedings of the General Council, in pursuance of this Measure, shall be invalidated by any vacancy in the membership of that Council or by any defect in the qualification or election of any member thereof.

Saving right of Bishops

6. Nothing in this Measure or in any Act of Parliament shall prevent any person who is or has been Bishop of any diocese in India from performing episcopal functions, not extending to the exercise of jurisdiction, in any diocese or reputed diocese at the request of the Bishop thereof.

Date of coming into operation

7. This Measure shall come into operation on a date to be fixed by His Majesty in Council, but no date shall be so fixed unless and until an Act of Parliament is passed providing for the repeal of Part X of the Government of India Act so far as it relates to the Church of England.

Provided that the total period for which the adolescent offender was ordered to be detained in a Borstal school shall not be increased by such removal.

Power to release on license.

12. (1) Subject to the prescribed conditions, the Inspector-General may, on the recommendation of the Visiting Committee, at any time after the expiration of six months from the commencement of the detention of an adolescent offender in a Borstal school, if he is satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that the adolescent offender will abstain from crime and lead a useful and industrious life, discharge him from the Borstal school and grant him a written license in the prescribed form and on the prescribed conditions permitting him to live under the supervision and authority of such—

(a) officer of Government,

(b) secular institution,

(c) religious society, or

(d) responsible person,

as may be approved by the Inspector-General and willing to take charge of the adolescent offender:

Provided that if in any case the Inspector-General does not accept the recommendation of the Visiting Committee under this sub-section, he shall report to Government his reasons for not accepting the recommendation:

Provided also that no adolescent offender shall be permitted by license to live under the supervision and authority of a religious society professing a religion other than the religion of the adolescent offender except with his consent or that of his guardian, if any.

(2) A license under this section shall be in force until the expiry of the term for which the adolescent offender was ordered to be detained in a Borstal school, unless sooner revoked or forfeited.

(3) The period during which an adolescent offender is absent from a Borstal school during the continuance of a license granted to him under this section shall, for the purposes of computing his term of detention in such school, be deemed to be part of that detention.

Revocation of license.

13. (1) Subject to the prescribed conditions, the Inspector-General may at any time, with the approval of the Local Government and shall, at the request of the institution, society or person under whose supervision and authority the adolescent offender has by license been permitted to live, revoke a license granted under section 12, and upon such revocation the adolescent offender shall be detained in a Borstal school until the expiry of the term for which he was ordered to be detained in such school.

The Bengal Borstal Schools Act, 1928.

(Sections 14—16.)

(2) If an adolescent offender removes himself from the supervision of the institution, society or person under which he was by license permitted to live, his license shall be deemed to have been revoked from the date on which he has so removed himself.

Powers of arrest of police.

14. Any Police officer, not below the rank of a Sub-Inspector of Police may, without orders from a Magistrate and without warrant, arrest an adolescent offender who has escaped from a Borstal school or removed himself from the supervision of the institution, society or person under which he was permitted to live by license under section 12, and shall send him, if so arrested, in custody to the Borstal school in which he was last detained.

Transfer of incorrigibles, etc., to prisons.

15. Notwithstanding anything elsewhere contained in this Act, if an adolescent offender detained in a Borstal school—

(a) is reported to the Local Government by the Visiting Committee of such school to be incorrigible or to be exercising a bad influence on the other inmates of the school, or

(b) escapes from the Borstal school or removes himself from the supervision of the institution, society or person under which he was permitted to live by license under section 12, the Local Government may alter the unexpired residue of the term of detention to such term of imprisonment of either description as the Local Government may determine:

Provided that the period of imprisonment shall not exceed—

(a) such unexpired residue, or

(b) the maximum period of imprisonment provided by law for the offence or the failure to give security, as the case may be, in consequence of which the adolescent offender was ordered to be detained in a Borstal school, whichever is less:

Provided further that no such adolescent offender shall be ordered by the Local Government to be punished with rigorous imprisonment unless such imprisonment was provided by law for the original offence or the failure to give security, as the case may be, in consequence of which he was ordered to be detained in a Borstal school.

Rules.

16. (1) The Local Government may make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the Local Government may make rules to provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:—

THE BENGAL VILLAGE SELF-GOVERNMENT (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1928.

to amend the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, 1919.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, 1919, in the manner hereinafter appearing; Ben Act V of 1919.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Bengal Village Self-Government (Amendment) Act, 1928.

New section for section 32 of Ben Act V of 1919

2. For section 32 of the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, 1919 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

Establishment of primary schools, dispensaries and infirmaries for animals

"32. (1) The union board, or two or more union boards in the same district or part of a district acting jointly, may, subject to any rules made under section 101, establish—

(a) primary schools,

(b) dispensaries, or

(c) infirmaries for the treatment and care of animals, or assume charge of any such existing institutions, and shall repair, maintain and manage any such institutions under the charge of such union board or boards.

(2) When two or more union boards acting jointly establish or assume charge of an institution under sub-section (1), they may at a joint meeting fix the proportion of the cost thereof which shall be borne by each union board." [Cf. Ben Act III of 1885, s. 68.]

New section 32A.

3. After section 32 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Committees

"32A. (1) Any union board, or two or more union boards at a joint meeting, may constitute committees for the management of the institutions mentioned in section 32, and may delegate to such committees all or any of the powers of management vested in union boards in regard to such institutions. [Cf. Ben Act III of 1885, s. 30.]

(2) Such committees may include persons who are not members of a union board."

New section 59A

4. After section 59 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

District board to have powers of control over committees

"59A. The district board shall have over committees constituted under section 32A all the powers of control given to them by this Act over union boards."

Amendment of section 101

5. In sub-section (2) of section 101 of the said Act,—

(1) in clause (e) after the word "boards" the words "and of committees of union boards" shall be inserted; and

(2) in clause (j) for the words "and dispensaries" the words "dispensaries and infirmaries for animals" shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Act, 1919, as it stands at present, does not authorise Union Boards to combine in order jointly to open dispensaries for human beings or infirmaries for cattle, nor does it authorise Union Boards to spend money on veterinary treatment at all. These are defects which should be remedied without delay in view of the lack of proper facilities for medical and veterinary treatment in rural tracts and of the fact that certain Union Boards are willing to combine in order to provide such facilities. A general power of combining in order to establish and maintain village institutions should be given to Union Boards.

It is therefore proposed—

(a) to empower Union Boards to spend money from the Union fund on veterinary work;

(b) to empower them to combine with other local authorities to maintain joint dispensaries for men or infirmaries for cattle, and primary schools;

(c) to empower them to delegate all or part of their authority to manage particular institutions to committees, which need not be composed exclusively of members of Union Boards, but may include outsiders, e.g., private subscribers; and

(d) to confer on the District Board the same authority over the acts of such committees as it possesses over the work of Union Boards.

So far as the provisions of the Bill affect Union Boards, they are permissive and not mandatory; and the Bill may therefore fairly be regarded as non-contentious.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

PART I.

A Bill to give effect to the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Indian Currency and Finance, 1926, proposing the establishment of a Gold Standard for India and the constitution of a Reserve Bank of India to control the operation of the Gold Standard was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 25th January, 1927. The initiation of this measure by the Government of India and the discussions which followed both inside and outside the Legislature revealed a general consensus of opinion that the establishment of a Central Bank is desirable in order to secure for India independent control, conducted with reference only to correct banking and commercial principles, of her financial and monetary policy, and revealed at the same time wide divergence of views as to the best means by which, in removing the present governmental control, the risk of domination by sectional interests of one kind or another may be avoided.

The consideration of the aforesaid Bill clause by clause was entered upon during the last session of the Legislative Assembly in Simla. After the House had considered the first few clauses, the Government of India decided, for the reasons given by the Finance Member on the 8th September, 1927, not to proceed with the further consideration of the Bill during that session. The Finance Member stated that the Government had from the first held the opinion that the soundest arrangement would be that the constitution of the Bank should be founded upon the subscription of capital by shareholders and the consequent interest of shareholders to see that the affairs of the Bank are conducted in accordance with strict business principles and not otherwise. This is the one plan which has been found to be wholly satisfactory by practical experience of central banking in other countries : and the Finance Member further indicated that the alternative methods of constituting the Reserve Bank of India and forming its directorate which had been proposed during the discussions on the Bill had raised difficult and controversal questions which required time for further careful examination of the whole issue.

During the interval that has since elapsed the Government of India, in consultation with the Secretary of State, have carried out the further review for which postponement of the discussion of the Bill was found to be necessary : and in doing so, they have given full weight to the practical considerations which had been urged against the adoption of their own initial plan and to the alternative suggestions which had been made. In the end while they have come to the conclusion that share capital affords the only satisfactory basis for the constitution of a Reserve Bank for India, at the same time they have found it possible to embody in the fabric of a shareholders bank the essence of the arrangements which opinion in the Legislative Assembly had claimed to be necessary in order to make it certain, so far as this is possible, that the Reserve Bank should ensure the interests of India as a whole and not the interests of one or other section of the community. The manner in which these requirements have been provided for is explained in the Notes on Clauses given in the second part of this statement.

Apart from the new dispositions referred to in the preceding recital, the revised Bill follows generally the provisions of the previous Bill as amended by the Joint Committee of the Legislature.

The new proposals are inconsistent with clause 4 of the previous Bill which was actually passed by the Legislative Assembly, and it is therefore necessary to propound an entirely new Bill instead of proceeding with the previous Bill.

In view of the great importance attaching to the constitution of a central banking system in India—a point on which the Secretary of State, the Government of India and public opinion are agreed—and in view of the history of the legislation hitherto attempted, the Government of India consider it desirable to ensure that ample opportunity is given for study of their present proposals with a view to their being passed into law in the approaching session of the Legislature. For these reasons the Government of India have decided to publish the revised Bill before the commencement of the session, and they will, take the first opportunity of bringing it formally before the Legislative Assembly.

PART II.

Clause 1.—It is proposed to give the Bank the sole right of note issue for a period of twenty-five years in the first instance and to provide for renewal as recommended in paragraph 141 of the Royal Commission's report. The provision that the Act shall come into force not later than 1st January, 1929, in the Bill circulated in January, 1927, was based upon the time-table recommended by the Commission in paragraph 165 of the report. The Bill as amended by the Joint Committee advanced the date for starting the Bank by six months. It has now for various reasons become impracticable to prescribe a fixed date, and a proviso has been added to the effect that it should be open to the Governor General in Council, for reasons to be stated, to postpone the operation of this clause for a year at a time, subject to a maximum postponement of three years.

Clause 2.—The definition of Provincial Co-operative Bank in the Bill as amended by the Joint Committee included companies registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1913, under a misapprehension that the Punjab Co-operative Bank registered under that Act was connected with the co-operative credit system. In the new definition such companies have been excluded and additional provision has been made to include provincial banks registered under Provincial Co-operative Acts.

Clause 3.—The name, the Reserve Bank of India, is that suggested in paragraph 92 of the Royal Commission's report.

Clause 4.—The Royal Commission recommended that the capital of the Bank should be rupees five crores fully paid up, and that the Imperial Bank's shareholders should be given the first opportunity of subscribing for the capital stock of the Bank as consideration for foregoing important privileges which the Imperial Bank now enjoys. A clear-cut division of functions between the Reserve Bank of India and the Imperial Bank of India is the essence of the proposal creating a Reserve Bank, and it is undesirable to give the shareholders of the Imperial Bank of India a preponderant voice in deciding the currency policy of the Reserve Bank. It is, therefore, proposed, for this reason and in view also of the agreement contemplated by the Second Schedule, not to give the Imperial Bank of India the option of subscribing thirty per cent. of the capital. Sub-clauses (2), (3), (6), (7) and (8) provide for a broadbased distribution of the share capital both at the time of original allotment and subsequently, and is intended to be a safeguard against the control of the Bank by sectional interests of any kind. Sub-clause (4) is intended to meet the objection that the utility to India of a share capital bank might be endangered by a possible conflict of interest, within the management of the Bank, between Indian and external capital. Provision has also been made for the transfer of portions of the share capital from one area to another in the event of the shares assigned to any area not being fully taken up at the time of original allotment.

It is necessary that the Government should be prepared to take up any unallotted shares, but it is not desirable that these should continue to be held permanently by Government. It is, therefore, proposed that the Governor General in Council should dispose of such shares as soon as possible.

Clause 5.—This is based on paragraph 101 of the Royal Commission's report. It is necessary to make provision for the contingent necessity of reducing the share capital and for the regional distribution of any increase in share capital, in regard to which the Commission have made no recommendation.

Clause 6.—The Head Office of the Bank will be located in Bombay as recommended by the Commission in paragraph 97 of the report. Delhi has been added to the list of places where the Bank may establish branches in view of the proposed creation of the Delhi register under clause 4.

Clause 8.—This gives effect to the recommendations in paragraphs 95 and 96 of the Royal Commission's report. The Joint Committee omitted the original provision prohibiting members of the Indian or local Legislatures from being nominated or elected as directors of the Bank. This provision has been reintroduced by sub-clause (2) of this clause for reasons which have been fully explained in previous discussions. Sub-clause a(i) which was added to the previous Bill by the Joint Committee on the precedent of clauses contained in certain other enactments establishing central banks, provides that no person may be a director who is not or has not at some time been actively engaged in agriculture, commerce, finance or industry.

Clause 9.—This is derived from paragraph 94 of the Royal Commission's report. The Commission recommended therein that the Reserve Bank should have Local Boards in Bombay, Madras and Calcutta, and that representatives from these Boards should constitute a majority on the Central Board. The Local Boards have now been replaced by the five bodies of delegates one for each of the five areas mentioned in clause 4. Provision has been made for the representation of commercial and agricultural interests and the term of office of all directors has been fixed at five years. As it would be undesirable that all the directors should vacate office at the same time, varying periods of tenure have been fixed in clause 16 for directors nominated or elected at the outset.

Clause 10.—This clause provides for the election of directors by the shareholders through a body of delegates elected for this purpose. Qualifications for election as delegates and directors are also prescribed and the provision that no shareholder shall have more than one vote is intended to ensure protection for the small shareholder.

Clause 11.—It is provided in this clause that the Governor, a Deputy Governor or any nominated or elected director may be removed by the Governor General in Council if a resolution to that effect is passed by a majority of the Board consisting of not less than 15 directors.

The additional provision for the removal of elected directors follows the lines of a similar provision in the Imperial Bank of India Act. It seems undesirable that elected directors should be removable by a bare majority at a general meeting. It is proposed that directors other than the Governor, Deputy Governors and the nominated official shall cease to hold office if they do not obtain within a month of appointment or if subsequently they cease to possess the required number of shares. This restriction does not however come into force immediately as it is necessary to give sufficient time to directors to qualify themselves by purchase of shares in the open market.

Clause 12.—The fixation of a period of five years for the tenure of the directors makes it necessary to provide for casual vacancies.

Clause 13.—This clause introduces a necessary provision for the holding and conduct of elections and the final decision of doubts or disputes.

Clause 14.—The Joint Committee proposed in the previous Bill that the minimum number of meetings to be held by the Board in each year should be twelve. This has now been reduced to six in view of the new proposal that the Board must include directors from every part of India. It is also proposed to prescribe that as a minimum two meetings of the Board should be held each year in Calcutta, in view of the commercial importance of that city.

Clause 15.—This is an obviously necessary provision and is based on paragraph 98 of the Royal Commission's report. The power of voting by proxy has been rigorously limited in order to ensure that the policy of the Bank shall not be easily susceptible of control by any combinations of special interests.

Clause 16.—The temporary provisions introduced by this clause are necessary as the Board has to be constituted in advance of the raising of the share capital. The varying periods of tenure prescribed in this clause are intended to retain continuously in the Board a number of directors with previous experience.

Clause 17.—This embodies generally the proposals in Schedule II of the Royal Commission's report defining the functions and powers of the Bank. It is, however, proposed to modify the Commission's recommendations in certain respects.

Sub-clause 1.—The Commission did not propose to allow power to the Reserve Bank to receive non-interest-bearing deposits from private persons. It is considered by the Government of India that like other central banks in the world the Reserve Bank of India should also be allowed to receive deposits from private persons provided no interest is paid.

Sub-clause 2 (a).—The restriction to scheduled banks of the facilities provided in this section and elsewhere is intended to give to the scheduled banks some compensating advantage for the obligation which the bill imposes upon them to maintain compulsory deposits free of interest in the Reserve Bank.

Sub-clause 2 (b).—As India is predominantly an agricultural country, it is thought desirable to raise the limit of bills and notes which may be purchased or rediscounted under this provision to one-quarter of the total value of all bills and notes purchased or rediscounted by the Bank.

Sub-clause 3.—Schedule II of the Commission's report proposed that the Bank should have full discretion to purchase and sell the currencies of any foreign country having a gold standard. So wide a discretion is considered undesirable, and it is proposed that operations of this nature should be confined to such countries having a Gold Standard as the Governor General in Council may designate for the purpose.

Sub-clause 4.—The financing of industry and the movement of crops in India is at present effected by cash credits and as the provision recommended by the Commission stands, it would be difficult for the Reserve Bank to assist other banks in providing necessary credit facilities without considerable changes in banking methods. It is, therefore, proposed in sub-clause (4) (e) that for a period of five years the Bank should be authorised to advance money against promissory notes of scheduled banks under certain conditions.

Sub-clause 8.—It is considered undesirable to limit the amount of securities held at any time in the Banking Department to so low a figure as 25 per cent. of the liabilities as recommended by the Royal Commission in clause 3 (d) of Schedule II to their report, since in view of the fluctuating character of deposits the limitation might on occasion force the sale of securities merely to bring the Bank within the provisions of its charter for a few days.

The Commission recommended in clause 7 (a) of Schedule II to their report that the paid-up capital and reserve may be invested in securities of the Government of India having not more than five years to run. In view of the fact that the Government of India are now funding their short-term loans into long-term loans the limitation suggested might in the near future unduly restrict the power of the Bank to invest in Government securities. It is, therefore, proposed to modify the provision so as to permit of investment in Government of India securities of any maturity.

Sub-clause 13.—The power of the Reserve Bank to open accounts and act as agents of other banks is restricted by this provision. Such relations may be entered into only with central banks which are the principal currency authorities in their respective countries and among which the Federal Reserve Banks in the United States of America are included.

Sub-clause 14.—It is essential that the Bank should have power to borrow in London in view of the obligation imposed upon it to keep the Secretary of State in funds, and it is necessary also that the Bank should be able to borrow in India so as to facilitate the control of credit. The limitation which this clause provides will prevent the Bank from using its power of borrowing in order to compete with other banks for fixed deposits.

Clause 18.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 102 of the Royal Commission's report regarding open market operations. The Joint Committee considered it necessary to prescribe definitely that the Reserve Bank should not be entitled to enter into indiscriminate competition with commercial banks, and for this reason it has been provided that action under this clause must be approved by the Board of the Bank; and the purposes for which alone they should approve the undertaking of such operations have also been indicated.

Clause 19.—This is based upon Schedule II of the Commission's report defining the business which the Bank should not be authorised to carry on or to transact.

Clauses 20 and 21.—These give effect to the recommendation in paragraph 140 of the report regarding the relations of the Bank with the Government As recommended by the Joint Committee it has been provided that the Reserve Bank should have control of all Government balances not excluding those of such of the Local Governments as may have the custody and management of their own provincial revenues.

Clause 22.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 141 of the report. The Commission recommend that the right of note issue should be transferred to the Bank as soon as the Bank is in a position to issue its own notes. It is, however, thought to be undesirable to delay the exercise of this function of the Bank until it is able to arrange for the manufacture and issue of its own notes, and it is therefore proposed to allow the Bank to issue notes of the Government of India for a year from the date on which the Bank takes over the control of the currency.

Clause 23.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 143 of the Commission's report regarding the separation of the Banking and Issue Departments of the Bank.

Clause 24.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 142 of the Commission's report. Freedom is retained to postpone for a time the issue of one rupee notes if such postponement appears desirable with reference to the size of the holding of silver rupees in the Reserve. Provisions relating to a gold mohur introduced by the Joint Committee have been removed for reasons which have been fully explained in previous discussions.

Clause 25.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 155 of the Commission's report regarding the form and material of bank notes.

Clause 26.—This is based upon the recommendation in paragraph 149 of the Commission's report that the notes of the Bank shall be legal tender for the payment of any amount and shall be guaranteed by the Government of India. The guarantee ensures the confidence of the public in the bank notes.

The Commission recommended in paragraph 141 of their report that, not later than five years from the date of the Bank Charter becoming operative, the Government of India notes still outstanding should cease to be legal tender except at Government treasuries. It may be presumed that by the end of five years' very few Government of India notes will remain outstanding: but it would be undesirable to take away the legal tender character of such note in the absence of any very definite advantage to be gained by so doing. No provision to the effect suggested is therefore made. It is, however, proposed to take power for the Governor General in Council to call in notes of particular series if necessity arises.

Clause 27.—This is based on paragraph 155 of the Commission's report regarding the re-issue of bank notes.

Clause 28.—This is based upon a similar provision in the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1923 and is necessary to protect the Bank against a civil action in respect of notes lost, stolen, mutilated or imperfect. The present practice by which a note may be divided into two halves and the halves when joined together are accepted as legal tender remains unaffected.

Clauses 29 and 30.—These are based upon similar provisions in the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1923. The proviso in clause 29 has been altered from the form in which it stood for many years in order to make it clear that cheques upon a banking account are not prohibited by that clause, even though the account may be overdrawn.

Clause 31.—This gives effect to the recommendations in paragraph 145 of the Commission's report regarding the constitution of the Reserve.

Sub-clause 2.—The Joint Committee introduced in the previous Bill a provision requiring that after the end of ten years the amount of gold securities in the Reserve must never exceed one-half of the total gold assets. This has been omitted, as such a provision is likely to prove unduly hampering to the executive of the Bank in the management of the Reserve.

Sub-clause 3.—The amount of silver coin and bullion now held in the Paper Currency Reserve is 110 crores, or 25 crores more than the amount held at the time at which the Royal Commission made their recommendations. It is open to grave doubt whether it would be possible without a serious disturbance of the silver markets of the world to dispose of this surplus silver within a period of ten years. Partly for this reason and partly because of the obligation imposed on the Bank by clause 37 to supply rupees freely to the public in such quantities as may be required for circulation, the limits of the amount of rupee coin which may be held at various periods in the Reserve have been increased by 25 crores each.

Sub clause 5.—The proportion of the gold coin and gold bullion held in the Reserve which must be kept in British India has been raised to 85 per cent. The raising of the proportion to this extent has been rendered possible largely by the elimination of the provision for the sale of gold for delivery outside India which was recommended by the Commission.

Sub-clause 6.—The Joint Committee wished to prohibit the holding in the Reserve of bills of exchange drawn on foreign gold standard countries as an unnecessary and undesirable feature of a gold reserve. But the provision to which the Joint Committee objected appears in Statutes regulating the conduct of other central banks, and the Government of India are satisfied that the same liberty should be given to the Reserve Bank of India.

Clause 32.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 146 to the Commission's report defining the liabilities of the Issue Department. The initial amount of 50 crores of rupees for the purpose of providing for rupee redemption recommended by the Commission has however now been altered to 40 crores. The original figure was based on an estimate indicating the total amount of rupees that might be spared from circulation as about 250 crores. In view of the changes now proposed as regards the permissible silver holding in the Reserve and of the return of rupees from circulation since the Royal Commission reported, it is considered safe to reduce the figure for rupee redemption to 40 crores of rupees.

The provision in sub-clause (2) of this clause is similar to that in the proviso to sub-section (6) of section 18 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1923, although it differs in detail. Under the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1923, notes of denominational value exceeding Rs. 100 cannot be deemed to be not in circulation until 100 years after the date of issue whereas notes of lower denominations are so deemed after 40 years. This distinction between the higher and the lower denominations of notes is undesirable. In practice notes of higher denomination are much less likely to be outstanding for a very long period than notes of lower denomination and the practice at the Bank of England is to treat all notes as not in circulation after 40 years. It is considered that the Reserve Bank might with advantage follow the practice of the Bank of England.

Clause 33.—This is based upon paragraph 144 of the report. The Commission recommended that coin and bullion and securities to be transferred to the Issue Department should be specified in a Schedule. The amount of notes in circulation at the time of inauguration of the Bank will not be known when the Bill is introduced and passed and also between the dates of introduction of the Bill and its passing into law and the inauguration of the Bank, there will be changes in the constitution of the Reserve held against note issue. It is, therefore, proposed to provide for the transfer to the Bank of assets of such a nature as to enable the Bank to constitute the Reserve in accordance with the requirements laid down in the Act. In order to give the new Bank the necessary margin over minimum requirements, it is proposed to include in the assets transferred, gold and gold securities equal to one-half of the liabilities of the Issue Department as suggested in clause 3 (a) of Schedule III to the report.

Clause 34.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 147 of the report regarding the disposal of surplus rupees by the Bank.

Clause 35.—This gives effect to the recommendations of the Commission in paragraph 147 of the report. As it would be uneconomical to coin new rupees until the stock of silver rupees in the Reserve is reduced to a limit of 25 crores or one-tenth of the total amount of the Reserve whichever is greater, it is proposed to limit the right of the Bank to demand the delivery of rupee coins from Government.

Clause 36.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 148 of the report regarding the mutual obligations of the Government and the Bank in regard to rupee coin.

Clause 37.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 152 of the report. The provisions regarding mohurs introduced by the Joint Committee in this clause have been omitted.

Clauses 38 and 39.—This gives effect to the recommendations in paragraphs 150 and 166 of the Commission's report regarding the sale of gold and gold exchange by the Bank. Certain modifications are however proposed. The obligation to sell gold for delivery at foreign centres has been replaced by a permanent obligation to sell gold exchange from the outset in any gold standard country notified in this behalf by the Government of India. It is considered that the obligation imposed on the Reserve Bank to keep stable the value of the currency will be made capable of fulfilment by this provision, while at the same time it will make it possible for a greater proportion of gold to be held in India.

The latest date recommended by the Currency Commission on which the obligation to sell gold should have effect is 1st January, 1931. The Joint Committee advanced it by six months and for the reasons given under clause 1 it has been considered necessary that power should be taken to postpone the effective operation of this section in the manner provided in that clause.

The minimum amount of gold to be purchased or sold was originally fixed at 1,065 tolas based on the fact that the weight of commercial bars in London is 400 ozs. This original figure is in both cases now reduced to 250 tolas as being a figure more suited to Indian conditions.

The Commission recommended that during the transition period the Reserve Bank should be under an obligation to sell gold or gold exchange at its option. As the Bank must concentrate on building up its gold holdings in order to be in a position to undertake the definite obligation to sell gold prescribed for a later stage, the option to sell gold during the interim period has been replaced by the immediate permanent obligation to sell gold exchange already mentioned.

Clause 40.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraphs 151 and 166 of the Commission's report Clause 41.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 153 of the report regarding the suspension of reserve requirements.

Clause 42.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 154 of the Commission's report. But it is now made clear that the Bank is to be exempted only from the payment of stamp duty under the Indian Stamp Act. 1899, in respect of the bank notes issued by it. It is not the intention to give any wider exemption.

Clause 43.—The provisions in this clause are in accordance with the recommendations in paragraph 149 of the report. The Commission recommended that the Governor General in Council should have the right to take over the assets of the Issue Department so far as they are required to meet the liability of the note or of rupee redemption. It is proposed to give the Governor General in Council the right to take over the assets not only of the Issue Department but of the Banking Department as well, as in theory such a necessity might arise if the Bank failed to keep sufficient assets in the Issue Department. A provision is also made for the carrying on of the note issue in such circumstances by some other agency determined by the Governor General in Council.

Clause 44.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 161 of the Commission's report with certain modifications. The percentages for minimum reserve balances recommended by the Commission appear somewhat high for India. It is, therefore, proposed to reduce these percentages to 7½ and 2½ per cent. of the demand and time liabilities, respectively.

The definition of 'Bank' or 'Banker' suggested in paragraph 162 of the Commission's report is imperfect, but it is difficult to arive at any satisfactory definition. It is, however, considered that if the Reserve Bank is to exercise proper control over the credit system of the country, the obligation imposed by this clause must be extended as widely as possible and should fall upon every firm of any standing or importance doing banking business in British India. It is, therefore, proposed to exhibit in a Schedule attached to the Bill the banks to which the provision in this clause should apply in the first instance, all banks being included which have a paid-up capital and reserve of an aggregate value of not less than three lakhs of rupees. For the future the Governor General in Council is required to include among the scheduled banks any bank which attains the necessary standing or importance and to exclude any bank which falls short of that standard.

The method of computing of the requisite proportion of the demand and time liabilities of the banks affected, follows the provisions made for the same purpose in the Federal Reserve System of the United States of America.

As the monthly return prescribed in paragraph 161 of the report will show only the position at the close of the months to which it relates, it is necessary to provide for the receipt of the information mentioned in sub-clause (3) of this clause.

It is also necessary that provision should be made to enable the Government to take action not only on the monthly report submitted by the Bank, but also on any report received from the Board of the Reserve Bank.

The provision in paragraph 161 of the Commission's report, which requires a summary of the monthly return of each bank to be published, has been omitted as the particulars required for the purpose of this clause furnish only a partial statement of the bank's affairs and their publication might mislead the public as regards the financial position of a bank.

Clause 45.—This follows the intention of paragraph 87 of the report.

Clause 46.—This is based upon the recommendation in paragraph 100 of the Commission's report. It is considered unnecessary to build up the reserve fund as quickly as the Commission suggest and a lower rate of accumulation has, therefore, been proposed. Also the additional dividend to be given to shareholders under certain circumstances has been reduced from a maximum of 3 per cent. recommended by the Commission to one of 2 per cent.

Clause 47.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 158 of the Commission's report.

Clauses 48, 49 and 50.—These give effect to the recommendation in paragraph 156 of the report.

Clause 51.—This gives effect to the recommendation in paragraph 157 of the report.

Clause 52.—It is necessary to make provision for the contingency of the liquidation of the Bank and the distribution of the reserve fund and surplus assets, if any, of the Bank.

Clause 53.—This is based upon the recommendation in paragraph 164 of the report. The Commission proposed that the Governor General in Council should be given absolute power to make regulations. It is thought preferable that regulations should be made by the Board with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council.

Local Boards are not to be constituted on the creation of the Reserve Bank, but it is proposed to give power to the Reserve Bank Board to establish such Local Boards if considered necessary later on and to delegate to them such powers and functions as may be desirable.

Clause 54.—The obligation imposed on the Government by the Currency Act IV of 1927 to receive sovereigns and half-sovereigns from the public at their bullion value will be taken over by the Bank simultaneously with the transfer of the conduct of note issue to it.

The First Schedule.—The First Schedule in the Bill as amended by the Joint Committee has been brought up-to-date.

The Second Schedule.—The provisions contained in this Schedule involve no fresh charge on the tax-payer. They are designed to compensate the Imperial Bank of India for the agency work done for the Reserve Bank and for the loss in respect of non-paying branches.

The Third Schedule.—This gives the scale of additional dividend payable to the shareholders and is so fixed as to give a maximum of 2 per cent. in addition to the ordinary dividend of 5 per cent.

The Fourth Schedule.—This is based upon Schedule IV to the report of the Commission. The gold coin or bullion held by the Bank in the Issue Department in India is proposed to be shown separately from that held outside India.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Third and Final Forecast of the Winter Rice Crop of Bengal, 1927-28.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1925-26, the area under winter rice in Bengal has represented some 18·6 per cent. of the total area under rice in British India.)

Character of the season.—In the second forecast issued in December last, the weather was already reviewed up to the end of October as having been fairly favourable in East and some North Bengal districts, while elsewhere the crop was described as bad to poor. Since then dry weather has been favourable for reaping and threshing operations of the crop.

Acreage.—According to the estimates returned by the District Officers the total area under winter rice is 13,210,100 acres, as against the revised figure of 14,146,300 acres in the final forecast of last year or about 8·6 per cent. less than last year.

Outturn.—From the summary of the district returns appended, it will appear that only Jalpaiguri and Mymensingh report a normal crop of 100 per cent. Ten districts report a crop varying from 80 to 92 per cent. Eleven districts report a crop varying from 50 to 75 per cent. In Murshidábad, Nadia and Burdwan the percentages of the normal crop reported are only 33. In Malda the crop is as low as 16 per cent. only.

As compared with the second forecast a better crop has been harvested in seven districts in East and North Bengal, while in the districts of Burdwan, Bankura and Rajshahi the crop has deteriorated from the previous estimates. In the remaining districts there has been no change since the second forecast.

According to the estimates in question the provincial outturn works up to 78 per cent. of the normal as against 85 per cent. last year.

Accepting 78 per cent. as the provincial outturn, the gross yield of the crop, on the basis of a normal yield of 12½ maunds of clean grain per acre, is estimated at 4,731,400 tons this year as against the revised figure of 5,639,300 tons in the final forecast of last year or about 16 per cent. less than last year.

The decrease in area was due to the fact that the rains began late and that at no time was there steady daily succession of showers. The crop as a consequence withered away over large areas and yielded no grain. Considerable damage was caused by drought and by a succession of insect-pests some of which appeared soon after the transplantation and others shortly before harvesting.
Midnapore	1,537,100	1,152 600	1,298,200	87	75	End of November ...	The increase in area is due to extended cultivation and the decrease compared with the estimate in the second forecast is due to revision of estimates. DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the week ending on the 8th February 1928

Summary.—Excepting for scattered showers in parts of North Bengal, the week was practically rainless. Ploughing of lands for jute and other autumn crops is proceeding, but rain is needed for the operation. Harvesting of spring crops and cutting and pressing of sugarcane are progressing favourably. The standing crops are doing well except in some West and North Bengal districts where the condition continues to be reported as poor. Distress continues to prevail in parts of Bankura, Dinajpur, Birbhum, Nadia, Murshidabad and Malda. In the latter three districts the number of persons employed on test relief works was 564, 14,279 and 2,432, respectively. The average price of common rice for the province has remained practically the same as compared with that of the previous week.

Minister-in-charge : The Hon'ble Sir P. C. Mitter, Kt., C.I.E.

No. 437M.—The 13th February 1928.—The following draft rules, which have been framed by the Commissioners of the Nabadwip Municipality in the district of Nadia, under sections 237 (2) and 241 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884 (Bengal Act III of 1884), and which the Government of Bengal (Ministry of Local Self-Government) propose to sanction under clause (2) of section 241, are published for the information of persons affected thereby.

Nadia.

2. The draft rules will be taken into consideration on the 10th April 1928, and any objection or suggestion received by the undersigned through the Magistrate before that date will be duly considered :—

Rules framed under sections 237 (2) and 241 (1) of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, for regulating the erection and re-erection of houses within the limits of the area of the Municipality of Nabadwip.

1. In these rules the term "house" has the same meaning as in clause (4) of section 6 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884 (Bengal Act III of 1884), except that it does not include a hut.

2. Every person who intends to erect or re-erect a house shall forward to the Chairman, with the notice required by section 237 (1) of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, the following information :—

(a) the position of the site,

(b) the circle and number of the site assigned to it in the assessment book,

(c) a plan of the site in duplicate drawn to a scale of not less than 50 feet to an inch showing its boundaries and position in relation to neighbouring roads, drains, tanks and buildings,

(d) drawings on scale of not less than 8 feet to an inch, showing a ground plan, two sections and elevation of the proposed building. All proposed drains, privies and cesspools must also be shown on the drawings,

(e) a description of the materials and method of construction to be used for the external and party walls, roofs and floors of the buildings, privies, drains and cesspools in the house.

N.B.—The notice and the plan must be submitted on superior quality of paper of foolscap size.

3. The plans referred to in rule 2 must be signed clearly and in a prominent place by the owner of the building, or if he is an illiterate man, by any other person authorized by him to sign in his behalf, in which case they must be marked with the owner's thumb impression.

4. The plan of every house shall show—

(a) the level of the foundation which, in case of a single-storied house, shall not be less than two feet, and in case of a double-storied less than four feet below the level of the ground,

(b) the level of the lowest floor which shall not be less than 18 inches above the level of the ground, and

(c) the thickness of the external and party walls.

5. Every house shall have a courtyard or open space of at least 8′ × 12′ exclusive of the spaces to be provided under rules 6 and 7, provided that the Commissioners at a meeting may exempt any house from the operation of this rule on special grounds.

6. At least three feet of free passage or way shall be kept in front of every house which is on the alignment of any public road, provided the Commissioners at a meeting may exempt any house from the operation of this rule when it is to be erected or re-erected on land measuring less than two cottahs.

7. Every house erected or re-erected shall have a clear space of at least two feet on all sides for free passage and ventilation, provided that the Commissioners at a meeting may exempt any house from the operation of this rule on special grounds.

8. (1) No privy shall be placed in the space required by this Act to be left at the back of a building—

(a) unless the total height of the privy does not exceed eleven feet, and

(b) unless there is a space of at least four feet between the nearest wall and the service aperture of the privy.

(2) No privy situated in, or adjacent to, a building shall be placed at a distance of less than—

(a) six feet from any other building which is a public building, or

(b) four feet from any other building which is, or is likely to be, used as a dwelling place, or as a place in which any person is, or is intended to be, employed in any manufacture, trade or business, provided the Commissioners at a meeting may exempt any privy from the operation of this rule when it is to be erected or re-erected on land measuring less than two cottahs,

(c) six feet from any public drain or road.

9. No privy shall be placed on any upper floor of a building.

10. Models and type-plans of privies and urinals, approved by the Commissioners, with estimates of the cost of constructing privies and urinals in accordance therewith, shall be kept in the Municipal Office, and shall be open to inspection by any person at all reasonable times without charge, but no person shall be bound to construct any privy or urinal in accordance with any such model or type-plan if the same be constructed in accordance with the other rules contained herein.

11. (1) A drain must be provided for every privy and every urinal.

(2) Such drain must be constructed of some impervious material and must connect the floor of the privy or urinal—

(a) with a drain communicating with a municipal drain or sewer, or

(b) if permitted by the Commissioners, with an impervious cesspool, the contents of which can be removed either by hand or by flow, after filtration.

12. (1) The floor of every privy and urinal—

(a) must, if the Commissioners in any case so direct, be made of one of the following materials to be selected by the owner of the privy or urinal, that is to say, glazed tiles, artificial stone or cement, or

(b) if no such direction is given, must be made of thoroughly well-burnt earthen tiles or bricks plastered (and not merely pointed) with cement, and

(c) must be in every part at a height of not less than six inches above the level of the surface of the ground adjoining the privy or urinal.

(2) The floor of every privy and every urinal must have a fall or inclination of at least half-an-inch to the foot either towards the drain prescribed by rule 11, and the platform must be similarly sloped towards the aperture.

13. The walls and the roof (if any) of every privy and urinal shall be made of such materials as may be approved by the Commissioners:

Provided that in the case of privies, the entire surface of the walls below the platform shall either be rendered in cement or be made as prescribed in clause (a) or clause (b) of rule 12.

14. The platform of every privy or urinal must either be plastered with cement or be made of some water-tight non-absorbent material as prescribed in rule 12.

15. Every privy or urinal situated in, or adjacent to, a building must have an opening of not less than three square feet in area in one of the walls of the privy or urinal as near the top of the wall as may be practicable and communicating directly with the open air.

16. Every privy must be constructed in accordance with the following provisions:—

(a) the platform must be provided with two apertures so arranged that solid and liquid excreta can fall into separate receptacles placed underneath, as provided in the following paragraph;

(b) the space beneath the platform of the privy must be of such dimensions as to admit of two moveable receptacles for solid and liquid excreta, each of a capacity not exceeding one cubic foot, being placed and fitted beneath the platform in such manner and position as will effectually prevent the deposit otherwise than in such receptacles of any sewage falling or thrown through the apertures of the platform;

(c) the privy must be so constructed as to afford adequate access to the said space for the purposes of cleansing such space and of placing therein and removing therefrom proper receptacles for sewage;

(d) the said receptacles must be water-tight, and must be made of metal if their capacity is over half a cubit foot, or of well-tarred earthenware or glazed stoneware if their capacity is less than half a cubit foot;

(e) the door for the insertion and removal of the receptacles must be made so as to completely cover the aperture.

57. All certificates shall be issued from the head office after being countersigned by the Chief Inspector. Issue of certificates and provisional orders.

A provisional order shall be issued in each case of registration after the hydraulic test if the Inspector is satisfied. The steam test may be taken at any covenient time within the period of the provisional order, after which, if the test is satisfactory, the certificate under section 7 of the Act shall be issued.

A provisional order shall also be issued after each completed inspection for renewal of the certificate so as to give authority for the use of the boiler pending the issue of the certificate.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Report on the Cotton Crops of Bengal, 1927-28.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1925-26, the area under the cotton crops in Bengal has represented some 0·3 per cent. of the total area under cotton in India.)

There are two crops—early and late. The "early" crop is chiefly grown in the Chittagong Hill Tracts and in the Tripura State and, to a small extent, also in other districts. The "late" crop is chiefly grown in Bankura and Midnapore.

Character of the season.—Since the issue of the third forecast in December last, the weather was generally fair but for drought which has affected the late crop.

Acreage.—The total area sown with early cotton is returned at 76,863 acres and that with the late crop at 903 acres (revised) as against 75,228 acres and 1,403 acres respectively in the final report of last year.

Outturn.—The outturn of the early crop is estimated at 19,784 bales and that of the late crop at 125 bales (revised) as against 25,048 bales and 320 bales, respectively, in the corresponding report of the last year.

CALCUTTA, the 17th February 1928.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Monthly Weather and Crop Report of Bengal for January 1928.

I. Character of the season.—The weather continued dry till the third week of the month, since when there have been occasional light and scattered showers. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

II. Progress of agricultural operations.—Harvesting of winter paddy was over; threshing was in full swing. Transplantation of summer paddy seedlings continued, but the progress of the operation was not satisfactory for lack of rain. Harvesting of early spring crops and cutting and pressing of sugarcane continued under favourable conditions. Preparatory tillage for jute and other autumn crops was proceeding slowly owing to drought.

III. State of standing crops.—The condition of standing crops was generally fair except in parts of West and North Bengal where it was poor owing to prolonged drought.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn.—The outturn of sugarcane was estimated at 83 per cent. of the normal. A fair harvest of the spring crops is anticipated. The prospects of the late spring crops have improved a little in the affected districts by the light rainfall during the latter part of the month.

V. Damage to standing crops.—The standing rabi crops suffered from drought, especially in some West and North Bengal districts.

VI Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of live-stock was, on the whole, fair. Stray cases of cattle-disease, were, however, reported from fifteen districts.

VII. Failure of pasturage and fodder.—Insufficiency of fodder was reported from parts of Nadia, Murshidabad and Burdwan.

VIII. Prices of food-grains.—During the second half of the month the price of common rice of the cheapest quality rose in eleven districts, fell in four and remained stationary in the rest of the Presidency. The prices ranged from 4 seers 14 chitaks per rupee in Rangpur to 7 seers per rupee in the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

IX. Condition of agricultural population.—The condition of the agricultural population was, on the whole, fair except in parts of Nadia, Murshidabad, Burdwan, Birbhum, Bankura, Dinajpur and Malda, where distress continued to prevail owing to a partial failure of the winter rice crop. Test relief works continued in parts of Nadia, Murshidabad, Birbhum and Malda.

NOTIFICATION.

THE following amendments in the Pension Rules of the Calcutta Corporation and the revised rules regulating the commutation of pensions made by the Corporation of Calcutta and sanctioned by the Government of Bengal under section 485 of the Calcutta, Municipal Act, 1923, in their letter No. 223M, dated the 24th January 1928 are hereby published for general information in compliance with the provisions of section 486 of the said Act :—

A.—Amendments in the Pension Rules.

(1) Against the rates of "maximum amount payable" under "A" scale in rule 17 put a bracket and by the side of the bracket add the words, "in addition to the additional gratuity payable under rule 26-A".

(2) Insert the following as Rule 26-A :—

"26-A. Any Municipal officer or servant who is eligible to pension under "A" scale (rule 17) shall, on retirement or discharge, receive, in addition to the pension, an additional gratuity at the rate of half a month's pay at the time of retirement or discharge for each completed year of service rendered by him, subject to a maximum of fifteen months' pay."

(3) Substitute the following for rule 27 :—

"Rule 27. In case of an officer or servant who is a contributor under these rules shall die while in the municipal service after he shall have completed five years' service a compassionate allowance equivalent to half a month's pay drawn at the time of death, for every completed year of service up to a limit of fifteen months' pay shall be paid to or for the benefit of such member or members of his family as the Chief Executive Officer may decide.

Provided that nothing in this or any of the foregoing rules contained shall be deemed to preclude the Corporation in their absolute discretion from granting a compassionate allowance to any officer or servant (whether eligible or ineligible to contribute, and whether he has contributed or not) who may have been permanently disabled or seriously injured in or during the discharge of his duties, or to the widow and children, or in case he shall have left no widow or children to the parents, brothers and sisters, of any such officer or servant who may have been killed in the discharge of his duties, and in a case where a servant is in receipt of a pay of less than Rs. 25 per mensem who may have become unfit for further discharge of his duties from natural or other causes or may have become disabled in the service of the Municipality."

These amendments apply to all retirements with effect from 1st April 1924.

B.—Revised rules regulating the commutation of pensions.

In supersession of the rules regulating the commutation of pensions sanctioned by the Government of Bengal in notification No. 2046M., dated the 27th August 1915, the following new rules are sanctioned from 1st April 1924.

1. Any Corporation servant who is entitled to pension may be granted, subject to the conditions hereinafter specified, to commute for a lump payment any portion, not exceeding one-half of any pension which has been or may be granted to him under the rules framed by the Corporation in that behalf. But any such commutation shall be subject to the condition :—

That the residue of the pension after commutation shall be sufficient in the opinion of the sanctioning authority to maintain the pensioner in the status in life to which he has been accustomed and shall in no case be less than Rs. 15 per month.

Provided that the Corporation may at its discretion relax or waive this condition in the case of a pension granted under the Invalid Pension Rules.

NOTE.—If a commutation of less than half has already been sanctioned under these or the old Rules, further commutation may be allowed for the balance up to half the pension

2. All applications for commutation must be made to the Chief Executive Officer of the Corporation in Form A appended to these rules setting forth the grounds and purposes of such application.

3. No commutation shall be sanctioned until the pensioner has produced a certificate from the Health Officer of the Corporation to the effect that his bodily health and prospects of duration of life are such as to justify commutation. It will be open to the Chief Executive Officer to require the applicant to produce such further or other medical certificates as he may consider necessary.

4. The certifying medical officer shall subject the applicant to a strict medical examination requiring him to give such information as to his health and habits as is usual in the case of persons proposing to insure their lives with Insurance Companies and will report in the following form :—

"I have examined ..... and am of opinion that he $\frac{\text{is}}{\text{is not}}$ of good bodily health and $\frac{\text{has}}{\text{has not}}$ the prospect of an average duration of life. I therefore $\frac{\text{do}}{\text{do not}}$ recommend compliance with his application to capitalize a portion of his pension."

5. In the case of a pensioner who has an impaired life, the Health Officer shall submit a report as to the age upon which the commutation should be calculated so as to allow for the probable decrease in his expectation of life, and the Corporation, on the recommendation of the Chief Executive Officer, may, then, at their discretion, sanction the commutation, the sum payable being computed on the basis of the age at which his life has been so estimated by the Health Officer.

6. The lump sum payable on commutation shall be certified by the Chief Accountant according to the table of present values shown in Appendix X of the Civil Service Regulations. For the purpose of this rule, the age of the pensioner shall be assumed to be such age, not being less than his actual age, as the certifying medical authority may direct.

7. When commutation has been sanctioned the pensioner shall be informed accordingly, but he shall have the option of withdrawing his application within one week after being so informed. If he does not withdraw his application within that period, the commutation of pension shall become absolute, and payment of the lump sum shall be made forthwith, payment of the commuted portion of the pension thereupon ceasing.

8. If, when the commutation of a portion of a pension has been sanctioned the pensioner dies on or after the date from which commutation is to take effect, but before receiving the commutation value, this value shall be paid to his heirs.

PART VI.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly, and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[AS INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.]

A Bill to limit the interest charged on loans of various kinds in British India, and to bring the law in conformity to the needs of the people.

WHEREAS it is expedient to limit the interest charged on loans of various kinds in British India and to bring the law in conformity to the needs of the people; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Interest Act, 19 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on.....

Amount of interest.

2. No creditor, whether of a secured or unsecured loan, shall be entitled to recover interest, either payable at one time or by instalments, exceeding the principal amount originally lent or due at the date of suit, whichever is less.

Powers of Court to grant relief in case of excessive interest

3. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore said where in any suit to which this Act applies whether heard ex parte or otherwise, the Court has reason to believe—

(a) that the interest is excessive, and

(b) that the transaction was, as between the parties thereto, substantially unfair, the Court may exercise all or any of the following powers, namely, may—

(i) reopen the transaction, take an account between the parties and relieve the debtor of all liability in respect of any excessive interest ;

(ii) notwithstanding any agreement purporting to close previous dealings and to create a new obligation, reopen any account already taken between them and relieve the debtor of all liability in respect of any excessive interest and, if anything has been paid or allowed in respect of such liability, order the creditor to repay any sum which it considers to be repayable in respect thereof ;

(iii) set aside either wholly or in part or reverse or alter any security given or agreement made in respect of any loan, and if the creditor has parted with the security, order him to indemnify the debtor in such manner and to such extent as it may deem fit.

Principal in case of bonds executed for arrears.

4. In the case of a bond executed for arrears of principal and interest due on a prior bond, the principal for purposes of this Act is the principal of the prior bond.

Savings.

5. This Act shall not apply to usufructuary mortgages.

Repeals.

6. Provisions of other laws and regulations, so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, are hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Bill is designed to prevent the accumulation of interest for long periods and thereby save many a debtor from the clutches of covetous and clever creditors.

There is a rule in Hindu Law which is called Damdvopat. It is in operation in the Bombay Presidency, Berar and the town of Calcutta, but it is limited in its scope and is applicable only to Hindus. This rule cannot be taken as a purely religious law of the Hindu community ; it is laid down only to safeguard the debtors' interests as the Hindu Law sanctions the taking of interest on loans. The Muslim Shariat has forbidden to take interests at all and so there could be no occasion for such emergency. Under the circumstances of the heterogenous society of India, it is quite justifiable and necessary that the present Bill be passed for the benefit of a debtor irrespective of the caste, creed and colour. The present Bill is wider in its scope and is more in conformity to the incessant demands and needs of the people of India, and the creditor will not be able to ruin his debtor with his waiting game.

The words "by instalments" in clause 2 are added in order to safeguard against the contrivance on the part of the creditors to nullify the effect of the provisions of the Bill by recovering interest on a system of instalments. The clause 3 is embodied to prevent the creditors from making injudicious bargains and is taken from the Usurious Loans Act of 1918.

The Interest Act of 1839 (Act XXXII) and the Usury Repeals Act of 1855 (XXVIII), which are absolutely inconsistent with both the Hindu and Muhammadan Laws on the subject, were passed at a time when the Councils were devoid of Indian representation by their own people and have proved ruinous.

The Usurious Loans Act of 1918 although it gives power to Courts to curtail the rate of interest under certain circumstances and which is also not exercised duly yet provides no remedy to stop accumulation beyond a certain limit.

[TO BE INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.]

A Bill further to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, for the purpose hereinafter appearing ; it is enacted as follows :— IV of 1889.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act, 1927.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of January 1928.

Insertion of new section 12A in Act IV of 1889.

2. After section 12 of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, the following section shall be inserted, namely :— IV of 1889.

Indication of local origin of imported goods.

"12A. (1) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe the kind, description or class of goods brought into British India to which a trade description giving the place or country in which they were made or produced shall be applied.

(2) The Governor General in Council may, after previous publication, make regulations, either general or special, prescribing—

(a) the form in which the trade description shall be applied ;

(b) the manner in which the trade description shall be applied, whether by a mark to be placed upon the goods, or in some other manner ; and

(c) the time or occasion when the trade description shall be applied, and, in particular, whether the trade description shall be applied on importation only, or also on sale of the goods, either by wholesale or retail, in British India.

(3) If a person who is required under this section to apply a trade description to any goods fails to do so or contravenes any regulation made under sub-section (2), he shall be punished in the same manner as if he had been guilty of applying a false trade description to goods."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

There is no provision in the existing law in India which can compel the application of a trade description to imported goods. The result is that articles made in foreign countries, without any indication as to their local origin, are sometimes palmed off as Indian manufactures. It is a well known fact that a kind of piece-goods especially manufactured abroad is sometimes sold in India as hand-woven Khaddar. Again cheap hosiery, particularly cotton undershirts, are imported from Japan without any trade description and sold in this country as local manufacture. In such cases, the local origin of goods should be indicated so as to prevent fraud on the consumers, and protect some of the struggling industries of India from unfair competition. It is proposed in this Bill to arm the Governor General in Council with power to specify any imported goods in respect of which the importer, or the wholesale or retail dealer, shall be called upon to affix a trade description giving the place of origin thereof. It may be mentioned that the provisions are mainly adapted from the recommendations of a Departmental Committee of the British Government regarding legislative action in the United Kingdom in the interest of certain Empire or British Goods.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[AS INTRODUCED IN THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.]

A Bill further to amend the Inland Steam Vessels Act, 1917.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Inland Steam Vessels Act, 1917; It is hereby enacted as follows :— I of 1917

Short title and commencement

1. (1) This Act may be called the Inland Steam Vessels (Amendment) Act, 1927.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of January, 1928.

Insertion of new sections 54A and 54B in Act I of 1917

2. In Chapter VI of the Inland Steam Vessels Act, 1917, after section 54, the following sections shall be inserted, namely :— I of 1917

Maximum and minimum freights and fares to be fixed.

"54A. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe the maximum and minimum rates of freights and fares which it shall be lawful for the owner of an inland steam vessel to charge for the conveyance of goods and passengers.

Advisory Committees

"54B. The Local Government may make rules for the appointment of Advisory Committees to advise the owner of an inland steam vessel on questions affecting the interests of passengers, and may prescribe by rules the constitution and functions of such Committees."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The control exercised by Government over inland steam vessels carrying on goods and passenger service in this country does not extend to fixing the rates at which they can levy charges on the public. Virtually in the position of monopolists, the inland steamer organisations enjoy unfettered freedom in this matter. In Bengal and Assam where they supply very considerable facilities for transport, their charges are considered to be unduly high. There has been for sometime a good deal of local public agitation against this state of things, but to no effect. It seems reasonable that, when Government exercise a certain amount of control over Railways owned and managed by private companies, in the matter of regulation of freights and fares, similar control should be assumed in respect of inland steam vessels also. It is proposed in this Bill to invest Government with authority to fix maximum and minimum freights and fares that can be lawfully charged by inland steamer services, on the analogy of similar authority in regard to Company-managed Railways. While the maximum rates would protect the public against exorbitant demands, the minimum scales to be fixed under the Bill would prevent unfair rate-wars which have in the past defeated indigenous efforts at organising inland steamer service in competition with powerful combines in Bengal.

A second provision in this Bill is to enable Advisory Committees to be constituted and attached to the inland steamer concerns at different important stations, more or less on the lines of Railway Advisory Councils. As matters stand at present, the agents of the monopolist companies running inland steamer services are not in touch with public opinion, and do not pay adequate attention to the grievances of the travelling public.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the last Assembly I had given notice of my intention to introduce a Bill designed to protect married and unmarried girls below the age of 15. Subsequently, the Government introduced a similar Bill affording protection to girls below the ages of 13 and 14 within and outside marital relations. During the course of the discussion on this Bill the Hon'ble the Home Member gave an undertaking in the Assembly to circulate those clauses of my Bill which were not covered by the Government Bill. These clauses provided for a new offence of unlawful intercourse.

I have in this Bill sought to protect married girls between 13 and 14 and unmarried girls below 16, prescribing a smaller penalty in the former case. My object in protecting married girls up to 14 is this—

(a) It is a fact now sufficiently established that a majority of girls do not attain puberty in this country before that age; and the mere appearance of puberty is not the same thing as the attainment of sufficient physical development to enable them to endure the travails of maternity;

(b) Premature cohabitation is responsible for the appallingly high death rate in the case of infants before they are even 12 months old; which in several provinces averages 33 per cent;

(c) It weakens the offspring that survive, weakens the mother and is responsible for the high death rate and low vitality of the people addicted to this evil;

(d) Early cohabitation is equally detrimental to the married couple; the husband suffers in his education, and so does the wife; while the family has to mourn frequent bereavement and suffers from the illness of its members.

In the case of unmarried girls the last Assembly had no objection to extending the protection to all minors even up to the attainment of their majority.

It is hoped that public opinion is now sufficiently aroused to the evils of early cohabitation and my Bill, if passed, will I hope act as a salutary deterrent upon persons who still remain addicted to a practice highly detrimental to the growth of a healthy and vigorous nation.

For the week ending on the 22nd February 1928.

Summary.—During the week the weather continued practically dry. Ploughing of lands for jute and other autumn crops is progressing, but the operation is slow for want of rain. Cutting and pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of spring crops are going on under favourable conditions. The standing crops are suffering from lack of soil moisture. Distress continues to prevail in parts of Burdwan, Bankura, Dinajpur, Nadia, Murshidabad, Birbhum and Malda. Orders and Notifications by the Government of India republished for general information.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

The 11th February, 1928.

No. 86-I./27-C. & G.—The following Final Report of the Delegates of India to the Eighth (Ordinary) Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations is published for general information.

FINAL REPORT OF THE DELEGATES OF INDIA TO THE EIGHTH (ORDINARY) SESSION OF THE ASSEMBLY OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS (1927).

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE EARL OF BIRKENHEAD, HIS MAJESTY'S SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

My Lord,

We beg to submit our Report on the Eighth (Ordinary) Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations held at Geneva from the 5th to the 27th September, at which we had the honour to represent India.

2. Following the precedent of previous years, we have already submitted an Interim Report in order to give as early an account of our proceedings as possible. The Interim Report consisted of a survey of matters of general interest, and a description of those in which the interests of India are affected, and of the part played by delegates of India in the discussions. This Report reproduces the bulk of the Interim Report, together with the text of the Resolutions adopted by the Assembly, and certain reports of Committees and speeches, and other matter necessary to complete the record.

The Indian and British Empire Delegations.

3. Numerically the Indian Delegation was the same as last year, but we had the advantage of including among us four members—His Highness the Maharaja of Kapurthala, Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, Sir Edward Chamier and Sir B. K. Mullick—who had had previous experience of the work of the Assembly. We held no meeting of the Delegation before leaving London, on account of the practical difficulty of assembling a sufficient number of delegates. On most occasions such a meeting would be desirable, if not necessary, but on this occasion there was in fact no question of outstanding importance affecting India except the resolutions of the Economic Conference, and the majority of us were generally familiar with the position and were not in need of guidance on matters of practice and principle. A meeting of the Delegation was held on the day on which we reached Geneva, and on the same day we attended a meeting of all the Delegations of the British Empire convened by the leader of the British Delegation, Sir Austen Chamberlain. Throughout the period of the Assembly we maintained coherence among ourselves by meetings of the Delegation and otherwise, and co-ordination was effected between the Empire Delegations by meetings of leaders and by meetings of the delegates who represented the Empire Delegations on the several Committees. It will be obvious that the Delegations of the British Empire exercise a very great influence in the League so long as they are united, and on the big political questions in which other groups of Powers who are not united by an Imperial bond such as our act in concert, it is especially desirable that the British Empire should pursue a single policy. The Indian Delegation is not constitutionally in the same position as those of the Dominions, but we believe that the obligation to make the action of the Indian Delegation conform to that of the British Delegation is practically confined to those questions on which the Empire Delegations must of necessity, and in fact do, act together, and that Indian policy is determined on independent lines in those matters in which India really possesses an independent interest. Moreover, those problems of a political character in which the attitude of India might be affected by her present constitutional position are predominantly of an European character and have little direct interest for India, whereas those departments of the work of the League in which India has the greatest practical interest are scarcely, if at all, influenced by political and constitutional relations. It follows accordingly that, in our view, the actual liberty of the Indian Delegation to follow an independent policy corresponds to the liberty which the Indian Delegation would in fact exercise if the constitutional status of India within the Empire were different.

Opening of the Eighth Session.

4. The proceedings of the Assembly were opened on the 5th September by His Excellency M. Enrique Villegas (Chilian Ambassador at Rome and representative on the Council of the League), acting as President of the Council. The credentials of the delegates were verified by a Committee on which His Highness the Maharaja of Kapurthala served. A list of the members of each Delegation will be found in Appendix I.

5. Forty-nine States were represented out of a total number of 55 States; Spain, Brazil, and certain other South American States being absentees. The Assembly was attended by a larger number of Foreign Ministers (21) than has ever previously been present, by the President of the Swiss Confederation, and by the Prime Ministers of Luxemburg and Lithuania. His Excellency Dr. Alberto Guani (first delegate of Uruguay) was elected President after a close contest, in which His Excellency Count Mensdorff (the first delegate of Austria) was the other candidate. The election of Vice-Presidents, members of the General Committee and of the Agenda Committee proceeded in accordance with the usual routine which has been described in reports of previous delegations.

6. The Assembly opened in an atmosphere of some uncertainty and even depression as to the present position and future outlook of the League. This atmosphere had been precipitated by the resignations not long before the date on which the Assembly met of Viscount Cecil and M. de Jouvenal from the British and French Delegations respectively. These resignations were taken as indicating a view that the Great Powers were showing a tendency to settle problems among themselves without resort to the League, and that too uncompromising an attitude was being adopted in regard to the great problem of Disarmament by some of those on whose attitude progress mainly depended. The general debate was expected to range over these two topics, and it was felt in many quarters that the Eighth Assembly, although having before it an agenda of no abnormal importance, might be of critical significance in regard to the future of the League. These expectations were not falsified. There were a number of subjects in which fundamental questions were treated from all points of view, and there was a tendency to precipitate dramatic developments. If some of the results which emerged were of moral, rather than of political or constitutional importance, it should be realised that the ideals on which the League is based represent a fundamental change in the practice of international politics; that such a change can only proceed with safety on evolutionary lines, and that for the purpose of such an evolution a moral stimulus may be effective when instruments of precision would be premature and dangerous. Before indicating in greater detail the lines of the debate, we shall express our belief that the general issue afforded no justification for pessimism, while at the other end of the scale it emphasised the necessity for a proper relation between ideas and facts. The need for tempering enthusiasm with patience is, in our view, admirably expressed in the Report of the Director of the International Labour Office for 1927 which was placed before the Assembly, from which the following passage may be usefully reproduced:—

"It is impossible not to realise the immense gulf which separates what has been achieved from what was hoped in 1919, when mankind for a brief moment rose to heights unknown before. At that time, immediately after the great catastrophe of the war, an effort was made to organise human life on a basis of solidarity and peace, and the nations collaborated with one another in setting up a new structure. At that time almost everyone cherished the illusion that international life would at once come into being and that a new era was on the point of beginning.

"The reality is not what was then supposed. International institutions can only establish themselves by long, obstinate and patient efforts. This has been the experience of the League of Nations as regards international security and disarmament. The apprehensions and anxieties which have been deeply rooted in the heart of mankind by centuries of war cannot be uprooted all at once. The sovereign States are still inclined to rely on themselves for securing the necessary guarantee of security."

7. Although these political and constitutional subjects dominated the debate, many speakers concerned themselves with pointing out that other subjects might be regarded as of no less importance; that for non-European Members these subjects might even be of greater importance, and that while there might be an apparent and temporary lack of success in the League's treatment of political subjects, notable successes in the non-political spheres of activity did much to restore the balance. Conspicuous among these is the success of the International Economic Conference of last May, and other spheres in which valuable work has been, or is in course of being, done are those of Health, Intellectual Co-operation, International Law and Social Reforms.

Speech of Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar.

8. The General Debate in the Assembly was opened by Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, in a speech which emphasised this aspect of the work of the League. The text will be found in Appendix III, Annex I, but we will reproduce here a summary.

9. After congratulating the Secretary-General and his staff on the comprehensiveness and thoroughness of which the documents before the Assembly were an indication, he referred to the unique position of India in the League, and spoke of the effect which the world opinion developed by the League might have upon India. He said that the quest of the ideal was one of the strongest characteristics of his race, and that as an Indian he felt at home in an Assembly which expected and indeed assumed the existence of idealism in all its members. While appreciating the value to his own country of its participation in the League, he expressed the hope that the presence of delegates from India and other distant countries was of some value to the League by preserving its character of universality and marking the distinction between a real League of Nations and a mere concert of Powers. He then referred, with examples, to the way in which India had been fulfilling in practice the ideals of the League. It was a matter for sincere congratulation that the League was in its turn realising the importance of Indian and eastern problems. But it was not easy for his countrymen, remote and absorbed in their own problems, to realise in a concrete way how the ideals of the League were being converted into practice, and he would welcome any increase in the relations between the practical work of the League and the actual interests of India. He stated his belief that it was through the technical organisation of the League that the ideals of the League could be most adequately realised in the non-European countries, and he therefore proceeded to deal in some detail with its work in the spheres of health and economics. He spoke of the importance of the Health Organisation, and in particular of its Bureau at Singapore, in assisting the control of epidemics, and he welcomed the projected tour in India of medical officers associated with the League as the first occasion on which a League organisation would come into direct personal contact with India, a contact from which he anticipated valuable results, both from the technical and from the wider aspect. He emphasised the special interest of India in the work of the Economic Conference from which the important and extremely encouraging fact had emerged that in spite of the diversity of theories and the legitimate national sentiments of those who took part there was a unanimous desire that Conference should mark the beginning of a new era in international commerce. He referred to the present fiscal policy of India and showed that it was harmonious in principle with the conclusions of the Conference. He greatly hoped that the attitude of the League towards the work of the Conference would demonstrate its interest in the problems and conditions of countries far removed from the scene of European economic life, but forming nevertheless important factors in the sum total of world economy. He finished by saying that India was not only content but most willing and anxious to take part in the labours of the League.

The Technical Work of the League.

10. The position which this speech occupied in the order of the debate assured it of the attention which it deserved, and we believe that it, together with speeches made by the members of the Indian Delegation later on in the Second Committee, did much to fortify the position of India in regard to an effective participation in the technical work of the League, which is, as we have already indicated, that part of the League's work most directly beneficial to India in present circumstances. There were other speakers also who set themselves to emphasise the success as well as the importance of the League's technical activities, and particularly those in the economic sphere. Chief among them was the British delegate, Sir E. Hilton Young, who opened his speech by saying that the indirect attack upon the economic problem might be of equal importance to the cause of peace as the direct enforcement of security. It was a dramatic revelation, he said, that in the material sphere, as in the ideal sphere, there was no necessary conflict between the interests of nations, and he considered that the results of the Economic Conference were welcome because they expressed the ideas which were fundamental in the League the ideas of harmony between nations. They not only expressed these ideas but gave them the most practical assistance in pointing out the path which would lead away from war. It was not always the most direct path which led straigthest to a given objective. The course of disarmament, of direct reduction of military armaments, seemed to be crossed by some very difficult precipices, but there were skilled guides to show the way round. He asked whether it was not possible that the skilled guides of the Economic Conference were actually showing what is the path by which permanent and established peace would be achieved sooner and more directly than by any straight proceeding through difficult country. The instincts of hostility which led to war were the resultant of many different causes and amongst them economic causes were not the least. The League could have no higher or more direct occupation than to attempt to get rid of that economic strain which was the direct outcome of the causeless fears left by the war.

Relation of Greater and Smaller Powers.

11. We must now describe briefly the main currents of the debate on political topics. In the first place, there was some tendency to suggest that the events of the last year had indicated an increase in the relative disparity of the authority exercised respectively by the great Powers, that is to say in effect those Powers who have permanent seats on the Council, and by the main body of League Members. It was implied that there was a diminution of the effective participation of the latter in international politics owing to an increasing disposition on the part of the former either to keep certain subjects outside the League's purview or to deliberate upon them in private in such a manner that they came before the League virtually as choses jugees. In particular this point of view was expressed with emphasis by Mr. Hambro of Norway, who referred among other matters to the increasing preponderance of diplomats, as compared with statesmen, in representation of Governments at League meetings, and criticised the extent to which elections to appointments of authority in the Assembly were managed behind the scenes. His speech was received with interest, and evidently with a certain degree of sympathy, but we believe that the points which he made were rebutted to a large extent, and perhaps entirely, by subsequent speakers to the satisfaction of the Assembly as a whole. The best answer to his general complaint was supplied by M. Motta, President of the Swiss Confederation, who said that he had never favoured the endeavours of those who wanted to set the small nations against the great, or to sow seeds of difference between great and small, and that he knew that the Great Powers could very well do without the League of Nations, and that it was the small nations which needed the League if they were to have any influence on international affairs. It has to be remembered, we consider, that the League gives the less powerful States opportunities of participation in international affairs which they never enjoyed before and would never enjoy otherwise. Under the Covenant each State represented at the Assembly has one vote and no more than one vote, but it is necessary to appreciate the inevitable fact that that vote cannot be exercised by all with equal freedom and authority. We believe that those in India who are qualified by a knowledge of facts to appreciate the position from the point of view of India will be disposed to agree rather with M. Motta than with Mr. Hambro. Mr. Hambro referred to a view that the General Debate in the Assembly on the Annual Report on the work of the Council was tending to become an exchange of complimentary banalities and that Members of the Council preserved silence in the Assembly on any comments that were offered. If that has ever been true, it was certainly not true of the Eighth Assembly. No important voice was silent. The debate was searching and frank in its mode and lacked nothing in range.

Elections to Council.

12. At this point it is relevant to mention the election of non-permanent Members of the Council, because the result is an indication of the effective assertion of their views by the lesser Powers. Under the rules adopted last year non-permanent seats are tenable for three years, and the three States which retire from the Council each year must normally wait for three years before being eligible for re-election. But a retiring State may be declared eligible for immediate re-election by a two-thirds majority of the Assembly. Of the three States which retired this year, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia and San Salvador, the first name applied for a declaration of re-eligibility and it was known that her application was regarded with favour by Great Britain, France and Germany on the ground that the presence on the Council of all the Locarno Powers was desirable. The application failed because of the evident determination of the lesser Powers to make the principle of rotation a reality. Consequently Cuba, Finland and Canada were elected. The election of Canada is notable because this is the first occasion on which a Dominion member of the British Empire has acquired a seat on the Council.

Assembly Debate on Arbitration, Security and Disarmament.

13. We have now to deal with the subject of Disarmament, with which are associated those of Arbitration and Security. It will be remembered that at its Seventh Ordinary Session in September 1926 the Assembly adopted a resolution requesting the Preparatory Committee on Disarmament, appointed in 1925, to hasten the completion of its work so that it might be able to drawn up a programme for a Conference on Disarmament early in 1927. The Conference has not yet been convened, but much useful work has been done. The Preparatory Committee has prepared what has been called a first reading " draft of a Convention on Disarmament, though it has not been able to secure anything like unanimity on several of the most important points. It has also devoted much time to the consideration of such subjects as the working of the organs of the League in times of crisis, technical methods for the reduction and limitation of armaments, and the relations between the economic and military resources of States, and to special questions such as chemical warfare, civil aviation and defence budgets.

14. At the opening of the Assembly this year it seems to have been felt by many that little more could be done by the Preparatory Committee until greater international security had been attained, and most of the proposals that were put forward in the Assembly and in the Third Committee were designed to deal with this difficulty. At the third meeting of the Assembly the Dutch Delegation submitted a draft resolution to the effect that the time had come to resume the study of the principles on which the Geneva Protocol of 1924 was based, and it was suggested that the study of those principles along with the report of the Preparatory Committee on Disarmament should be referred to the appropriate Committees of the Assembly. It will be remembered that the Geneva Protocol of 1924 was designed to secure compulsory arbitration in international disputes if conciliation of the Council failed, and to provide for individual and collective action by States at the request of the Council against a recalcitrant State. This proposal received some support in the Assembly, but several Delegations objected to it on the grounds that it would inevitably reopen the discussions of 1924, that there was no hope of agreement, and that the proposal would probably do little more than call attention once more to the reasons why several States had been unable to accept the Protocol. Sir Austen Chamberlain stated that the British Government was still unable to accept compulsory arbitration of the kind contemplated by the Protocol or to undertake responsibilities such as the Protocol would lay upon the British Government. The Dutch Delegation then modified their proposal by substituting " the principles of arbitration, security and disarmament " for " the principles of the Geneva Protocol." So modified the Dutch proposal was referred to the Third Committee for consideration. There was also referred to the Third Committee a proposal by the Polish Delegation that the Assembly should record a declaration that all wars of aggression are and always shall be prohibited, that every pacific means must be employed to settle disputes of every description which may arise between States, and that States Members of the League are under an obligation to conform to these principles. Many Delegations pointed out that this resolution would add nothing to what was already contained in the Covenant, but others maintained that a solemn declaration of this kind was of great value. In deference to the views of the latter the Third Committee accepted the proposal and the Assembly passed a resolution accordingly.

15. The debate in the Assembly was of intense interest, and all aspects of the question were frankly and fully deliberated. It would be impossible to summarise the discussion briefly, and we must content ourselves with indicating some of its leading features. Jonkheer Beelaerts van Blokland, the first delegate of the Netherlands, referring to the Dutch resolution which we have alluded to above, reminded the Assembly that in 1926 the first delegate of the Netherlands had used the following words: " The Protocol is not dead; it is most certainly not buried, it but slumbers.

Do not let us seek now to remodel or perfect it, rather let it rest." He said that, while these words were fully justified and entirely reasonable on the eve of the conclusion of the Locarno Treaties, he thought that if this state of rest were to be prolonged it might degenerate into lethargy. It was necessary to continue the study of the important principles underlying the Protocol, and the Assembly must realise that public opinion in different countries was moving in this direction, and that, particularly in overseas countries, there was a growing current of opinion which had adopted as its watchword "The outlawry of war." The principle of compulsory international jurisdiction was a necessary complement of these ideas, but if this end was to be achieved the Great Powers must not continue to shirk obligations. The speech of the Dutch delegate and the resolution which he moved profoundly influenced the current and character of the subsequent debates, and it is a conspicuous example of the part played by the lesser Powers in the Eighth Assembly. M. Politis, the Greek delegate and one of the authors of the 1924 Protocol, said that, if he had rightly understood the speech with which the Dutch porposal was introduced, the purpose in view was to revert to the idea of general compulsory arbitration. This would be the idea of the Protocol, with its fundamental basis of compulsory arbitration but without the system of sanctions. He did not believe that, in the present state of affairs, it would be wise or practicable to bring up the Protocol again, this belief being based on the fact that the obstacles which wrecked its progress before were still unchanged. Circumstances hardly warranted the hope that there was at present any likelihood of overcoming the obstacles to compulsory arbitration, and even if that were not so he could not conceive of compulsory arbitration as an element of security unless accompanied by an adequate system of sanctions. The cause of the Protocol would be hindered rather than served if a demand were made to take it up in fractions or segments, and he thought that the counsel of wisdom was to wait patiently in the belief that public opinion would soon declare itself in a manner which would enable the Protocol to emerge as an international reality. He went on to say that if security was a necessary preliminary to disarmament, and if security itself was founded on justice, justice in its turn was based on the existence of law, and he therefore attached great importance to the work which the League had done and would continue to do in the development and enrichment of international law.

16. Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, said that he could not be content with the pessimistic policy of waiting which had been advocated by M. Politis. He could not believe that the proposal of the Polish Delegation for a solemn declaration prohibiting all wars of aggression if adopted by the Assembly would have no effect on the present situation. Many might prefer to work by means of Conventions having binding force, but he felt that faith in an ideal could be as important as a legal formula. It was not the mere clauses of a treaty which brought about peace, but the spirit of the peoples and the consciences of their responsible leaders. As evidence of the belief of the German Government in arbitration, he intended during the present session of the Assembly to append his signature to the optional clause of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice. A promise had been made that the disarmament of the nations which were vanquished in the war should be a preliminary to general disarmament, and he appealed to the Assembly not to betray the faith which had been placed in the sanctity of this pledge. Dr. Stresemann further developed the German view in regard to disarmament in a speech in the Assembly after the report of the Third Committee had been presented. He said that Germany was emphatically of opinion that the commencement of general disarmament should not be dependent on fresh guarantees of security, which was indeed the standpoint of the Assembly of 1926. He welcomed the resolutions of the Third Committee as being a satisfactory result of difficult negotiations. Every step forward in general disarmament would itself provide fresh elements of security for the whole world. Armaments could not, and should not, form the basis of security, and they were not even the most effective protection. The success of Germany in overcoming the psychological difficulties of disarmament presented by her great military traditions ought to make it easier for other countries to follow suit. He concluded by saying that the entire institution of the League could not live and be effective until the duty of general disarmament had been discharged and until in consequence the conditions necessary for that atmosphere required for a common and collective guarantee of peace had been fulfilled.

17. M. Briand made a speech such as the Assembly has learnt to expect of him, which appeared to be designed rather to create a favourable atmosphere and to restore confidence than to make any precise or concrete contribution to the subject-matter of the debate. He said that the strength of the League lay in the trust of the peoples; they did not always reason, but they had an instinctive feeling of trust in the League; they knew that without the League there was always the danger of a renewal of strife. Alluding to the speech of M. Politis, he said that the peoples were prepared to wait, but not to wait indefinitely.

18. Sir Austen Chamberlain, who was the last of the representatives of the Great Powers to speak in the opening debate, said that Great Britain had proved by her deeds her desire to see a real and large reduction of armaments; the British Army had been reduced immediately peace was secured to less than its pre-war level, and the British Fleet could not be compared with the Fleet which Great Britain had maintained not merely during the war but before the war. Turning from disarmament to arbitration, he asked the Assembly to bear in mind the special conditions of the British Empire, which was not a unitary system of government, such as prevailed in other countries, but a great community of free and equal nations, each autonomous, united in the oldest League of Peace in the world. It was not easy for such an Empire to accept obligations which could be readily undertaken by a homogeneous State speaking with the voice of a single Government. He claimed that Great Britain had arbitrated more grave problems than any other country in the world, and gave as a special instance the case of the Iraq frontier, in which Great Britain had used the verdict which had been given in her favour to open negotiations with Turkey and to make acceptable to her an award which could have been rigidly enforced. Passing on to security, he said that Great Britain had not merely accepted all the obligations of the Covenant, but had also become parties to the Locarno Agreement, knowing what it was to give a guarantee and the cost of keeping a guarantee. He asked whether other parties could not accept liabilities similar to those accepted at Locarno with a view to guaranteeing other troubled frontiers in the same way as Great Britain had guaranteed the western frontiers of France. Those who asked Great Britain to guarantee every frontier as she had guaranteed one in the Treaty of Locarno were asking her to undertake an obligation which was beyond her strength. All parties did not look upon the League in the same way; their faith was the same and their purpose was the same, but the way in which they would reach their purpose varied with their circumstances, their temperaments and their responsibilities. In the organic world it was not those organisms which came most quickly to maturity that reached the greatest strength or lasted the longest; and he regarded the League in the light of this analogy.

19. This speech naturally made a deep impression and had a decisive influence in ensuring that the subsequent discussion, which might otherwise have wasted itself in theory and idealism, was directed into channels calculated to lead to important practical results. Dr. Nansen, of Norway, in a speech in the Assembly on one of the last days of the session, paid a notable tribute to the force and conviction of Sir Austen Chamberlain's speech. He said that no one who had worked at Geneva had failed to realise that Great Britain, since the beginning of the League, had given the most consistently powerful support to it and its existing provisions. If Great Britain had hesitated to increase those commitments, they all realised that it was chiefly because she took those commitments so seriously and that she was anxious not to weaken her power to honour existing engagements by contracting new ones. They also realised the special position of Great Britain and of the Empire, and also the fact that owing to the British Navy any additional commitments in regard to arbitration and sanctions would be more onerous for Great Britain than for other countries. Even if they might regret the course which events had taken, they understood the reasons which in a large measure determined it. It is an important fact that Governments of the British Empire should thus receive recognition of their policy of not accepting obligations unless they fully intend and are assured of their ability to carry them out scrupulously. India, we believe, can claim to enjoy this reputation as much as any other part of the Empire.

Sphere of Action of the League.

20. At the Seventh Assembly Viscount Cecil had proposed that a Committee should be appointed to consider and report what questions are, and what are not, within the sphere of action of the League, within the meaning of the Preamble to, and Articles III and IV of, the Covenant. Lord Cecil had explained that this proposal was not animated by any desire to restrict or diminish the legitimate activities of the League; but it was felt in some quarters that there was a tendency which should be checked, to encourage the League to take up subjects which were foreign to the purpose for which it was founded, viz., to secure international co-operation making for the peace of the world. The proposal to set up a Committee was not accepted, and the Seventh Assembly not being able to agree upon any alternative formula, decided that the question should be postponed for further consideration at the Eighth Assembly. But before the Eighth Assembly opened the British Government informed the League that they believed that the consideration which the matter had already received had to a large extent met their object, and lessened the probability of the recurrence of those dangers to which attention had been called. In these circumstances they proposed that the question should not be further pursued for the present. Accordingly no further discussion occurred at the Eighth Assembly. We think that the ventilation of the question has undoubtedly been useful in creating a public opinion which will cause each new proposal for an extension of the League's operations to be carefully scrutinised. This was evident on several occasions this year, and notably when the proposal for taking up the question of alcoholism came before the Second Committee.

CODIFICATION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

23. Last year the First Committee was unable to arrive at any definite conclusion as to the instructions to be given to the Committee of Experts appointed to consider the possibility of codifying international law, of which Sir Mohammad Rafique is a member as an expert on Moslem law. That Committtee accordingly continued its work as before and in April 1927 presented a report to the Council to the effect that seven subjects were in certain of their aspects ripe for regulation by international action, namely:—

(1) Nationality.
(2) Territorial waters.
(3) Diplomatic privileges and immunities.
(4) Responsibility of States for damage done in their territory to the person or property of foreigners.
(5) Piracy.
(6) The procedure of International Conferences and procedure for the drafting of treaties.
(7) Exploitation of the products of the sea.

24. The Committee of Experts recommended that subject No. 6 should in the first instance be studied by the Secretariat, and that subject No. 7 should be examined by the Economic Committee of the League or by the Permanent International Council for the Exploration of the Sea at Copenhagen, and that the Council should then consider whether any further action was possible or desirable. Doubt had been expressed whether subjects Nos. 3 and 5 were of sufficient interest at the present time to justify the inclusion of them in the programme of an International Conference, but recommended that after the completion of such preparatory work as might be necessary, an International Conference should be convened to deal with subjects Nos. 1, 2 and 4. This report was referred by the Assembly to the First Committee.

25. After a lengthy discussion of the report and of a proposal made by the Paraguayan Delegation that a Committee of Experts should be entrusted with "the preparation of a general and comprehensive plan of codification of International Law, paying due regard as far as possible to the work of codification which is being carried on in America," the First Committee appointed a strong Sub-Committee to examine the whole subject and eventually submitted a report to the Assembly recommending that an International Conference should be convened to deal with subjects Nos. 1, 2 and 4 only, and that to that end a Preparatory Committee consisting of five persons possessing a wide knowledge of international practice, legal precedents and scientific data relating to those questions should be appointed to prepare a report detailing the bases of discussion at the Conference. The Committee recommended, also, that the Council should attach to the invitation to be issued to States to join in the Conference draft regulation for the procedure of the Conference indicating the general rules which should govern the discussions.

26. The Dutch Government had offered to convene the Conference and also to supervise the necessary preliminary work, but the First Committee considered that this should be undertaken entirely by the League. It recommended, however, that the Council should, if possible, arrange to have the Conference held at The Hague, and expressed the hope that the Dutch Government would agree to this. As regards the method of dealing with subjects Nos. 6 and 7, the First Committee approved generally the proposals of the Committee of Experts. The Assembly passed a resolution adopting all the recommendations of the First Committee on this matter. There was, however, a considerable controversy as to the provision of funds to enable the Committee of Experts to continue its work in 1928. This is referred to later in connection with the Budget and Supplementary Estimates.

27. With reference to the proposal of the Paraguayan delegation, the Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee, requested the Committee of Experts to consider at its next session under what conditions the work referred to in that proposal could be undertaken, and reserved a decision as to the course to be adopted until the Committee of Experts had made its suggestions and the Council had had an opportunity of considering them. The speeches delivered in the First Committee indicated that the general opinion was that the Paraguayan proposal was too ambitious, and that in any case it was desirable to await the result of the efforts to be made to deal with the three subjects specified above before attempting anything in the nature of the general codification of International Law. But the Assembly seemed to be in general agreement with the view that the classification and extension of International Law had a close relation with the problem of security, as it would extend the scope of arbitration. In principle, therefore, the work of codification has acquired a new importance.

On 27th September the Assembly adopted the following Resolutions:—

1. The Assembly:

Assembly Resolution (27 Sept.).

Having considered the documents transmitted to it by the Council in conformity with its resolution of 13th June 1927, and the report of the First Committee on the measures to be taken as a result of the work of the Committee of Experts for the Progressive Codification of International Law;

Considering that it is material for the progress of justice and the maintenance of peace to define, improve and develop international law;

Convinced that it is therefore the duty of the League to make every effort to contribute to the progressive codification of international law;

Observing that, on the basis of the work of the Committee of Experts, to which it pays a sincere tribute, systematic preparations can be made for a first Codification Conference, the holding of which in 1929 can already be contemplated;

Decides:

(1) To submit the following questions for examination by a first Conference:—

(a) Nationality;

(b) Territorial waters;

(c) Responsibility of States for Damage done in their Territory to the Person or Property of Foreigners;

(2) To request the Council to instruct the Secretariat to cause its services to study, on the lines indicated in the First Committee's report, the question of the Procedure of International Conferences and Procedure for the Conclusion and Drafting of Treaties;

(3) To instruct the Economic Committee of the League to study, in collaboration with the Permanent International Council for the Exploration of the Sea at Copenhagen and any other organisation specially interested in this matter, the question whether and in what terms, for what species and in what areas, international protection of marine fauna could be established. The Committee will report to the Council the results of its enquiry, indicating whether a Conference of Experts should be convened for such purpose at an early date;

(4) To ask the Council to make arrangements with the Netherlands Government with a view to choosing The Hague as the meeting-place of the first Codification Conference, and to summon the Conference as soon as the preparations for it are sufficiently advanced;

(5) To entrust the Council with the task of appointing, at the earliest possible date, a Preparatory Committee, composed of five persons possessing a wide knowledge of international practice, legal precedents, and scientific data relating to the questions coming within the scope of the first Codification Conference, this Committee being instructed to prepare a report comprising sufficiently detailed bases of discussion on each question, in accordance with the indications contained in the report of the First Committee;

(6) To recommend the Council to attach to the invitations draft regulations for the Conference, indicating a number of general rules which should govern the discussions, more particularly as regards—

(a) the possibility, if occasion should arise, of the States represented at the Conference adopting amongst themselves rules accepted by a majority vote;

(b) the possibility of drawing up, in respect of such subjects as may lend themselves thereto, a comprehensive convention and, within the framework of that convention, other more restricted conventions;

(c) the organisation of a system for the subsequent revision of the agreements entered into; and

(d) the spirit of the codification, which should not confine itself to the mere registration of the existing rules, but should aim at adapting them as far as possible to contemporary conditions of international life.

(7) To ask the Committee of Experts at its next session to complete the work it has already begun.

2. The Assembly,

Having taken note of the First Committee's report on the proposal of the delegation of Paraguay for the preparation of a general and comprehensive plan of codification of international law;

Desires to place on record the importance which it attaches to the spirit underlying the proposal of the delegation of Paraguay;

Requests the Council to invite the Committee of Experts to consider at its next session under what conditions the work referred to in the said proposal could be undertaken;

And will decide later upon the course to be adopted after taking note of the suggestions of the Committee of Experts and the opinion of the Council in regard thereto.

ACCESSION TO INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS GIVEN SUBJECT TO RATIFICATION.

Assembly Resolution (23 Sept).

On 23rd September the Assembly adopted the following Resolution:—

The procedure of accession to international agreements given subject to ratification is an admissible one which the League should neither discourage nor encourage.

Nevertheless, if a State gives its accession, it should know that, if it does not expressly mention that this accession is subject to ratification, it shall be deemed to have undertaken a final obligation. If it desires to prevent this consequence, it must expressly declare at the time of accession that the accession is given subject to ratification.

COMMITTEE II.—Technical Organisations.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

28. The success of the Economic Conference held at Geneva in May was the most important achievement of the League in the last 12 months. We have already referred to the subject in general in our account of the opening debate of the Assembly. With the exception of the group of questions relating to arbitration, security and disarmament, this was the most vital topic on the agenda of the Eighth Assembly. Broadly speaking, the issue which the Report of the Conference raised was whether, both in principle and in practice, it would be reasonable to recognise and possible to effect in the domain of economics a closer international relationship than in the past.

29. Two main questions presented themselves, viz., the degree in which the Assembly should accept the conclusions of the Conference and advocate their pursuance, and the developments which would accordingly be necessary in the economic organs of the League for the purpose of the new policy.

30. Those who wish to study the problem in detail are advised to refer to the Report of the Conference and the Report of the Indian Delegation which have been published in a convenient form in India. Many countries had already found themselves able to endorse the conclusions of the Conference and to express their intention to co-operate in carrying them into effect. This was not yet possible in the case of India for reasons which were explained in a declaration made in the Second Committee by our leader. This declaration is quoted textually in Appendix III, Annex VIII, and the following is a summary:—

31. The Earl of Lytton said that India supported unhesitatingly the general principle that the economic policy of States should be directed towards the peace and prosperity of the world, and would welcome the elimination of any economic factors calculated to cause friction or misunderstanding. He believed there was no important recommendation of the Conference which was inconsistent with the past or present economic policy of India, and that India on the whole stood to gain by the adoption throughout the world of the general recommendations of the Conference. If on minor points there were any inconsistencies the Government of India would seek to reconcile them. The future policy of India was likely to be as much in conformity with the recommendations of the Conference as that of the past. His inability to accept those recommendations without reserve was due not to the fact that any action was contemplated in the future which was inconsistent with them, but rather to the lack of opportunity of ascertaining public opinion in India during the short time that had elapsed since the Conference was held and the undesirability of committing the peoples of India to agreement with a document which they had not yet studied. It would militate against ultimate accepance by India were she committed in advance of the study and discussion of the Report for which facilities were being provided. He referred to the recent grant of a large measure of fiscal autonomy to India and to the natural desire of the Indian people to guard their recently-gained freedom. The policy of discriminating protection did not conflict with the principles laid down by the Conference. He had very little doubt that the Report of the Conference, when it had been fully examined by the public in India, would be found to be in general conformity with Indian economic policy, and that if the decision of India was left unhampered by premature commitments the spirit in which the Conference performed its task would be appreciated and its recommendations generally accepted.

32. A Resolution was submitted to the Second Committee by one delegate proposing to endorse the conclusions of the Conference as a whole and without reserve, but we were instrumental in influencing the form of the resolution finally adopted so that it gave satisfaction to our point of view. This resolution noted with satisfaction that many Governments had made declarations accepting the principles and stating their intention of co-operating in their application, while no declaration in the contrary sense had been made. It expressed a belief that there was every reason to hope for universal approval when the public opinion of all countries had been sufficiently instructed, and it recommended the resolutions of the Conference to the favourable consideration of all Governments, and trusted that those Governments which had not yet declared their support would shortly be able to do so.

Economic Organisation of the League of Nations.

The following is the text of the Resolution adopted by the Assembly on 24th September:— Assembly Resolution (24 Sept.).

The Assembly:

Takes note of the Report of the Economic Conference held in May last, in accordance with the initiative taken by the Assembly at its Sixth Ordinary Session;

Congratulates sincerely the President and the members of the Conference appointed by the Governments of 50 countries upon the fact that, comprising so many qualifications and representing every variety of responsible opinion, they were able to agree unanimously upon recommendations at once definite in character and wide in range, whose adoption would effect a substantial improvement in the present economic policy of the world;

Notes with satisfaction that many Governments have already made declarations accepting the principles laid down by the Conference and stating their intention of co-operating in their application, while no declaration in the contrary sense has been made;

Believes, therefore, that there is every reason to hope for universal approval when the public opinion of all countries has been sufficiently instructed;

Recommends the Resolutions of the Conference, as the Council did in June 1927, to the favourable consideration of all Governments and trusts that those Governments which have not yet declared their support will shortly be able to do so;

Invites the Economic Organisation of the League of Nations to prepare as soon as possible a summary of the replies of the various Governments as to their attitude to the recommendations of the International Economic Conference, and to make known the action that the various Governments have taken or may take in pursuance of the recommendations of the Economic Conference;

Trusts that the economic policies of all countries may develop in accordance with the principles laid down by the Conference and desires that the Economic Organisation of the League should take these recommendations as the basis of its work;

Trusts, in particular, that the recommendations of the Conference relating to tariffs and commercial policy will be put into effect, not only by national action and bilateral agreements, but also whenever practicable, by collective conventions reached by means of international conferences of accredited representatives with the aim of gradually evolving among the trading nations of the world, and particularly among those of Europe, common lines of policy beneficial to all and not subject to the uncertainties of purely bilateral bargaining, careful attention being given to the special conditions existing at any moment and to the necessity of realising this policy by stages and without undue disturbance;

Expects the Council of the League of Nations and the Economic Organisation to devote their untiring efforts to the realisation of this urgent task and hopes that the Governments will give to it their cordial support and active collaboration.

33. The development of the economic organisation of the League had been much discussed at the Economic Conference itself, which in the end had contended itself with recording a resolution to the effect that, while offering no suggestions for a permanent organisation, it could not do better than draw the Council's attention to the well-balanced composition of the Preparatory Committee, which had achieved excellent results in the preparatory work of the Conference. The problem was referred by the Council to the Assembly, and it is a fact of some significance that it was the Assembly and not the Council which worked out the scheme of organisation described below. The possibilities ranged from a continuance of the Economic Committee in its existing form—that is to say, a committee of 14 members nominated for their personal expert qualifications—to an independent organisation on the lines of the International Labour Organisation. Each extreme had its advocates. The continuance of the Economic Committee on its existing footing was advocated on the ground of practical efficiency, while those who proposed other schemes were influenced by a desire to introduce the principle of representation, whether it should be national or functional representation, so as to secure the widest possible authority and the greatest support. The resolution which embodied the conclusions of the Second Committee was a compromise combining both idea. The Economic Committee will be increased from 14 to 15 members and the basis of appointment will remain the same, with some modification of its actual membership. It will continue to be the organ through which the Council deals with economic affairs and its principal work in the near future will lie within the sphere of the economic relations between States and their economic policies so far as they have international aspects. Under a new provision it will have power, subject to Council provision, and in consultation with the States in question, to name economic correspondents in countries which have no member on the Committee. In addition to the Economic Committee there is to be created an Advisory Committee, the object of which will be to follow the application of the recommendations of the Economic Conference. It will be similar in numbers, and in the equilibrium of interests represented by its members, to the Preparatory Committee for the Economic Conference, and will include persons competent in industry, commerce, agriculture, finance, transport, labour questions, and questions relative to consumption. The International Labour Office will be invited to submit the names of three labour members, and arrangements will be made to secure the co-operation of the International Institute of Agriculture and of the International Chamber of Commerce. Its meetings will be attended by five members of the Economic Committee. It will submit its report directly to the Council of the League, at the same time forwarding a copy of its decisions to the Economic Committee and to the other technical organisations concerned.

34. The respective functions of the two bodies are not very clearly defined, and this lack of clarity is the result of a certain divergence of views. But the differences in the constitution and in the character of membership of the two bodies will probably tend in themselves to produce a differentiation of function, and will lead empirically to a solution of the difficulty which could not be entirely resolved in debate.

35. India has not hitherto been represented on the Economic Committee, but she was represented on the Preparatory Committee for the Economic Conference. We think that she has much to gain from representation, and a strong claim to it. That claim has been presented in the proper quarter, and Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar referred to it in a speech in the Second Committee (see Appendix III, Annex X), in which he pointed out not only the necessity for representing agricultural interests, but also the special difficulty of doing so owing to the comparative lack of organisation in agriculture. In the report which he presented to the Second Committee, and which was approved, M. Loucheur pointed out that the programme which the Economic Conference had drawn up for the League could not be successfully carried out unless agricultural interests were represented as widely as possible in the economic organisation of the League, and declared that it was the unanimous recommendation of the Second Committee that the Council should give very special attention to this important question of the representation of agriculture. There is further a need for the representation of Asia. We believe that the claim of India has since been recognised.

On 24th September the Assembly adopted the following Resolution:—

Assembly Resolution (24 Sept.).

Whereas, in addition to the economic tasks hitherto undertaken by the League, much important and extensive work will result from the recommendations of the Economic Conference;

Whereas it is essential that the different interests and organisations which collaborated in the preparation of the Conference should continue to give their support and advice in the work of securing effect to its recommendations; and

Whereas the Conference took the following resolution:—

"The Conference wishes in the first instance to express its high appreciation of the work of the Economic Committee and the Secretariat of the League.

"The Conference is of opinion that the success of its work will depend upon the execution of the principles laid down.

"With regard to the action to be taken on its recommendations, the Conference, while offering no suggestion as to a permanent organisation, cannot do better than draw the Council's attention to the well-balanced composition of the Preparatory Committee, which has yielded excellent results in the preparatory work of the Conference:":

The Assembly considers:

(a) That the Economic Committee should continue to be, as at present, the organ through which the Council deals with economic affairs and that it should be constituted—under such rules as the Council may consider appropriate for its effective functioning—so as to be best suited for its principal work which, in the near future at least, will lie within the sphere of the economic relations between States and their economic policies so far as they have international aspects. It should consist of not more than 15 members.

(b) That the Economic Committee should have the power to appoint temporary sub-committees of experts for preparatory work and, subject to Council approval and in consultation with the States in question, to name economic correspondents in countries which have no member on the Committee.

(c) That a "Consultative Committee," the object of which is to follow the application of the Economic Conference recommendations, should be constituted by the Council.

It might be composed of about thirty-five members, as was the Preparatory Committee, and the conditions of equilibrium attained in the latter between the various elements should be maintained as far as possible.

It should therefore include, among others, persons competent in industry, commerce, agriculture, finance, transport, labour questions, and questions relative to consumption.

The International Labour Office should be invited to submit the names of three labour members for this Committee.

The Council will doubtless also wish to secure for the Committee the co-operation of the International Institute of Agriculture and of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Five members chosen by the Economic Committee should take part in the work of the Consultative Committee with the same rights as the other members.

The Consultative Committee should submit its report directly to the Council of the League of Nations. At the same time, it would forward a copy to the Economic Committee and to the other technical organisations concerned.

WORK OF THE HEALTH ORGANISATION.

36. Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar had indicated in his speech in the Assembly, of which we have already given a summary, that the Health activities of the League had a special interest for India.. It was therefore a very appropriate compliment to India and to the Indian Delegation that he was elected Rapporteur for the general work of the Health Organisation. The report which he presented, first to the Health Committee and later to the Assembly, and his remarks in connection with it, is reproduced in Appendix III, Annex III. It will suffice to say here that, in the resolution which he submitted to the Second Committee, and which was in turn submitted by the Second Committee to the Assembly and approved, the Indian point of view was explicitly recognised. In the report note was made of the tendency towards universality in the work of the Health Organisation and of the circumstance that the activities of the Singapore Bureau form the chief physical link between Eastern countries, and the League Organisation. The report stated further that those countries, some of whom like India are large contributors to the general budget, appreciated this aspect of the League's work, as was evident from their close co-operation with it. It also referred to the interchange of Public Health officers which is being arranged to take place in India in the approaching winter, and of the possibility that the President of the Health Committee and the Director of the Health Section might be able to join the party. It referred also to the hope of the Government of India that the League's Malaria Commission might be able to visit India during the latter part of 1928. Reference was also made to the participation by Colonel Graham in the Health Committee's work and to the departmental Rabies Conference in which India was represented. It is particularly satisfactory to record that the necessity for an assurance of the permanence of the Singapore Bureau, and of its adequate financing, was emphasised.

37. The universality of this department of the League's activities was further marked this year by the initiation of health work in Latin-America.

On 20th September the Assembly adopted the following Resolutions:—

The Assembly:

Having taken note of the reports dealing with the work of the Health Organisation of the League during the past year, expresses its gratification at the continued development of its international activities; Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

Notes with satisfaction the growth and increasing usefulness of the work of the Epidemiological Intelligence Bureau at Singapore, due in large measure to the sympathetic co-operation of all Eastern Administrations, in whose interest it was primarily created;

Notes with satisfaction the terms of the Agreement concluded between the League of Nations and the Permanent Committee of the Office International d'Hygiène Publique, whereby the services of the Singapore Bureau will be made available in the discharge, on behalf of the Office, of certain of the obligations imposed by the International Sanitary Convention of Paris, 1926, and also the further agreement recently concluded with the object of increasing the mutual co-operation in other directions between the Health Organisation and the Office International d'Hygiène Publique;

Expresses its appreciation of the work accomplished by the Malaria Commission, the Sleeping-Sickness Commission, and the International Rabies Conference, and of the progress made in the investigations now being carried out with regard to infant mortality and health insurance.

Further, the Assembly, noting the recommendations which have been made by the International Pacific Health Conference held in Melbourne in December 1926 in relation to the work which might be undertaken by the Health Organisation for the study of health problems in the Pacific area, expresses its hope that the possibilities of action in this sense will receive full and early consideration by the Health Committee.

The Assembly records its unqualified approval and appreciation of the services rendered to international public health by the Health Committee and its expert Commissions.

The Assembly:

Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

1. Having taken note of the report of the President of the Health Committee on the possibilities of technical co-operation with public health and medical authorities in Latin-American countries, and also of the report on the work of the Conference of Health Experts on Infant Welfare held at Montevideo;

2. Notes with satisfaction that the activities of the Health Organisation of the League of Nations have extended to several countries of Latin-America and that fruitful co-operation may be anticipated as the result of the Health Committee's mission;

3. Welcomes the practical suggestions for continued co-operation which have been made by the health authorities and experts of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay;

4. Considers that the realisation of these suggestion would result in creating links between the health work of the League and the activities of national health administrations in these countries and would represent a good method of developing the work of the League's technical organisations in Latin-America;

5. Requests the Council, after having obtained the Health Committee's advice on these different suggestions for co-operation with Latin-American countries, to consider how they may be put into practice.

ALCOHOLISM.

38. At the Assembly of 1926 the delegations of Finland, Poland and Sweden submitted a proposal to the effect that the League of Nations should include the question of Alcoholism in the programme of its work. Consideration of this proposal was adjourned until the Eighth Assembly. Meanwhile, the Foreign Ministers of Finland, Poland and Sweden, with whom were also associated the Foreign Ministers of Belgium, Denmark and Czecho-Slovakia, had sent in a memorandum giving a more precise description of what they had in mind. This memorandum contained two definite proposals: (1) that the Assembly should request the Council to convene a conference with a view to the framing of a general International Convention regulating the smuggling of alcohol, and (2) that the Assembly should request the Council to appoint an Advisory Committee on Alcoholism, or a Sub-Committee of the Health Committee to deal with Alcoholism, which the various organs of the League might consult when studying questions connected with the problem and which might be generally available for information or investigations.

39. Although these were the specific proposals which the Committee had primarily to discuss, their presentation raised a general question of some importance, because, except in the isolated cases of the Mandated Territories and the Protection of Women and Children, the League had not hitherto had occasion to touch the subject of Alcoholism, and it was felt in various quarters that the general subject would be an unsuitable, and even dangerous, one for the League to take up.

40. As soon as the question was raised in the Committee the delegation responsible for its promotion was challenged as to its admissibility under the Articles of the Covenant. In reply paragraphs (c) and (f) of Article 23 were quoted, referring respectively to the Traffic in Opium and other Dangerous Drugs and to the Prevention and Control of Disease. A considerable debate followed, and the weight of opinion in the Committee was against acceptance of the proposal in the form in which it was presented. No general agreement was reached as to the admissibility of Alcoholism under the Covenant, but it seemed to be recognised by all that, whether or not a subject was admissible under the Covenant, it might be taken up by the League with the consent of all the States Members. Eventually the Finnish delegate and those associated with him agreed not to pursue the proposals in their existing form, but declared their intention of bringing up the question of Alcoholism later in another form. Accordingly at one of the final sessions of the Assembly an application was made for the subject to be placed in a new form on the agenda of the Ninth Assembly.

41. As to the position taken up in the debate by the Indian Delegation, our instructions were to oppose the proposal for the creation of a new Advisory Body for Alcoholism, on the grounds that no case had been made out for the necessity of such a body, as there were other sources from which advice and information could be obtained, and that it was undesirable, from the general, and especially the financial, point of view, to sanction the creation of a new body except for imperative reasons. But we had been given discretion as to the attitude we should adopt towards the proposal for a conference on smuggling. Intervening in the debate, Sir Fazl-i-Husain stated (for text of speech see Appendix III, Annex VI), that opinion in India in regard to alcoholism was very strong and decidedly in favour of a policy of controlling the supply of liquor, while there was a strong body of public opinion actually in favour of prohibition. If prohibition had not yet been adopted in India it was chiefly for the reason that it would be so difficult to enforce it. He said that alcoholism was treated in India as an evil, although it was not yet a very serious problem there. But, as elsewhere, it tended to spread with the growth of industrialism. In regard to the question whether alcoholism should be dealt with as an international matter, he wished to reserve his opinion, but he recognised the existence in the Committee of a strong body of opinion against the proposals, and he found himself in complete agreement with those who maintained that in this debate the case for the proposals had not been made out. He felt that it would be wiser that those who supported the proposals should not pursue them further for the present, but should wait for a more appropriate occasion. He urged those in favour of them to realise that the result of a division might be prejudicial to the cause which they had at heart.

The following is the text of the Resolution by which the Assembly decided on 23rd September that the subject should be brought up in a new form next year:—

Assembly Resolution (23 Sept.).

The Assembly decides to place on the agenda of its Ninth Ordinary Session the following proposal by the Finnish, Polish and Swedish Delegations:

"Whereas it is desirable to co-ordinate the work which the League of Nations has undertaken, or will be called upon to undertake, on the subject of alcoholism, the Assembly requests the Council:

"(1) To appoint a Committee of experts on alcoholism;

"(2) To instruct this Committee to study the aspects of the question of alcoholism which come within the competence of the League of Nations, and which might be made the subject of scientific or practical work."

INTELLECTUAL CO-OPERATION.

42. This Organisation consists of (1) a League Committee formed on the initiative of the French to carry out a resolution of the First Assembly on "the educational influence which it is the duty of the Council to exert with a view to developing a liberal spirit of goodwill and world-wide co-operation," and (2) an Institute which was founded in Paris some years later, at the expense of the French Government, to act as the executive organ of the Committee. The Indian Delegation has always been sympathetic in its attitude to this Organisation, and India is represented on the Committee by Sir Jagadis Bose.

43. It would be impossible to describe briefly the numerous activities of a scientific, artistic and literary nature which the Organisation at present has in hand. The resolution which was adopted by the Assembly this year refers to projects for the creation of an international co-ordination service of information offices attached to libraries, for co-ordination between the organs of bibliography for the various sciences, for an international office for annual tables of constants and mathematical quantities, for a congress on popular arts, for an international agreement with regard to casts, and for an extension of the work of museums as a means of artistic education.

44. When the work of this Organisation was under discussion in the Second Committee, Sir Fazl-i-Husain made a speech (reproduced in Appendix III, Annex IV) in which he said it was impossible to over-estimate this work in the scheme of League activities, for in his opinion the disarmament of ideas, which was in fact the breaking of the barriers of prejudice, was no less important than Disarmament strictly so-called. He paid a tribute of appreciation and admiration to those who had served on the Committee and to the beneficial character, both for all Members of the League and for non-members as well, of the various schemes which were in hand. It seemed to him that the work might possibly gain in its character of universality if kindred fields of work in the Orient were included within its scope, and he mentioned Indian and Mesopotamian archæology as being at least comparable with that of Europe. The term "international" was not limited in any any way to the nations of Europe, and the evolution of international culture should afford every opportunity for the culture of the East to contribute towards it equally with that of the West. He finally appealed to the authorities of the Organisation to consider means of ensuring that what was best in the culture of the Orient should be reflected in the texture of the international culture of the future. His remarks were afterwards referred to with sympathy and approval by the delegates of Great Britain and Germany.

45. The Assembly, in the resolution which it adopted, expressed its appreciation of the increase in the number and activity of the national committees on Intellectual Co-operation, and stated that the regular co-operation between well-organised national committees and the International Committee was of ever-increasing utility to the work of Intellectual Co-operation. The Assembly accordingly invited States which had not already done so to consider the possibility of providing the necessary funds to meet the expenses of their respective national committees. We understand that the League was informed in 1925, as regards India, that the Inter-University Board wished to be recognised as an institution with which the Intellectual Co-operation Committee might correspond with a view to the formation of a national committee in India. But, so far as we know, no progress has been made in this direction. We therefore venture to bring to notice suggestions, which have been made by Sir Fazl-i-Husain, who, as already mentioned, acted as the Indian representative on this subject, and who is much impressed with the belief that India might derive great benefit from contact with this Organisation. His view is that, education being a transferred Provincial subject, there is need of a central agency to disseminate information to the various Provinces such as existed until a few years ago in the All-India Advisory Board on Education. He considers that there should be the same liaison between the intellectual activities of the Indian Provinces as the Intellectual Co-operation Organisation serves to create under the League between those of the different nations. Such an institution would enable India both to derive benefit from the international movement and to contribute to its success.

46. Two years ago there was set up, under the Organisation for Intellectual Co-operation, a Sub-Committee of Experts for the instruction of children and youth in the existence and aims of the League of Nations. Its Interim Report came before the Assembly of 1926, and it had since held further meetings and had drawn up a more comprehensive Report which was submitted to the Eighth Assembly. The Indian point of view has been represented on this Sub-Committee by Mr. S. N. Chaturvedi. The Interim Report has already been under the Government of India's consideration, and we were informed that the Government of India were in general agreement with the recommendations, save that on several points modifications would be necessary to suit the present educational conditions of India. We were further informed that, as education was a Provincial subject, action would have to be taken by Local Governments responsible to their Legislatures and by Universities which are partially autonomous bodies. Unfortunately, this information reached us after the discussion of the subject in the Second Committee was finished. We venture to express the hope that the later and more comprehensive Report of the Sub-Committee will be examined in India with every desire to carry out its recommendations as far as possible, because we believe that the purpose of these recommendations must be considered of first-class importance by all who recognise the necessity for consolidating the principles on which the League is founded. Incidentally, we would call attention to one recommendation of the Sub-Committee proposing the establishment of a corps of international lecturers, with special reference to countries where geographical or other considerations render League instruction particularly difficult. We understand that the circumstances of India were specially present to the Sub-Committee when this recommendation was proposed to it and adopted. For financial reasons consideration of this recommendation has been deferred.

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Assembly has noted with satisfaction the favourable reports presented by the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation and the Governing Body of the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation. These reports show that the Intellectual Co-operation Organisation has now in hand a large number of definite and practical undertakings of international co-operation in regard to various scientific, artistic and literary activities, and that results have already been obtained.

The Assembly observes that, during the past year, several nations, in response to the appeal it made in the previous year, have made a grant to the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation. The countries making such grants are at present as follows: Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, France, Hungary, Italy, Monaco, Poland, Switzerland. The Assembly hopes that their examples will be followed by the other nations. The reports now before it show clearly that it is only the smallness of its financial resources which prevents the Intellectual Co-operation Organisation from rendering all the services which may now be expected of it.

The Assembly is glad to see the increase in the number and activity of National Committees in Intellectual Co-operation. The regular co-operation between well-organised National Committees and the International Committee is of ever-increasing utility to the work of intellectual co-operation. The Assembly would therefore refer to the recommendation it made in 1924 and invite the States Members of the League which have not already done so to consider the possibility of providing the necessary funds to meet the expenses of their respective National Committees.

The Assembly notes, as being particularly worthy of attention and encouragement, the proposals of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation in regard to the following points:—

1. The creation at the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation of an international co-ordination service of information offices attached to libraries. The Assembly emphasises the importance, in this connection, of national information offices, and trusts that such offices may be established in those countries where they do not already exist.

2. The proposals for co-ordination between the organs of bibliography for the various sciences drawn up by the Committees of experts under excellent technical conditions, in such a way as to give every satisfaction to the persons concerned.

3. The recommendation made by the International Committee in favour of the International Office for Annual Tables of Constants and Mathematical Quantities. Governments, scholars and industrial organisations are equally interested in the continuance of this enterprise, which is at present in danger owing to lack of funds. An understanding between Governments is extremely desirable in order to ensure the regular publication of the Tables.

4. The steps taken with a view to:—

Preparing for the Popular Arts Congress;

An international agreement with regard to casts;

An extension of the work of museums as a means of artistic education, etc.

The Assembly thanks the Czecho-Slovak Government for the subsidy so generously granted in order to facilitate the holding of the Popular Arts Congress at Prague. It congratulates the Swiss Federal Government, and more particularly the city of Berne, on the initiative regarding an International Exhibition of Popular Arts to be held n that city. The Assembly requests the Secretary-General of the League of Nations and the Institute of Intellectual Co-operation to render every assistance in their power to the promoters of this enterprise.

The Assembly has noted the remarkable report presented by M. Jules Destrée on behalf of the Sub-Committee of Experts for the Instruction of Children and Youth in the Existence and Aims of the League of Nations. It approves the recommendations made by the experts, and instructs the Secretary-General to communicate them to the Governments of the States Members of the League of Nations, requesting them, so far as may be possible in each particular case, to take the necessary measures to give effect to the recommendations.

The Assembly approves the creation of a League of Nations Educational Information Centre under the conditions laid down by the Sub-Committee of Experts. It decides that the Sub-Committee of Experts shall continue its work on the lines suggested by the French representative in his report approved by the Council at its meeting of 2nd September 1927.

Creation of an Educational Cinematographical Institute.

47. The Italian Delegation submitted for the approval of the Assembly an offer on the part of the Italian Government to create at Rome an International Educational Cinematographical Institute. This Institute would be under the direction of the League of Nations, but would be carried on at the expense of the Italian Government, and established in a palace offered by that Government. The proposal was referred to the Second Committee, which dealt with it in connection with Intellectual Co-operation. Some anxiety was felt in regard to it by those who chiefly espouse the cause of the Institute of Intellectual Co-operation in Paris, which had already given some consideration to cinematography. It was obviously necessary to avoid any possibility of duplication or conflict between two League bodies, and it was further desirable to establish safeguards in regard to an institution which would be in a special relation to a particular national Government and would have as its object the guidance or inspiration, in the name of the League, of the policy of other Governments in a branch which is likely to be of increasing importance of such a subject as education. A Sub-Committee was appointed to reconcile the divergent opinions, and Sir Fazl-i-Husain served on this Sub-Committee. The Sub-Committee agreed upon a formula eventually approved by the Second Committee and by the Assembly, which acknowledged with gratitude the generous offer of the Italian Government, and left the decision as to the steps to be taken to the Council of the League, after consultation with the competent organisations, more particularly the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation, and in agreement with the Italian Government. It is understood that the Second Committee will have a further opportunity of discussing the subject in detail next year.

On 20th September the Assembly approved the Report of the Second Committee on this subject, which was as follows:—

Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

The proposal of the Royal Italian Government, submitted by Senator Cippico to the Assembly at its Eighth Ordinary Session on the 6th instant and referred to the Second Committee for consideration by the Assembly's resolution on the 9th instant, provides the means of carrying out certain suggestions made by M. Breitscheid, Rapporteur to the Second Committee for questions of intellectual co-operation, and happily extends their scope.

M. Breitscheid has already pointed out that cinematography was an important factor in education summarising thus the results of very wide experience and endorsing the resolutions of various congresses and of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation.

The Italian Government's proposal has in view the creation at Rome of an International Educational Cinematographic Institute, under the direction of the League of Nations, but to be carried on at the expense of the Italian Government and established in a palace offered by that Government. The Assembly is therefore asked to acknowledge with gratitude the generous offer of the Royal Italian Government, the decision as to the steps to be taken being reserved for the Council, after consultation with the competent organisations, more particularly the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation, in agreement with the Italian Government.

RELATIONS BETWEEN LEAGUE OF NATIONS AND INSTITUTES OR BODIES SET UP UNDER ITS AUTHORITY.

48. It was in consequence of the discussion on the last subject that the Hon. Dame Edith Lyttelton, of the British Delegation, submitted to the Assembly a proposal that the general question of the relations between the League of Nations and institutes or bodies set up under its authority but not forming part of its organisation should be studied, and that the principles which should govern their acceptance by the League should be laid down by the Council. The Second Committee examined this proposal, and on its recommendation the Assembly invited the Council to have the question studied, and asked that a report should be submitted to next year's Assembly.

On 26th September the Assembly approved the Report of the Second Committee on this subject, which was as follows:—

Assembly Resolution (26 Sept.).

The Second Committee has made a preliminary examination of the draft resolution presented by the Hon. Dame Edith Lyttelton with regard to institutes or bodies set up under the authority of the League of Nations.

It has noted the great importance of this question, and proposes that the Assembly should invite the Council to have this question studied and to ask that a report on this subject should be submitted to the Assembly in its Ninth Ordinary Session in 1928.

ECONOMIC COMMITTEE.

49. This Committee has hitherto dealt with a number of matters of a severely technical character, and of somewhat second-class importance. As a result of the resolution which we have already described in the Report of the Economic Conference, these activities are in future to be broadened, and the Committee will have a certain measure of responsibility in regard to the first-class questions of economics, including, above all, the question of tariffs. During the last year the normal activities of the Committee have been subordinated to those connected with the Economic Conference, and some of the subjects under consideration, for instance, the abolition of import and export prohibitions and restrictions, became merged in the agenda of the Conference. It has, however, continued to do useful work, and one subject which is referred to under the next heading is the draft Protocol on the execution of foreign arbitral awards.

50. Sir Fazl-i-Husain spoke in the debate in the Second Committee on the work of Economic Committee (for text of speech see Appendix III, Annexure V), and congratulated the Economic Committee on a good year's work in spite of the fact that its activities had been naturally overshadowed by the Economic Conference. With reference to the approaching conference for the abolition of import and export prohibitions and restrictions, he said that India welcomed this conference because, like other such conferences, it would contribute to the mutual understanding which followed a frank examination of circumstances. He stated that India was prepared to incur responsibilities which others were ready to incur, to the same extent and simultaneously, and that it was on reciprocity that a country in the position of India was bound to rely. With regard to the subject of the treatment of foreign nationals and enterprises he called attention to a defect in the draft resolution, and proposed an addition which was accepted. He stated the position of India with regard to the Protocol on commercial arbitration and expressed the view that the objection which had hitherto been taken to this Protocol on the part of India might be withdrawn when it and the Convention which was being drawn up on the execution of awards came to be considered together. On the subject of economic statistics he agreed that there could be no two opinions as to the desirability of unification, but he pointed out that the statistics which were desired might not be always available, and that their collection might be so costly that some States would not feel justified in incurring the requisite expenditure. He stated, finally, that the importance of economic barometers could not be over-estimated. The economic barometer of the future would have to be one which was extremely sensitive and delicate, and which served for all countries, all times and all continents. He thought that, the work was one which in its universality was an ideal work for the League to accomplish.

The Assembly:

1. Reiterating its conviction that the conclusion of an International Convention for the abolition of import and export prohibitions and restrictions would greatly facilitate the recovery and future development of world trade, appeals to all Governments to send duly authorised representatives to the Conference which will take place at Geneva on 17th October 1927, and expresses the most earnest hope that no efforts will be spared to bring the work of the Conference to a successful issue;

2. Notes with satisfaction that steps have already been taken by the Council to set in motion the preparatory work connected with the execution of certain urgent resolutions of the International Economic Conference, in particular those relating to tariffs and commercial treaties, to the unification of Customs nomenclature and to the treatment of foreign nationals and enterprises duly admitted to carry out their activity on the territory of a foreign State;

3. Takes note of the ratifications of the International Convention relating to the simplification of Customs Formalities and of the Protocol of 1923 on Arbitration Clauses during the past year, and expresses the hope that those States which have not yet found it possible to adhere to these two international Acts will do so at an early date;

4. Notes with satisfaction that it is proposed to convene a Conference in the near future with a view to achieving greater uniformity in economic statistics;

5. Notes with approval that the recommendation that the Economic and Financial Selection of the Secretariat should issue a Statistical Year-book has now borne fruit, and recommends that this valuable volume should become one of the annual publications of the League;

6. Observes with satisfaction the progress which the Economic Committee has made in the study of the question of false declarations, in Customs matters, of the progressive assimilation of laws relating to bills of exchange and cheques, and of economic barometers, and hopes that no effort will be spared to bring this work to a successful issue;

7. Notes with satisfaction the progress made in the Economic Section's enquiries regarding the direct and indirect means placed at the disposal of foreign purchasers in the different countries for the purpose of satisfying themselves of the quality of the goods which they acquire in those countries;

Recommends that these enquiries should be pursued on the lines indicated in the provisional pamphlet communicated to the Second Committee and that the Governments should assist the Secretariat in order that a further publication, which should be as complete as possible, may be issued at an early date.

OPENING OF CONVENTION RELATING TO THE EXECUTION OF FOREIGN ARBITRAL AWARDS.

51. A Protocol on commercial arbitration was adopted at the Fourth Assembly recognising the universal validity as between Signatory States of clauses for the settlement of disputes by arbitration, which are voluntarily inserted in commercial contracts between the nationals of different countries. This Protocol has been ratified on behalf of Great Britain and various parts of the British Empire, and a considerable number of foreign countries, but not by India. On the whole, the number of associations has been considered disappointing, and this is believed to be due to the absence of any arrangements for the execution of arbitral awards. The Economic Committee has further been engaged in drawing up provisions to supplement the Protocol in this respect, and the result of their labours came before the Eighth Assembly in the form of a draft supplementary Protocol for the execution of awards. The Second Committee, to whom this draft was referred, determined to refer it, together with the comments and observations of various Governments, to a Sub-Committee of legal experts for final preparation. A member of our Delegation, Sir Edward Chamier, served on this Sub-Committee, and his knowledge of the British and Indian system of law was of great value in ensuring that the Protocol was not modified to meet the requirements of Continental law in such a manner as to make it unacceptable to countries in which the other system prevails. The new Convention (the Protocol form having been replaced by that of a Convention) is now open for signature, together with the original Instrument, and we understand that the Government of India will be prepared to consider adhesion to the two Instruments taken together. We understand that this Convention which, owing to its highly technical character, did not receive much general attention, may be ranked among the most solid achievements of the Eighth Assembly.

The following Resolution was adopted by the Assembly on 26th September:—

Assembly Resolution (26 Sept).

Whereas the World Economic Conference recommended the Economic Committee to endeavour to promote the extension in all countries of recourse to commercial arbitration;

Whereas, in connection with that recommendation, the Conference was of opinion that the beneficial results of the Protocol of 24th September, 1923, in regard to the recognition of arbitration clauses in private contracts, and particularly in commercial contracts, would not be fully realised until provision was made ensuring the enforcement of arbitral awards;

And whereas the Economic Conference recommended the Council of the League of Nations to take steps to submit to all States for signature at an early date the text of an agreement providing for the execution of arbitral awards in commercial matters;

The Assembly:

Recognising the great importance which commercial circles attach to the settlement of this question;

And having regard to the favourable report submitted to it by the Second Committee which considered the various observations submitted and the various amendments proposed as a result of the communication of a first draft to the Members of the League:

Decides to open the annexed Convention* immediately for signature by all the Members of the League and by non-Member States which are already Contracting Parties to the above-mentioned Protocol of 1923;

And invites the Council to take whatever measures it may deem expedient to draw the attention of all Members of the League and all non-Member States to the value of the above-mentioned Protocol and Convention and to the conditions under which they may become Contracting Parties to these agreements.

FINANCIAL COMMITTEE (INCLUDING SETTLEMENT OF GREEK REFUGEES AND GREEK FINANCIAL RECONSTRUCTION SCHEME AND SETTLEMENT OF BULGARIAN REFUGEES).

52. This Committee has hitherto played a more prominent rôle than that of its twin organisation, the Economic Committee, but the result of the resolution adopted by the Assembly in regard to the Economic Conference will no doubt be to adjust this disparity. The principal tasks of the Financial Committee have been the restoration of the Austrian and Hungarian currencies and a number of other financial measures of almost equal importance, such as those in connection with Danzig and Estonia and the financial supervision of the settlement of Greek and Bulgarian refugees. Probably the League has not up to date made any contribution to the general cause of peace and prosperity greater than those which are covered by these headings. These important and valuable works have been mainly of interest to Europe, but another problem which has been under the consideration of the Financial Committee, viz., that of double taxation and fiscal evasion, is of more general application. The latter questions have now reached a stage at which four draft Conventions have been drawn up after long and exhaustive technical examination, and have been circulated to Governments for consideration.

53. The Committee has also made much progress with an interesting new scheme, which is believed to contain great possibilities. This is a scheme for the financial assistance of States which may be the victims of aggression. It arises from proposals submitted by the Finnish Delegation to the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference, and its importance lies in the fact that it is a concrete application of the principle of Article 16 of the Covenant, which provides in principle that Members of the League who are attacked by another State should receive economic and financial assistance from other Members. The project had only been circulated a short time before the Assembly, and many Governments, including the Government of India, had not had an opportunity of examining it and formulating their attitude. In these circumstances the Assembly could not do more than recommend it for further favourable consideration in the light of the views of Governments, when these have been collected. The British Delegation welcomed the scheme, and undertook to co-operate in it on the understanding that it formed part of a general settlement of the Disarmament problem. This scheme is referred to further in paragraph 59.

54. Sir Fazl-i-Husain spoke in the course of the debate in the Second Committee on the work of the Financial Committee (see Appendi III, Annex IX). He referred to the valuable work which the committee had done in enabling countries which were suffering from acute financial crises to stabilise their currency and to effect budget equilibrium, and to obtain through the credit and prestige of the League necessary loans at a lower rate of interest than would have been possible otherwise. Help given in this way was, he said, help to individual countries, and in countries outside Europe there was a section of the public which was disposed to emphasise the fact that the beneficent work of the League was limited to a certain tract in Europe, and was therefore not international in the larger sense of the term. As a rule it was only delegates from countries directly affected by the work of the Financial Committee who took part in this debate, and he felt obliged, as a delegate from a country which could not be included in this description, to meet the criticism which he had indicated. This work showed emphatically that the League was not a body of talkers, and it proved how effectively the League could deal with practical problems. He rejoiced in this work because it enabled the League to consolidate its position, and he was sure that if requests similar to those which had come from Austria, Hungary and other countries were to come from another continent they would receive the same sympathetic consideration as was extended to the European countries.

The Assembly adopted the following Resolutions on the 20th and 22nd September:—

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Assembly takes note of the activities of the Financial Committee and expresses its great satisfaction with the highly useful work accomplished by it.

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept).

The Assembly:

Has learned with great interest of the successful result of the negotiations which have taken place with a view to the issue, under the auspices of the League of Nations, of a loan to enable the Greek Government to take measures of financial and monetary reorganisation, and to proceed with the settlement of the refugees:

In particular, expresses its appreciation of the plan which has been drawn up for the creation of a new bank of issue and for the stabilisation of the Greek currency;

Expresses its appreciation to all those who have collaborated in these investigations, and especially to the Greek Government and to the Financial Committee;

Approves the progress made in the refugee settlement work and expresses the hope that this work will soon be successfully brought to a close;

In conclusion expresses the hope that the entire scheme which has now been elaborated will be fully successful.

Assembly Resolution (20 Sept).

The Assembly:

(1) Welcomes with great satisfaction the successful flotation of the Bulgarian refugee loan, providing funds for the carrying out of the scheme approved by the Council;

(2) Takes note of the progress already made in the work of making land and houses available for the occupation of the refugees;

(3) Expresses the hope that, during the coming year, it will be possible to record the completely satisfactory progress of the work of settlement;

(4) Desires to express its appreciation of the courage and resolution displayed by the Bulgarian Government and the Commissioner of the League of Nations in carrying out the scheme.

ORGANISATION FOR COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSIT.

55. Apart from the general Conventions drawn up at the First and Second General Conferences of this Organisation at Barcelona and Geneva in regard to questions of navigation and maritime ports, etc., the activities of the Organisation have been almost entirely confined to Europe, including such questions as navigation of the Danube and the international railway services. The Assembly Resolution of 1926 had expressed a hope that the Third General Conference would consider the question of improving, as far as possible, technical liaison between the work of the Organisation and the specialised administrations and experts of non-European countries. The Third General Conference was held at Geneva just before the Eighth Assembly, and it adopted a new constitution which is designed to facilitate the representation and participation of distant countries.

56. We had the advantage of being represented in the Second Committee, when the report of the Third General Conference was under discussion, by Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, who had been the delegate of India at the Conference, and who was therefore acquainted with the work of the Organisation and with its plans for the future. In recognition of the fact that the Organisation was endeavouring to broaden its hitherto somewhat restricted activities, Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar spoke in the Second Committee (for text see Appendix III, Annex VII) and said that the labours of the Third Conference had marked a great advance towards the mutual understanding of national and international problems. He noted the fact that States which were not Members of the League, such as the United States of America and Egypt, and also powerful organisations like the International Chamber of Commerce, had co-operated. He referred to the proposal which had been adopted in regard to the application of a system of identity certificates in lieu of national passports to persons who were without nationality or whose nationality could not be ascertained, and was glad that this scheme had been adopted in a form which tended to obviate the objections which had been felt by certain countries. The decision on these proposals was in the form of a recommendation, and not of a resolution binding upon Governments. With regard to the proposals for the collection and exchange of information on communications he was glad that the Conference had dispelled the fears which were entertained at one time that a special organisation of considerable size charged with new work was going to be created. The scheme as it left the Conference had been restricted to the collection of information of a non-confidential character which was already at the disposal of Governments, and the provision of which would involve Governments in no additional expense. It may be noted, however, that when this scheme came before the Fourth Committee for approval of a supplementary estimate of the League budget, the Fourth Committee took the view, in which the Indian delegate concurred, that desirable as the collection of this information might be, the work was of less urgency and necessity than other tasks for which supplementary estimates were demanded, and it therefore decided by a majority vote not to approve the supplementary estimate. It may be observed that, since the General Conference, and under the new constitution of the Organisation which was approved at the Conference, the interests of Asia in the work of the Organisation have been recognised by the appointment of a Siamese member to the Advisory and Technical Committee.

The Assembly:

Expresses to the Advisory and Technical Committee for Communications and Transit its satisfaction for the work accomplished in the course of the year;

Is gratified that the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit has achieved successful results on all the items of its agenda and has contributed to the establishment of closer relations between the Organisation for Communications and Transit and the States non-Members on the League;

Invites the Advisory and Technical Committee to take in hand at an early date the study of the questions raised during the Conference's debates on the Committee's work;

Approves the provisions of the new Statute for the Communications and Transit Organisation for the application of which the Assembly's consent is necessary;

Attaching special importance to the collection and utilisation of information on communications, urges the Members of the League to facilitate the collection of the information necessary to the Organisation for Communications and Transit, in conformity with the resolutions adopted by the Conference, and trusts that, when undertaking the collection and utilisation of this information, the Advisory and Technical Committee will effect a constant improvement in the co-operation between the Organisation and the experts and administrations of the various countries, particularly of the non-European countries, whether Members of the League or not;

And invites the Members of the League to consider favourably the recommendations adopted by the Conference with regard to identity documents for persons without nationality.

International Relief Union.

A Conference was held at Geneva in July last for the creation of this body which has been discussed at previous Assemblies, and is referred to in the Reports of previous Indian Delegations. India was represented at the Conference by Dr. Paranjpye, but has not yet decided to join the Union. The results of the Conference were reported to the Second Committee, on whose recommendation the Assembly passed the following Resolution on 22nd September:—

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Assembly:

Highly gratified at the success of the Conference for the Creation of an International Relief Union;

Convinced that the Governments, before which the results of the Conference have now been laid, will definitely decide to co-operate in this work of international solidarity;

Offers its thanks to Senator Ciraolo, to the President of the Conference, and to the members of the Preparatory Committee for the scheme on which the Conference's work was based, and requests the President of the Conference and the members and experts of the Preparatory Committee to hold themselves at the Council's disposal to propose to it all measures that may be calculated to facilitate the putting into force and the application of the Convention concluded by the Conference.

COMMITTEE III.—Arbitration, Security and Reduction of Armaments.

57. In addition to the material describing the preparatory work during the last 12 months for the Disarmament Conference, which included various studies of legal questions in regard to security arising out of the Covenant, the Third Committee had before it the Dutch proposal for the further study of the principles of arbitration, security and disarmament, and the Polish proposal for the prohibition of all wars of aggression, both of which had been referred to it by the Assembly. Further proposals, which will be referred to shortly, were introduced in the course of the discussions of the Committee by the French, German, Belgian, Norwegian and Finnish Delegations. The Committee, had thus to deal with a bewildering, and to some extent conflicting, mass of material, and it was no small achievement to produce from this a series of propositions which were coherent, lucid and of great value. The Committee held 11 meetings, each of which lasted for several hours.

LORD LYTTON'S SPEECH.

58. Speaking towards the end of the general discussion in the Third Committee, Lord Lytton described the position of India (for text see Appendix III, Annex XI). He said that India was less intimately concerned with the subject of the debate than other countries whose delegates had taken a prominent part in it. The army maintained in India for internal security and for the defence of its land frontiers had been considerably reduced in recent years. The task upon which it was engaged was different from that which most delegates had in mind when they spoke of war and the alternatives to war. The majority of the Members of the League were nations whose armaments existed to deal with a contingency which they believed to be remote and they hoped would never arise. India, on the contrary, had on her frontiers tribes whose traditions and instincts and habits of life were those of war; not war as a resort to force as a final measure after all the resources of diplomacy had been exhausted, but war in a more primitive sense as an almost daily occupation and as a profession of brigandage. With such neighbours the securities which the League had to offer could be of no value. He therefore addressed the Committee rather as a sincere believer in the value of the League than as a delegate of a country which derived any special advantage from the security offered by the League. He had been struck by the value which speakers seemed to attach to the reaffirmation of principles which had already been accepted not merely as ideals but as practical obligations. The danger was not that the principles of the League should be forgotten, but that they should come to be regarded as no more than formulæ or counsels of perfection which belonged to the region of ideals rather than to the practice of States. He said it was the business of the Committee not merely to dream of disarmament, or to reaffirm general principles, but to work out their practical application in a world of realities. Some were inclined to insist on the need for action, others on the difficulties of action; both lines of thought were helpful. It was the public opinion of the world which was the motive force of the League; some currents of opinion might appear to be opposed to their wishes or ends; they could not be ignored, and it was impossible to go against them, but by tacking either to the right or to the left it might be possible to make even those currents serve for progress towards the goal. It was a question in that Committee not of defining the goal, but of finding means of approaching it. If one means proved abortive, another must be sought. If one conference on disarmament failed, it was better to explore the causes of its failure than to bewail the fact. The task of the League was to improve, if possible, the machinery of arbitration, to make that method of settling disputes more attractive to the nations of the world, to increase, if possible, the security which could be afforded against aggression and so to make possible that progressive disarmament which every country desired for its well-being and development.

DEBATE IN COMMITTEE.

59. The French Delegation submitted a draft resolution recommending the conclusion or arbitration agreements between States in order to create the mutual confidence which was indispensable to the effective continuance of the work of the Preparatory Committee; secondly, requesting the Council to direct that Committee to study simultaneously with the preparation of a draft Convention for the limitation and reduction of armaments, measures calculated to give all States such guarantees of security as would enable them to reduce their armaments to the lowest possible figure in their proposals at the Conference; and thirdly, expressing the opinion that such measures would be found in special security agreements, and a modification of the provisions of the Protocol of 1924 in the direction of greater elasticity which would enable States to graduate their commitments according to the relations existing between themselves and other States. The German Delegation, with reference to the suggestion that the Preparatory Committee should not continue its work until further international security had been attained, observed that Germany and certain other States had already been disarmed, and urged that the Conference should be held on the basis of the existing conditions of security. Count Bernstoff proposed that the Preparatory Committee should be urged to complete its work as soon as possible and thus enable the Council to convene the Disarmament Conference before the next ordinary session of the Assembly. The Dutch, French and German proposals were referred to a Sub-Committee which threw them into the form of a single draft resolution. Two noticeable modifications were introduced. As drafted by the Sub-Committee the resolution provides for the appointment of a Special Committee to study measures relating to guarantees of security instead of leaving this to the Preparatory Committee, and suggests that one of those measures might consist in invitations from the Council to the several States to inform it of the measures which they would be prepared to take to support the Council's decision in the event of a conflict breaking out in a given region. After some discussion as to the meaning of the second alteration, the draft of the Sub-Committee was in substance approved by the Third Committee. It was specially made clear that it was for the individual States in their replies to indicate what, if any, was the "given region" in which they would be prepared to take measures to support a decision of the Council. The Belgian Delegation drew attention to the difficulty of limiting air armaments without interfering with civil aviation and to the recommendations of the Preparatory Committee on this subject, and proposed a Resolution to the effect that it was desirable that the development of civil aviation should be directed solely towards economic ends, to the exclusion of military considerations. This proposal was approved. The Norwegian Delegation proposed the opening of an optional Convention for obligatory arbitration of disputes. After a reference to the First Committee it was decided that the subject should be considered by the Preparatory Committee on Disarmament. Lastly, the Third Committee accepted a resolution proposed by the Finnish Delegation on the subject of giving financial assistance to a State which might be the victim of aggression. Lord Lytton stated that he had had no instructions regarding this proposal, and made it clear that by voting for the resolution he would not commit the Government of India to any financial liability. It was stated in reply to Lord Lytton that in accepting the resolution the Assembly would only be authorising further study of the scheme.

60. At the close of its proceedings the Third Committee submitted to the Assembly a series of five resolutions dealing comprehensively with the Dutch, French, German, Norwegian, Belgian and Finnish proposals, also with reports of the Council regarding the methods to be employed in order to enforce the obligations of the Covenant as expeditiously as possible and the working of the organs of the League in times of emergency.

SUMMARY OF RESOLUTION ON DISARMAMENT.

61. The leading features of the fifth and most important of these resolutions, which deals with the Preparatory Committee for the Disarmament Conference, are briefly as follows: It records a conviction that the principal condition of success in the work of disarmament is "that every State should be sure of not having to provide unaided for its security by means of its own armaments, and should be able to rely also on the organised collective action of the League of Nations." It asks for the completion of the technical work of the Preparatory Committee to be hastened, and for the Conference on the limitation and reduction of armaments to be convened immediately this work has been completed. This meets the view of the German Delegation that disarmament is possible and should be proceeded with under existing conditions of security. At the same time, to meet the view that increased security must be found, the resolution requests that the Preparatory Committee should be authorised to create without delay a Committee whose duty would be to consider, on the lines indicated by the Preparatory Committee, "the measures capable of giving to States the guarantees of arbitration and security necessary to enable them to fix the level of their armaments at the lowest possible figures in an international disarmament agreement." The resolution goes on to indicate that these measures should be sought in a variety of ways, and in enumerating these ways it advocates the principle of regional agreements, of which the Locarno Treaties are the type. These agreements are described as those "which the States Members of the League may conclude among themselves, irrespective of their obligations under the Covenant, with a view to making their commitments proportionate to the degree of solidarity of a geographical or other nature existing between themselves and other States." The resolution concludes with the idea to which we have already referred that the Council should invite the several States to inform it "of the measures which they would be prepared to take, irrespective of their obligations under the Covenant, to support the Council's decisions or recommendations in the event of a conflict breaking out in a given region."

On 24th September the Assembly approved by roll call the following Declaration concerning Wars of Agression:—

The Assembly,

Recognising the solidarity which unites the community of nations;

Being inspired by a firm desire for the maintenance of general peace;

Being convinced that a war of aggression can never serve as a means of settling international disputes and is, in consequence, an international crime;

Considering that a solemn renunciation of all wars of aggression would tend to create an atmosphere of general confidence calculated to facilitate the progress of the work undertaken with a view to disarmament;

Declares:

(1) That all wars of aggression are, and shall always, be prohibited;

(2) That every pacific means must be employed to settle disputes, of every description, which may arise between States.

The Assembly declares that the States Members of the League are under an obligation to conform to these principles.

On 26th September the Assembly approved the following Resolutions and Recommendations concerning Arbitration, Security, Disarmament and the work of the Preparatory Committee for the Disarmament Conference:—

Assembly Resolution (26 Sept.).

I. Whereas in certain countries there is at present a close connection, from the technical point of view and from the point of view of organisation, between the requirements and developments of civil aviation and those of military aviation;

And whereas this connection leads to difficulties in limiting air armaments without hampering civil aviation;

The Assembly,

Declares that it is desirable, for this purpose, that the development of civil aviation should be directed solely towards economic ends to the exclusion of military interests;

Recommends all States Members of the League of Nations to act as far as possible on the recommendations made in this connection by the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference;

And requests the Council to instruct the Advisory and Technical Committee for Communications and Transit to consider practical methods likely to facilitate the conclusion of the agreements between aviation undertakings in the various countries which are referred to in these recommendations.

II. The Assembly,

Having taken note of the report approved by the Committee of the Council on 15th March 1927 with regard to the methods and regulations which would enable the Council to take such decisions as may be necessary to enforce the obligations of the Covenant as expeditiously as possible;

Approves this report and recommends its adoption by the Council as a valuable guide which, without restricting the Council's liberty to decide at any moment the best methods to be adopted in the event of any threat to peace, summarises the results of experience, of the procedure already followed and of the studies so far carried out with a view to the best possible organisation of its activities in case of emergency.

III. The Assembly,

Being desirous of adopting all measures likely to make possible the prompt application of the system contemplated by the Covenant for the maintenance of peace, and of giving to States Members of the League of Nations a greater feeling of security;

Convinced that, in this connection, it is of the utmost importance to ensure the rapid working of the organs of the League of Nations at times of emergency;

Considering that their intervention in the shortest possible time may prove to be an essential condition for the prevention war;

Trusting that greater facilities for the immediate operation of the machinery of the League of Nations will assist the work of disarmament;

Inspired by the spirit and provisions of the Convenant;

Reasserts that it is the obligation of the States Members of the League of Nations to facilitate by every means in their power the rapid meeting of the Council at times of emergency;

Invites the States Members of the League of Nations to take in advance all necessary measures for this purpose;

Congratulates the Council on having studied the question, to which the Assembly attaches the greatest importance, and requests the Council to continue its studies, particularly in regard to telephonic communications between the seat of the League and the different capitals, the identification of aircraft making journeys of importance to the League of Nations at times of emergency, the establishment of a radio-telegraphic station at the seat of the League, the adaptation of a landing ground in the neighbourhood of the seat of the League, and, more generally, provisions enabling the League of Nations to be prepared at any moment to meet any emergency with the greatest possible rapidity.

IV. The Assembly,

Having taken note of the plan submitted to the Council by the Financial Committee with regard to the Finnish Government's proposal for ensuring financial aid to any State victim of aggression;

Being convinced of the need for a system of financial aid for contributing to the organisation of security, which is an indispensable preliminary to general disarmament;

Requests the Council to continue its examination of the plan, which the Committee declares to be necessary, and to prepare and complete it with a view to its final adoption either by a Disarmament Conference or by a special Conference to be convened for the purpose.

The Assembly suggests to the Council that it would be advisable to submit the plan referred to, and the documents relating to Article 16 prepared by the Legal Section of the Secretariat, the observations submitted by the several Governments and the Minutes of the discussions in the Third Committee on this subject, to the Committee which it proposes should be appointed in pursuance of its resolution relative to arbitration, security and disarmament.

V. The Assembly,

Noting the progress achieved in the technical sphere by the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference and by the Committee of the Council towards enabling the Council to be rapidly convened and to take decisions in case of emergency;

Being anxious to bring about the political conditions calculated to assure the success of the work of disarmament;

Being convinced that the principal condition of this success is that every State should be sure of not having to provide unaided for its security by means of its own armaments and should be able to rely also on the organised collective action of the League of Nations;

Affirming that such action should aim chiefly at forestalling or arresting any resort to war and, if need be, at effectively protecting any State victim of an aggression;

Being convinced that the burdens which may thereby be imposed on the different States will be the more readily accepted by them in proportion as—

(a) They are shared in practice by a greater number of States;

(b) The individual obligations of States have been more clearly defined and limited;

1. Recommends the progressive extension of arbitration by means of special or collective agreements, including agreements between States Members and non-Members of the League of Nations, so as to extend to all countries the mutual confidence essential to the complete success of the Conference on the Limitation and Reduction of Armaments;

2. Recalls its resolution of 24th September 1926, which reads as follows:

"Being desirous that the investigations, in regard to which the Assembly itself took the initiative in its resolution of 25th September 1925, should be brought to a successful conclusion as soon as possible it requests the Council to call upon the Preparatory Commission to take steps to hasten the completion of the technical work and thus be able to draw up, at the beginning of next year, the programme for a Conference on the Limitation and Reduction of Armaments corresponding to existing conditions in regard to regional and general security, and it asks the Council to convene this Conference before the Eighth Ordinary Session of the Assembly, unless material difficulties render this impossible."

Accordingly requests the Council to urge the Preparatory Commission to hasten the completion of its technical work and to convene the Conference on the Limitation and Reduction of Armaments immediately this work has been completed.

3. Requests the Council to give the Preparatory Commission, whose task will not be confined to the preparation of an initial Conference on the Limitation and Reduction of Armaments, and whose work must continue until the final goal has been achieved, the necessary instructions for the creation without delay of a Committee consisting of representatives of all the States which have seats on the Commission and are Members of the League of Nations, other States represented on the Commission being invited to sit on it if they so desire.

The Committee would be placed at the Commission's disposal and its duty would be to consider, on the lines indicated by the Commission, the measures capable of giving all States the guarantees of arbitration and security necessary to enable them to fix the level of their armaments at the lowest possible figures in an international disarmament agreement.

The Assembly considers that these measures should be sought:

In action by the League of Nations with a view to promoting, generalising, and co-ordinating special or collective agreements on arbitration and security;

In the systematic preparation of the machinery to be employed by the organs of the League of Nations with a view to enabling the Members of the League to perform their obligations under the various articles of the Covenant;

In agreements which the States Members of the League may conclude among themselves, irrespective of their obligations under the Covenant, with a view to making their commitments proportionate to the degree of solidarity of a geographical or other nature existing between them and other States;

And further, in an invitation from the Council to the several States to inform it of the measures which they would be prepared to take, irrespective of their obligations under the Covenant, to support the Council's decisions or recommendations in the event of a conflict breaking out in a given region, each States indicating that, in a particular case, either all its forces, or a certain part of its military, naval or air forces could forthwith intervene in the conflict to support the Council's decisions or recommendations.

PRIVATE MANUFACTURE OF ARMS AND PUBLICITY OF THE MANUFACTURE OF ARMS, AMMUNITION AND IMPLEMENTS OF WAR.

62. The Assembly passed a resolution on this subject last year and acting on that the Council referred the draft Convention which had been drawn up to a Special Committee with instructions to prepare a final draft which might serve as a basis for an International Conference. The Special Committee met in March 1927 and prepared a report which showed that there were fundamental differences of opinion between the members. Several speakers referred to the subject in the Third Committee. The Committee appeared to be unanimous in thinking that a solution of the problem was indispensable in connection with the question of disarmament. The majority seemed to be inclined to the view that the private manufacture of arms must be dealt with in a manner different from that provided for State manufacture. The Third Committee proposed, and the Assembly approved, a resolution reaffirming the great importance of the subject and suggesting a Convention providing for the superintendence of the private manufacture of arms and for publicity with regard to the manufacture of arms either by a State or by a private person or firm.

The following is the text of the Resolution adopted by the Assembly on 24th September:—

The Assembly. Assembly Resolution (24 Sept.).

Having noted the report of the Special Committee appointed by the Council to draft a Convention on the supervision of the private manufacture and the publicity regarding the manufacture of arms and ammunition and of implements of war;

Reaffirming the importance it attaches to the establishment of a Convention which would enable non-producing and producing countries to be placed on an equal footing as contemplated in the declaration embodied in the Final Act of the Conference for the Supervision of the International Trade in Arms and Ammunition and in Implements of war;

Convinced that the establishment of a Convention for the supervision of private manufacture and the publicity regarding manufacture is of the highest importance for the putting into force of the Convention on the International Trade;

Requests the Council to convey its views to the Special Committee, in order that the latter may agree upon a single text which will enable the Council to convene an international Conference as speedily as possible.

COMMITTEE IV.—Budgetary and Financial Questions.

The League Budget.

63. Those who remember the Report of the Indian Delegation at the last Assembly will be aware that the Assembly approved a Resolution of the Fourth Committee which was moved by Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, the Indian delegate on that Committee, to the effect that it was desirable, without putting obstacles in the way of the development of the League, to keep in view a maximum limit of expenditure with the object of securing that the contributions of individual States should not normally in future exceed their contributions for that year. It was naturally the object of the Indian Delegation this year to remind the Fourth Committee and the Assembly of this Resolution and to secure as far as possible that this principle was not disregarded.

64. In the budget which was presented to this year's Assembly the total estimates for 1928 were placed at 24,879,622 francs, the real increase of expenditure on the basis of these estimates as compared with the budget approved for 1927 being about 100,000 francs. The estimates for the Secretariat and the Permanent Court of International Justice taken together showed a small decrease, and the increase of the total was caused by an increase in the estimates for the International Labour Organisation. It had been stated, on the authority of the Secretary-General, that although the gross expenditure contemplated for 1928 was greater than that for 1927, the net burden on each Member of the League would not in all probability be heavier in view of the distribution among the Members of the League of the greater part of the surplus for 1926. The statement was welcome to us as showing incidentally the effect of the Indian Delegation's Resolution last year, but we had to take into account (1) the normal practice of bringing Supplementary Estimates of considerable amounts before the Assembly, (2) the possible retirement of Spain and Brazil next year, and (3) the possibility of a considerable charge falling upon the League of Nations in two or three years' time in respect of the Singapore Bureau (a matter of great interest to India), when the Rockefeller contributions, by which the Bureau is chiefly supported at present, come to an end. The retirement of Spain and Brazil next year has still to be reckoned with. We have hopes that the financing of the Singapore Bureau for a considerable further period may be assured without heavy additional charges falling upon the League. In regard to Supplementary Estimates, a serious position was revealed. Supplementary Estimates of nearly 1,000,000 francs were submitted by the League authorities to the Supervisory Commission, and after pruning by the Supervisory Commission, were presented to the Fourth Committee to the amount of over 600,000 francs. These, it was understood, would increase the unit of contribution (the number of units for which India is responsible being 56) by well over 1,000 francs after all offsets have been allowed for. The task of trying to effect reductions was, therefore, incumbent upon those delegations, including our own, who are actuated by motives of economy in practice as well as in principle.

65. The general debate on the budget was opened by the British delegate, Sir Edward Hilton Young, who was followed by Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar. The latter said that his Resolution of last year had been put forward not only from purely economic considerations, but also to ensure that States that were far removed from immediate scene of the labours of the League might be assured that its work was of as comprehensive and universal a character as possible. New commitments entered into should be considered with reference to what would happen not only during the year under review, but in future years. He also referred to the importance of applying a Resolution passed by a previous Assembly to the effect that special investigations made in the interest of one or more Members of the League should be paid for by those Members, and he urged that when States which were not Members of the League took part in Conferences organised by the League those States should be expected to pay their fair share of the expenses of such Conferences. He also referred to the necessity for regulating the publications of the League as far as possible on a sound commercial basis, and suggested that agents should be appointed in distant countries with a view to the dissemination of those publications. In the course of the subsequent debate on the details of the budget he raised various points of detail, as, for instance, in regard to the financing of the Singapore Bureau in regard to the estimate presented for the settlement of disputes under the Transit Organisation, and as to the proposal to authorise the Transit Organisation to collect information on the subject of communications. He served as a member of a Sub-Committee to deal with a proposal for the formation of an administrative tribunal to settle any point which might arise in connection with the contracts under which members of the staff of the Secretariat and International Labour Office are serving. He was also selected to serve as one of the members of the Fourth Committee deputed to confer with members of the First Committee in regard to the proposals for the Codification of International Law. The text of this speech will be found in Appendix III, Annex XII.

66. Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar's remarks are reflected, together with those of other delegates, in the Report of the Fourth Committee. This Report indicates that the expenditure of the League was not increasing in proportion to the new tasks entrusted to the League and to the increased work thereby involved for the various organs of the League. So far as figures are a reliable guide, the amount of work done by the staff has grown considerably in recent years. If the Assembly decided to entrust new task to the Secretariat, it was necessary either to increase the budget or to suspend temporarily some part of the normal duties of the Secretariat. The Report indicates a view that if the expenditure of the League is not to be developed indefinitely, the League will sooner or later be obliged to impose limits on requests for further expenditure, and it is suggested that the Assembly might at some time be invited to appoint a small body to deal with further proposals for expenditure, and to examine the order in which new task entrusted to the League should be undertaken. The Report also states that the Publications Department is being reorganised, with a view to placing its operations upon a more commercial basis, and that a considerably larger amount in respect of receipts from the sales of publications was anticipated in the near future.

SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES AND FINANCIAL CONTROL.

67. On the subject of Supplementary Estimates a long and arduous debate took place. This debate revealed in the Fourth Committee a real and earnest desire for economy, although it may be open to question whether this desire was fully implemented. At the same time it indicated unmistakably the peculiar difficulties of financial control in the unique circumstances of the League, which arise from the absence of an executive authority with power to determine the priority in which proposals involving expenditure should be undertaken. The Indian Delegation, together with the British Delegation, followed the policy of supporting the authority of the Supervisory Commission, which is the most effective organ for financial control in the League's possession, and for the creation of which, it may be remembered, a past Indian Delegation was largely responsible. This Commission, of which Lord Meston is a member, scrutinises in the most thorough and efficient manner the financial provision for the measures which the League has in hand or decides to take in hand, but it lacks the ultimate power of selection among those measures. It is, in our view, very desirable, if not necessary, that in the near future the Assembly should find some means of satisfying the principle, which is an essential part of the financial procedure of national Governments. Serious warnings were expressed in the Fourth Committee as to the tendencies which are at present evident, and which, though they could not fairly at present be said to be out of control, may at any time lead to serious results unless the financial initiative can be somehow limited. It should not, however, be supposed that the sum total of League expenditure at present is anything but moderate, having regard to the importance and responsibilities of the League.

68. Our remarks may be illustrated by the discussions which took place on two supplementary demands, one for a sum to enable the Transit Section to collect information on the subject of communications, and the other for the expenses of the work of codifying international law. The first arose from a recommendation of the Third General Conference on Transit and Communications, which had been approved by the Second Committee, and a demand had been presented for 40,000 francs to proceed with the work during 1928. The debate on the demand ranged as much over questions of principle relating to the status and authority of the Supervisory Commission, as over the actual desirability of the proposed services, which few delegates desire to question. Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar said that although he had as a delegate at the Third General Conference and as a Member of the Second Committee supported the project for which this demand was made, he felt obliged, in view of the gravity of the financial situation, and of the necessity for making some selection among the services for which supplementary credits were asked, to vote against the credit in the Fourth Committee. Eventually the estimate was rejected by a majority vote, but after further negotiations with the Second Committee, it was agreed that the Secretariat should continue the work already begun, so far as might be possible without the additional credit, and a hope was expressed that the credit in question might appear in the Budget of 1929.

69. In the second case the Supervisory Commission had accepted a supplementary estimate for 80,000 francs for the preparatory work necessary to enable an international Conference to be held in 1929 to attempt the codification of international law on certain subject (see para. 26 above) but in order to avoid serious additional expenditure, it has proposed to compensate for the admission of the supplementary item by deleting a provision of 75,000 francs in the original budget to enable the Committee of Experts on this subject to continue its work. The view of the Supervisory Commission was supported by a majority vote of the Fourth Committee, but it was agreed than any part of the sum allotted for the preparation for the Conference which might not actually be found to be necessary for that purpose might be used for a further meeting of the Committee of Experts. In spite of this decision, and in spite of the fact that the First Committee, to whom the decision was communicated, had raised no objection, the matter was brought up again in the Assembly, where the recommendation of the Fourth Committee was rejected by a small majority. The Fourth Committee was asked to consider the matter again with a view to reaching the necessary unanimity, and a debate took place which lasted until after midnight. In the course of this debate, Sir Fazl-i-Husain said he thought no one had disputed the fact that the work of the Committee of Experts was of great value to the League of Nations. The former decision of the Fourth Committee did not involve the interruption of this work, and it was only a question of the pace at which it would proceed. The South American countries claimed that this credit should not be refused, on the ground that the work of codifying international law was one of the few activities of the League in which they were directly interested, but he asked that the Committee should take an equal interest in the position of certain other countries who paid their annual contribution, but perhaps derived even less direct benefit from the work of the League than the South American countries. Notwithstanding the fact that the direct benefit to them of the work of the League was comparatively small, these other countries readily voted various credits for humanitarian work which did not benefit them; but he said that it was important that the Committee should realise that the continual increase in the unit of contribution might reach the point of becoming intolerable, and each addition would possibly prove to be the last straw which broke the camel's back. After Sir Fazl-i-Husain had spoken, a solution was proposed by which, although the budget provision was not increased, those who wished to ensure a further meeting of the Committee of Experts in 1928 were given reason to expect that sufficient funds would be found by transfer from another head of the budget if necessary. This solution was accepted by the Fourth Committee and later by the Assembly with the necessary unanimity.

70 The debate on these two matters attracted very considerable notice, and we believe that, apart from the decisions reached on the particular issues, they will exercise a salutary influence on the general tendency of the financial policy of the League. The result of the debate on Supplementary Estimates was to raise the total budget to 25,333,817 francs. The net contribution of India for 1928 will be about £51,400 as compared with about £50,150 for 1927.

ALLOCATION OF EXPENSES.

80. Two years ago a provisional scale was adopted for the allocation of the expenses of the League between the States Members, which was to last for three years, and was due to come up for further consideration at the Assembly of 1928. The budget for 1928 included an estimate to provide for a meeting this winter of the Standing Committee on Allocation of Expenses, so that new proposals might be brought before the next Assembly. When this estimate came before the Fourth Committee, M. Reveillaud, the French delegate, who is chairman of the Allocation Committee, said that, after considering the economic conditions of the various countries he had come to the conclusion that the general economic situation of the world would not be sufficiently stable, at any rate for some years to come, to permit of any satisfactory permanent settlement of this question in the immediate future. In these circumstances, he thought that there would be no object in holding a session of the Committee as had been intended, and accordingly he proposed a reduction of the estimate. The claims of India for a reduction of her share of the expenditure of the League have always been strongly pressed in the past. As it had not been anticipated that the matter would be raised this year, the Indian Delegation had no definite instructions and were not in a position to accept any arrangement under which the present scale would continue in force for a number of years. There was obviously nothing to be gained by insisting on a meeting of the Allocation Committee being held during the present winter, as the Fourth Committee was clearly impressed with M. Reveillaud's arguments, which were, in fact, of a convincing nature. Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, on behalf of the Indian Delegation, confined himself to securing an understanding that the acceptance of the proposal to reduce the estimate did not restrict the liberty of the next Assembly to discuss the matter again.

The Assembly adopted on various dates the following Resolutions on the motion of the Fourth Committee:—

Assembly Resolutions (26 and 27 Sept.).

1. The Assembly, in virtue of Article 38 of the Regulations for the Financial Administration of the League, finally approves the audited accounts of the League for the eighth financial period ending 31st December 1926.

2. The Assembly, in virtue of Article 17 of the Regulations for the Financial Administration of the League, approves for the financial year 1928 the general budget of the League, of the Secretariat and of the special organisations of the League, of the International Labour Organisation and of the Permanent Court of International Justice, the total of which, including supplementary credits, is 25,333,817 francs;

And decides that the said budget shall be published in the Official Journal.

3. The Assembly adopts, in so far as they have been approved by the Fourth Committee, the conclusions of the various reports of the Supervisory Commission submitted to its consideration.

4. The Assembly adopts the conclusions of the report of the Fourth Committee.

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Assembly requests the Secretary-General.

1. To continue negotiations with the Chinese Government with a view to arriving at some arrangement by which the contributions in arrears may be liquidated;

2. To make further representations, through such channels as he may consider appropriate, to the other States at present in arrears;

3. To submit to the Council in due course a report showing the results of the action taken by him.

Assembly Resolution (26 Sept.).

The Assembly decides,

(1) To apply once more the system at present in force, under which no changes will be made in the salaries in 1928;

(2) To instruct the Salaries Adjustment Committee to make a new enquiry into all the aspects of this question, with the help of the competent services of the Secretariat and of the International Labour Office, and to submit the results to the Supervisory Commission at its session in January 1928;

(3) To instruct the Supervisory Commission to submit a general report on the question to the Assembly at its ninth ordinary session.

Assembly Resolution (26 Sept.).

Subject to the amendment of form suggested by the Fourth Committee, the Assembly adopts the annexed Statute* establishing a League of Nations Administrative Tribunal.

The Assembly of 1931, however, will consider, in the light of the experience gained, whether there is reason to abrogate or amend the said Statute.

The Assembly's resolution of 17th December 1920, giving to certain officials in case of dismissal a right of appeal to the Council or to the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, is abrogated as from 1st January 1928.

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW LEAGUE OF NATIONS BUILDINGS.

81. For the earlier history of this matter reference is invited to the Report of the Indian Delgation to the Special Assembly of 1926. This Assembly had approved proposals for the construction of a new Assembly Hall and of new offices for the Secretariat and for the purchase of the building land. It had adopted a provisional estimate of nearly 17,000,000 francs, including a sum of 4,000,000 francs which is the guaranteed price for the sale of the building at present occupied by the Secretariat. A competition of architects has since been held, and as many as 377 designs were submitted. The Jury of Architects which examined these plans decided unanimously that the results of the competition did not justify it in recommending any one of the plans for execution. They decided to dispose of the prize money by giving nine equal prizes to the nine competitors whose designs appeared to them to be the best, and further smaller sums to 18 further designs, arranged in two classes of nine each, which were considered worthy of honourable mention. When the report of the Jury of Architects came before the Assembly a Committee of five members was appointed to consider the question and report back to the Assembly. This Committee reported that, after allowing for the purchase of land and other general expenses, and for interest on the cash balance actually in the League's possession, and for the guaranteed sale price of the present Secretariat building, there would be a sum of 15,400,000 francs available for building purposes. They thought that the sum available would not be sufficient to ensure that the new buildings would, without being actually luxurious, be satisfactory from the æsthetic as well as from the practical point of view, and they believed that it was necessary to contemplate an increase of the credit allotted to approximately 19,500,000 francs. On their recommendation the Assembly approved in principle that the sum to be spent on the new buildings should be increased to approximately this figure, on the understanding that the exact amount of the supplementary credit necessary would be submitted to the Assembly at its next session. The Committee further expressed the view that the ultimate choice of a plan should be made from among those which received the nine equal prizes, and it recommended that a small Committee should be appointed with full powers to choose, with any changes that might be necessary, the plan which in their opinion most nearly satisfied requirements. After some discussion in the Assembly these recommendations were approved, and the members who had served on the Committee which had made these recommendations were appointed to constitute the Committee which is to continue to deal with the question.

The Assembly:

Approves the report of the Special Committee of five members in regard to the new buildings;

Approves, in principle, that the amount to be spent on the new buildings may be increased to approximately 19,500,000 francs. The exact amount of the supplementary credit necessary will be submitted to the Assembly at the next session;

Empowers a Committee composed as follows:—M. Adatci, M. Osusky, M. Politis, M. Urrutia and Sir Edward Hilton Young, to study the nine plans awarded the equal prizes of 12,000 francs in the architects' competition, and to choose, with any changes that may be necessary, a plan which in its opinion complies most nearly with the practical and æsthetic requirements. The decision of this Committee will be submitted to the Council of the League of Nations for approval and ratification, and will be communicated to the Assembly at the next session.

The above resolution was proposed by a Special Committee set up by the Assembly at its eleventh meeting, on 10th September 1927, to present suggestions regarding the decision to be taken in the matter of the new League Buildings. The report of the Special Committee and the resolution were subsequently submitted to the Fourth Committee, in accordance with the Assembly's decision, and approved by it.

GIFT OF MR. J. D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., FOR THE CONSTRUCTION AND ENDOWMENT OF A LEAGUE OF NATIONS LIBRARY.

82. Before leaving this subject we ought to mention the munificent gift of $2,000,000 from Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the construction and endowment of a new League of Nations Library. The Assembly naturally confirmed with gratitude the acceptance by the Council of this gift, the purpose of which can be adequately carried out with the certainty that no liabilities will in future be imposed on the Members of the League on account of its acceptance. This gift will render possible the formation and maintenance of a library on a much more extended scale than that which at present exists in the Secretariat or could otherwise be contemplated. It will greatly improve the facilities, of which there is an increasing need, for research work and for students.

The following is the text of the Resolutions adopted by the Assembly on 12th September:—

In accordance with Article 23 (a) of the Financial Regulations of the League, the Assembly confirms with gratitude the acceptance by the Council of the League of the gift of two million dollars offered by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the construction and endowment of a League of Nations Library. Assembly Resolution (12 Sept.).

COMMITTEE V.—Social and General Questions.

Child Welfare.

83. Indian Delegations of the past two years have been somewhat concerned with the appearance of a tendency on the part of the Child Welfare Committee to take too wide a view of its proper sphere of operations. In 1925 the Maharaja of Patiala, and in 1926 the Maharaja of Kapurthala, considered it desirable to express apprehension as to the consequences that might result from any invasion of areas of purely domestic concern, and from a policy of trying to apply indiscriminately ideas or criteria which for social or even religious reasons might not be universally applicable. This tendency had been noticed also by other observers, and the Committee had been advised by the Council of the League to "endeavour so to narrow the field of each particular enquiry as to produce results of practical value to Governments." At the Assembly of 1926, the Fifth Committee, in its report on this subject, appreciated the fact that practical considerations must sometimes limit the scope of international co-operation in this field, and they called attention to the caution expressed by the Maharaja of Kapurthala. During the last 12 months the Child Welfare Committee has appointed an Agenda Sub-Committee for the purpose of controlling the subjects treated, and this Sub-Committee may be considered to have done good work, although the necessity for confining activities in this field to objects of international concern still requires to be watched. As the warnings previously expressed appeared to have had a salutary effect, and as the Report of the Committee, which was presented to this year's Assembly, contained nothing which called for criticism, the Indian Delegation was able to abstain from taking part in the discussion.

The Assembly notes the report submitted by the Child Welfare Committee, expresses its appreciation of the work it is doing, and requests it to continue on the lines indicated in the report on the work of its third session. Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

Traffic in Women and Children.

84. The most notable subject in this year's discussion was the report of the special body of experts which has been enquiring into this traffic. Only the first part of this report has been published the second part having been communicated confidentially to the Governments concerned—of which the Government of India is not one—for such observations as they may wish to make. These observations are to be received shortly, and on their receipt the body of experts will meet again to consider them, after which the question will come before the Council of the League for a decision as to further action. The resolution adopted by the Assembly called attention to the problem of the relationship which, according to the conclusions of the special body of experts, exists between the licensed house and the traffic in women, and expressed a hope that the appropriate Committees would examine the question of the desirability of recommending to all Governments the abolition of the system of the licensed house.

85. The special body of experts has so far confined itself to America, Europe and the Near East. It has, however, reported that information in its possession tends to show that the international traffic is also met with in the Far East, and it acknowledges that, owing to differences of religion and custom, the problem in the Far East appears in a different aspect. The question of authorising the special body of experts to extend its enquiries beyond the areas already investigated has thus not yet arisen; but it may do so when their present task has been completed. In the circumstances, no question affecting India arose this year.

The Assembly, Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

Takes note of the report of the Traffic in Women and Children Committee, thanks the Committee for the good work it has accomplished, and expresses the hope that this work will be continued along the same lines;

Having learnt with the greatest interest that the Traffic in Women and Children Committee is examining carefully, in connection with Part I of the experts' report, the problem of the relationship which exists between the licensed house and the traffic in women, requests the Traffic in Women and Children Committee to examine as soon as possible the question of the desirability of recommending to all Governments the abolition of the system of the licensed house;

Desires to express its warmest approval of the able and courageous work of the Special Body of Experts, and earnestly recommends Part I of the report, and especially its conclusions, to the study of the Governments of all States Members and non-Members of the League of Nations.

THE PRODUCTION OF OPIUM IN PERSIA.

86. At the Assembly of 1925 attention had been called to the absence of effective control at Persian ports over exports of opium, and the final Act of the Second International Opium Conference contained a recommendation that a Commission of Enquiry should be appointed to visit certain opium-producing countries. Accordingly, in pursuance of a recommendation of the Assembly of 1925, a Commission was appointed to be sent to Persia to study the existing situation with regard to the cultivation of the poppy and the replacement of a proportion of this cultivation with other crops. This Commission reported at the end of 1926, and its report came before the Assembly. The Commission considered that the Persian Government should make it an essential part of its programme to take definite steps looking to, and preparatory for, a gradual and systematic reduction of cultivation to begin three years from the promulgation of the programme. It believed that, after the preparatory period of three years, the Persian Government might safely undertake a reduction of 10 per cent. each year in the acreage allotted to the cultivation of the poppy, and it made a number of practical recommendations designed to facilitate this programme. The Persian Government has expressed its willingness to attempt to carry out the recommendations of the Commission, with some modification, but in doing so it has declared that the success of its programme will in large measure depend on its obtaining liberty of action in tariff affairs, and on the removal of the restrictive tariffs on Persian products which must be substituted for opium. The Assembly expressed its appreciation of the goodwill shown by the Persian Government, and hoped that the Governments concerned would give their earnest and favourable attention to the tariff conditions referred to by the Persian Government.

Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

The Assembly takes note of the report of the Commission of Enquiry into the production of opium in Persia, of the observations of the Persian Government on that report, and of the letter from the Chairman of the Commission of Enquiry to the Secretary-General, dated 23rd April 1927.

It expresses its sincere thanks to the members of the Commission for their valuable work, and its high appreciation of the goodwill shown by the Persian Government in co-operating with the League in its attempts to reach a solution of the difficult and complicated problem of narcotic control.

The Persian Government having declared that the success of its programme will, in large measure, depend on its obtaining liberty of action in tariff affairs and on the removal of the restrictive tariffs on Persian products which must be substituted for opium, the Assembly expresses the hope that the Governments concerned will give their earnest and favourable attention to those conditions and that the Persian Government will keep the League of Nations informed of the progress made in carrying out the scheme proposed for the gradual diminution of the cultivation of the opium poppy in Persia.

It earnestly recommends to all countries concerned with the production and manufacture of dangerous drugs and their raw material the enactment of legislation similar to that now proposed by the Government of Persia, or such equivalent action as will ensure the necessary reduction of raw material and the manufacture of drugs.

TRAFFIC IN OPIUM AND OTHER DANGEROUS DRUGS.

87. The Government of India have a representative on the Advisory Committee dealing with this subject in the person of Sir John Campbell, I.C.S. (retired), who is the present Chairman of the Committee. The work of the Committee in recent years has been principally concerned with the illicit traffic in manufactured drugs, viz., morphia and other derivatives of opium and cocaine. In these circumstances no controversial question in regard to opium arose.

88. The Report of the Advisory Committee called special attention to the gravity of the situation which exists in regard to the illicit traffic in drugs and the urgent necessity for action in the direction of control. The hope of adequate control resides chiefly in the bringing into operation of the Geneva Convention of 1925, for which a sufficient number of ratifications has not yet been received. The prospect of the Convention coming into force has not improved recently. The Report of the Advisory Committee, although approved without criticism, was received in the Fifth Committee with less attention than might have been expected. It appeared that there would be some advantage in directing attention to the necessity for action as publicly and emphatically as possible, and accordingly, when the Report of the Fifth Committee on this subject was presented to the Assembly, Lord Lytton made a speech.

89. He said that India was very much alive to the gravity of the drug problem, and looked to the League for help in regard to it. He wished the Assembly to realise the enormous extent of the illicit traffic in drugs, and the grave human import of that trade as revealed in the Report of the Advisory Committee. India, for instance, imported a small amount of cocaine for medical purposes, but the illicit traffic in cocaine in India was stated by the Committee to be as much as 40 times the legitimate imports, in spite of vigorous and efficient administrative efforts to suppress it. The figures of the illicit trade quoted by the Committee were startling, but even so, they scarcely conveyed their full human import. He went on to picture to the Assembly the intensity of human misery for which the drug evil was responsible, and he asked how, in face of such facts, there were Governments with the power to stop it which allowed it to continue. Yet 54 nations were parties to the Hague Convention, which included as an obligation accepted by all the signatories a provision to enact laws and regulations to limit exclusively to medical and legitimate purposes the manufacture, sale and use of drugs, and with further provision for co-operation between Governments. The drug problem was not one of those which could not be solved, and which must be tolerated because no remedy could be found. On the contrary, it was one which all the nations of the world had recognised, had discussed, and had pledged themselves to remedy. It was one of the evils which the League of Nations was competent to remove, and the removal of which was one of the triumphant achievements which still await the League. The individual efforts of no single nation could stem the tide, but by the combination of all nations it could be stemmed swiftly and effectively. The States Members of the League were already bound by an International Convention to do this, but it still remained for public opinion in some countries to insist on fulfilment of that obligation. There were probably not more than 30 drug factories in the world, and if each Government concerned put a ring fence round these factories the illicit traffic would cease. The Convention of 1925 might not be perfect, but it represented the furthest point yet reached and was the most effective weapon available. He appealed to delegates on their return to their various countries to create an opinion which would insist upon action.

Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

The Assembly notes with approval the report of the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium and other Dangerous Drugs and the resolutions contained therein, and earnestly recommends them to the attention of the States Members of the League.

PERMANENT CENTRAL BOARD TO BE SET UP UNDER THE OPIUM CONVENTION OF 1925.

90. In anticipation of the Convention receiving a sufficient number of ratifications and coming into force, the Secretary-General had submitted estimates for the necessary expenditure being met from League funds. These estimates came up for consideration in the first instance in the Fourth Committee, but the question was referred to the Fifth Committee for their opinion. There was some question whether the expenses of the Board should be borne by the League at all, but it seemed to be the general view that such a course would be reasonable and desirable. Sir Fazl-i-Hussain associated himself with this view in the Fourth Committee. The questions which received most attention were whether the services of the Board should be remunerated at all, seeing that, practically without exception, appointments to the numerous advisory bodies which serve the League carry no remuneration, and whether, if the members of the Central Board were to receive remuneration, the amount proposed, viz., 5,000 Swiss francs a year, was adequate. After a long discussion the Fifth Committee expressed the opinion that it would be well if the Council could secure the gratuitous services of persons of the qualifications contemplated, and thus carry on the fine tradition of gratuitous service. But if this should prove impossible, as several members apprehended, the Fifth Committee was not prepared to say that the provisional estimate was sufficient. After further discussion in the Fourth Committee, it was eventually decided, on the recommendation of the Supervisory Commission, not to make any financial provision for 1928, on the ground that there seemed insufficient prospect of the money being actually required, owing to the delay in the ratification of the Convention on which the appointment of the Central Board depended. There are still certain countries, especially Italy, that are not satisfied that the creation of the Central Board will be the best means of regulating the Convention when it comes into force.

PROTECTION OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN THE NEAR EAST.

Information on this subject will be found in previous Indian Delegation Reports. No comment is required this year. The Assembly adopted the following Resolution on 20th September:—

Assembly Resolution (20 Sept.).

The Assembly approves Miss Jeppe's report and expresses its thanks and appreciation for the unselfish and admirable work which she has done for the protection of women and children in the Near East.

The Assembly hopes that the generous financial support given to Miss Jeppe by voluntary organisations in the past will continue in order that she may be enabled to restore to a normal life those who have been rescued.

MEASURES IN FAVOUR OF RUSSIAN AND ARMENIAN REFUGEES.

Previous Indian Delegations have described the history of this questoin. At the present stage it contains no features on which we need offer observations. The Assembly passed the following Resolution on 26th September:—

Assembly Resolution (26 Sept.).

The Assembly,

Having carefully examined the reports of the High Commissioner and of the International Labour Office on the refugee questions;

Recognises the progress that has been made towards the solution of a problem that at one time constituted a very serious danger;

Expresses its high appreciation of the important work that has been accomplished on behalf of the refugees;

Invites the High Commissioner to convene a small Conference, on the lines indicated in his report, to formulate proposals for submission to the Council in regard to the legal status of refugees. This should be preceded by a full and careful examination of the juridical situation of the refugees in the different countries, the necessary information to be communicated to the respective Governments beforehand;

Congratulates those responsible for the measures already taken and contemplated for the permanent settlement of Armenian refugees in the Near East;

Expresses the hope that, as a result of the efforts described by the High Commissioner in his report, the necessary funds will be secured for the execution of this work and that, with the continued co-operation of the mandatory Power, this aspect of the problem may be successfully liquidated;

Approves the provisions in the budget for the Refugee Service in addition to the supplementary credit of 7,500 Swiss francs for the service for establishing Armenian refugees in Syria.

Further, the Assembly,

COMMITTEE VI.—Political Questions.

SLAVERY CONVENTION.

91. The conclusion of this Convention was one of the principal achievements of the Assembly of 1926. The Convention provided for the submission of annual Progress Reports which will enable the Assembly to watch the execution of the Convention. The reports which had been submitted by the Government of India in regard to recent developments in Burma and Kalat were perhaps the most striking feature of the material before the Committee. The Convention has so far only been ratified or acceded to by 14 countries, of which India is one. According to statements made in the Sixth Committee, six more countries hope soon to be in a position to ratify.

92. Several points required to be brought to the notice of the Committee in regard to India, and the Maharaja of Kapurthala accordingly made a speech, of which the text will be found in Appendix III, Annexure XIV. In the first place he made a statement intended to correct a misunderstanding for which the Indian Delegation of 1926 had been inadvertently responsible, viz., that the recent liberation of slaves in the Kingdom of Nepal had been influenced by the League. He stated that the Nepalese authorities had announced their intention of liberating slaves before they could have known that the League was taking the question in hand, and he called special attention to features of the work carried out in Nepal which might be studied with profit by other countries who were faced with the same problem. He then referred briefly to the events of the last year in Kalat and Burma, and he supplied information more recent than that which had already been furnished to the League in regard to the success which had attended the measures taken in Kalat. He also referred to the fact that, when the Convention was signed, it had been necessary for constitutional reasons to make a reservation excluding Indian States and to the undertaking then given that the Government of India would not fail to bring to the notice of the Rulers of States the provisions which had been accepted for British India. He was able to announce that the Government of India had now fulfilled the undertaking, and he expressed confidence that the Ruling Princes would devote themselves to the removal of such vestiges, if any, of conditions akin to slavery as might still survive. The observations of subsequent speakers were chiefly concerned with conditions in Abyssinia and Sierra Leone and with the question of ratifications.

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Assembly notes the report from the Council and the supplementary reports regarding slavery which contain communications on this subject from the Government of Abyssinia, the British Government, the Government of India, the Government of Portugal and the Government of the Sudan, and, in view of the limited number of ratifications of the Convention of 25th September 1926 which have been deposited up to the present, expresses the hope that the States which have signed will ratify the Convention as soon as possible.

System of Single Transferable Vote for the Election of Non-permanent Members of the Council.

93. The single transferable vote system means that the voter arranges the candidates for whom he wishes to vote in order of preference. At first only first votes are counted, but afterwards all first votes which are not going to be effective, i.e., those given to candidates who have already received the minimum number of votes necessary for election and those given to candidates who received so few as to have no chance of election, are disregarded, and the second votes take their place, and so on until a sufficient number of candidates have received the minimum number of votes required for election. The idea was first suggested by Lord Cecil in the course of the discussion relating to the constitution of the Council which took place in 1926, and it was subsequently taken up by the Norwegian Government, by whose delegate it was presented to the Assembly this year. The Norwegian Government described their proposal as designed to allow electors to exercise a free and independent choice when voting, and as ensuring at the same time their equitable representation. They pointed out that while, in the case of ordinary Parliamentary elections, there was prevalent the question of creating a stable majority as the basis of a strong Government, in the case of the Council of the League it was universally agreed that the Council ought always to embrace representatives of different ideas, different interests and even different races. The supporters of the proposal thought that the single transferable vote was the system best calculated to give this result.

94. The Government of India had expressed themselves in favour of the single transferable vote system, as they considered that minorities had the best opportunity of making themselves felt under this system. It was, therefore, best calculated to give due consideration to the main geographical divisions of the world, the great ethnical groups, the different religious traditions, the varying types of civilisation and the chief sources of wealth, these expressions being contained in a resolution of a former Assembly to which great significance is attached by Eastern countries. We were, therefore, instructed to support the Norwegian Delegation, and Sir B. K. Mullick spoke accordingly (for text of speech see Appendix III, Annexure XV). He expressed the opinion of the Government of India and said that though a good deal had been said about the practical difficulties of putting the system into operation, these difficulties did not seem to him to be very serious. The electorate in the Assembly would be far more competent and far smaller than the average electorate in a general election in a European State, and it would not be affected by the violent storms of local feeling which were apt to sweep over a country on such occasions.

95. It was at one time believed that owing to the unfavourable attitude of certain Great Powers, Great Britain and France in particular, there would be little support for the Norwegian proposal. An unexpected volume of support was, however, given and India was not the only member of the Empire to place herself in opposition to Great Britain. In the end the view prevailed that, as the present method of election to the Council had been introduced only last year, it should be given a chance of being tested before any further changes were made.

On 22nd September the Assembly adopted the Report of the Sixth Committee, which was as follows:—

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Sixth Committee has had under consideration the system of the single transferable vote and the principle of proportional representation in general as applicable to the election of the non-permanent Members of the Council.

It agrees with the authors of the proposal in thinking that, were the principle of proportional representation to be adopted, the single transferable vote system would be a form of proportional representation which could be applied to the Council elections. It is, however, of opinion that the present system should be given a fair trial, and that the method of balloting now employed should not be changed until it should appear opportune to do so.

In that eventuality, the study which has taken place of the system of the single transferable vote would prove to have been of great value.

The Sixth Committee is therefore of opinion that the documentation which has been collected on the subject should be reserved for future study if the necessity should arise. Any Member of the League wishing to complete the above-mentioned documentation may with advantage send such information for this purpose to the Secretariat.

The Sixth Committee submits the following resolution to the Assembly:—

"The Assembly adopts the report of the Sixth Committee."

MANDATES.

On 23rd September the Assembly adopted the following Resolution:—

Assembly Resolution (23 Sept.).

The Assembly,

Having taken note of the work accomplished since last session by the mandatory Powers, the Permanent Mandates Commission and the Council in the execution of Article 22 of the Covenant, renews the expression of confidence voted last year and adopts the following resolution on certain specific points:—

1. Liquor Traffic.

(a) The Assembly congratulates the Permanent Mandates Commission on its success in defining the important terms concerning the liquor traffic used in the B and C mandates and in the Convention of St. Germain of 10th September 1919, and expresses the hope that all the mandatory Powers will soon be able to indicate their acceptance of these definitions.

(b) It asks the Council to request the Permanent Mandates Commission, in collaboration with the mandatory Powers, to continue to give serious consideration to the causes of the increased importation of spirituous liquors into certain territories under B mandate, and to the steps which have been taken to deal with this problem.

2. Minutes of the Permanent Mandates Commission.

The Assembly expresses its appreciation of the value of the Minutes of the meetings of the Permanent Mandates Commission, which constitute the record of the fulfilment by the Commission of its duties under Article 22 of the Covenant, and which are communicated at the request of several of the mandatory Powers to a considerable number of their officials in the mandated territories.

Conference of Press Experts.

This Conference had been held in August and was attended by a number of experts conversant with journalistic problems all over the world, among whom was Mr. Sachchidinanda Sinha. It made a number of recommendations of a technical character designed to facilitate and improve the conditions of journalistic work and the service of international news. The Assembly passed the following Resolution on 22nd September:—

Assembly Resolution (22 Sept.).

The Assembly,

Noting the success of the Conference of Press Experts, and conveying its thanks to the representatives of the Press for their collaboration;

Expresses its satisfaction that the Council has considered the steps required for promptly giving the necessary effect to the resolutions of the Conference.

Trusts that the technical organisations to which the Council has submitted a number of these resolutions will undertake as soon as possible the special enquiries relating, in particular, to the questions of telegraphic and telephonic rates, the improvement of communications, the conveyance of newspapers, identity cards for journalists and visas for journalists' passports;

Trusts that the Council, at its December session, will take the most suitable measures to enlist the sympathetic attention of Governments for the other resolutions adopted by the Conference in order that effect may be given to them;

Notes with satisfaction that the Council, taking into account the recommendation made by the Conference, has declared that, should it at some future time appear necessary, and should developments in the technical international problems which affect the Press make it seem desirable to those concerned, it will in principle be willing to lend the assistance of the organisations of the League for the study of these questions, and to organise a consultation or call a Conference for this purpose.

Concluding Remarks.

96. We have already anticipated to some extent our general conclusions on the outstanding features of the Eighth Assembly. The importance of the session was emphasised by the fact that leading statesmen, such as M. Briand and Herr Stresemann, who, on previous occasions, have been content to resign the leadership of their delegations into other hands, remained in Geneva on this occasion until the end of the Assembly. Fundamental questions were examined with an unusual degree of frankness and with a sense of reality. Those who may have thought that the idealism of the League would wither in such an atmosphere appear to have been wrong. The League has, in our view, gained much in strength from the fact that differences were more clearly defined and are now better understood. There is less uncertainty, for instance, as to the sincerity of the British Empire towards the League, and as the attitude of the British Empire may be claimed to be the greatest single factor in League politics a clear appreciation of it is of vital importance. At the same time it is clearly realised that the British Empire, in view of its responsibilities and commitments all over the world, cannot at present go beyond a certain point in the policy of altruism for the sake of international ideals, and though this fact necessarily disappoints the hopes and aspirations of many Members of the League it has been accepted with resignation and without bitterness. The events of the session might have shaken seriously an institution less securely founded than the League has shown itself to be.

97. When the Assembly opened there were many who thought that a deadlock had been reached in the great question of Arbitration, Security and Disarmament, and that the proceedings of the Preparatory Committee for the Disarmament Conference would be adjourned sine die. As a result of the debates the Preparatory Committee will continue its work, both on the existing basis of security and in the more favourable circumstances which may be created by an improvement in the conditions of security on lines which have been indicated. At least the study of this question is still alive, when there was a serious possibility that it might not be so. At the same time the League is launched upon a policy of international reconciliation and co-operation in the economic sphere, which, in the opinion of many authorities, may lead to a realisation of the ideals of the League as effectively as the more direct avenues of approach.

98. We believe that the position of India in the League is being steadily strengthened, and that the claims of India and other non-European countries to greater facilities for effective participation are being received with increasing sympathy as the preoccupation of the League with the acute and urgent problems created in Europe as an aftermath of the war is passing away. The acceptance of new tasks depends upon the initiative of State Members, and so far the initiative has come almost entirely from European countries. We can understand the view current in India that the activities of the League contain little in which India can interest herself or from which she can benefit. But we think that a modification of this view would be justified by a candid examination of the facts. It would, in our view, be a matter of great regret if the opportunities offered to India by the League towards the development of her status among the nations of the world were imperfectly realised through ignorance of misunderstanding of the facts. For this reason, and because representation needs to be based upon an informed and enlightened public opinion, we feel that great importance should be attached to publicity.

APPENDIX II.

Reports of Committees to the Assembly, &c.

ANNEXURE I.—Report of the First Committee on the question of Accessions to International Agreements given subject to Ratification.

(Rapporteur: M. Motta, Switzerland.)

The Assembly has asked the opinion of the First Committee on the question which was submitted to it by the Council in consequence of the report of the Polish delegate which it adopted on 8th March 1927, dealing with accessions to international agreements given subject to ratification.

The First Committee appointed a Sub-Committee composed of M. Motta (Switzerland), His Highness Mohammad Ali Khan Foroughi (Persia), Count Rostworowski (Poland), M. Guerrero (Salvador) and Mr. Skelton (Canada).

The Sub-Committee adopted the following report, to which the First Committee gave its approval, on 21st September. The First Committee recommends the Assembly to adopt the resolution proposed in this Report.

REPORT OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE.

The Sub-Committee, appointed by the First Committee to study the question of accessions to international agreements given subject to ratification met at the Secretariat of the League of Nations at 10 A.M. on the 16th of this month. It elected me as Chairman and at the same time asked me to submit its report.

The Sub-Committee considered the consequences involved by an accession to an international agreement given subject to ratification, a question submitted to the Assembly as a result of the Council's adoption last March of a report by the Polish delegate.

The Sub-Committee made a distinction in particular between accession pure and simple, as understood in the established practice, and exercising its full effects as soon as notified, and accession given subject to ratification, which is a more recent practice

While considering that the former practice should in any case be maintained, the Sub-Committee observed, nevertheless, that the new practice offered advantages in certain cases. There are, in fact, Governments which, having been unable to sign an agreement within the time-limit fixed, would nevertheless be glad to accede thereto subject to ratification.

The list submitted to the Sub-Committee by the Secretariat shows that this procedure is nearly always followed by the same Members of the League, and that several of them have followed up their accession by ratification.

In view of those facts, the Sub-Committee came to the conclusion that the procedure of accession given subject to ratification should be accepted, but that the practice should not be either encouraged or discouraged. So as to enable the States parties to an international agreement to know with what Governments they are pledged, it is necessary to establish a system precluding all doubt as to the scope of the undertaking entered into by an acceding State.

The Sub-Committee would therefore advise the First Committee to take the line that the obligation should be presumed to be final when a State does not, when notifying accession, expressly mention that it is subject to ratification.

The Sub-Committee also studied the effect which the new practice might have on the League's publications, and it came to the conclusion that it would be advisable to introduce in the accessions column of the list published by the Secretariat a subdivision clearly showing which accessions are final and which are still subject to ratification.

In view of the foregoing, the Sub-Committee recommends the First Committee to propose to the Assembly a Resolution on the following lines. (For text of Resolution adopted, see page 114.)

ANNEXURE II.—Report of the First Committee on the progressive Codification of International Law. (Rapporteur: M. Politis, Greece.)

The First Committee appointed a Sub-Committee to study the various questions referred to the Committee by the Assembly in connection with the work of the Committee of Experts for the Progressive Codification of International Law.

The Sub-Committee was composed of M. Rolin (Belgium), Sir Cecil Hurst (British Empire), M. Politis (Greece), Dr. Limburg (Netherlands), Dr. Caballero (Paraguay), Count Rostworowski (Poland), M. Guerrero (Salvador) and M. Löfgren (Sweden).

The Sub-Committee adopted a report which was approved, with slight modifications, by the First Committee on 23rd September 1927.

The First Committee submits this report to the Assembly and recommends the adoption by the Assembly of the Resolution proposed therein.

REPORT SUBMITTED TO THE FIRST COMMITTEE ON BEHALF OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE.

Your Sub-Committee has very carefully examined the documents forwarded by the Council to the Assembly, and it has reached the following conclusions, which it has the honour to submit for your approval.

The Committee of Experts appointed by the Council in pursuance of the Assembly resolution of 22nd September 1924, for the progressive codification of international law, having completed the first stage of its discussions, submitted a report to the Council on 2nd April 1927. In its annual sessions of 1925-27, it has performed the mission entrusted to it with a zeal, conscientiousness and ability which deserve unqualified praise. The Assembly will no doubt wish to associate itself with the tribute of thanks already paid by the Council to the distinguished Chairman, and the Rapporteurs and members of the Committee.

The Committee recommended to the Council five subjects of international law which, in some of their aspects, are, in its opinion, now ripe for regulation by international action, and stated what it considered to be the most appropriate method for carrying out the preliminary work. It mentioned also two other subjects of a more particular character for which it suggested a special procedure.

On the report of the Polish representative, M. Zaleski, the Council expressed a number of highly interesting opinions on the Committee's conclusions.

It is for the Assembly to decide what action should be taken in respect of the Committee's proposals and the suggestions which the Council has made regarding them.

I.—QUESTIONS WHICH NOW APPEAR RIPE FOR REGULATION BY INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT.

The five questions which now seem to the Committee of Experts to be ripe for codification are the following:—

(1) Nationality;
(2) Territorial Waters;
(3) Diplomatic Privileges and Immunities;
(4) The Responsibility of States for Damage done in their Territories to the Person or Property of Foreigners;
(5) Piracy.

Of these five questions, the Council took the view that only three should be dealt with at present, the question of diplomatic privileges and immunities and that of piracy being left on one side. Neither of these two questions, on which the conclusion of a universal agreement seems somewhat difficult at the present time, is important enough to warrant its insertion in the agenda of the proposed Conference.

Your Sub-Committee was unanimous in concurring with this view, for it is essential to the success of the work in hand that the agenda of the First Codification Conference should not be unnecessarily overburdened.

The Sub-Committee was further in agreement with the Council's suggestion as to the two particular questions which the Committee proposed should be governed by a special procedure, viz., (1) the question of the procedure of international conferences and procedure for the conclusion and drafting of treaties; and (2) the question of the exploitation of the products of the sea.

As regards the first question, the Sub-Committee is of opinion that the Assembly should ask the Council to instruct the Secretary-General to have the question investigated by his services. To this end, all available precedents on the subject would be collected, the Governments being asked to give information as to their own practice, which they would no doubt be prepared to do; and research by and discussion with individual specialists in the various countries should be encouraged by giving as much publicity as may possible to the results of the enquiry.

As to the second question, the Sub-Committee wholly concurs in the recommendations of the Committee of Experts and of the Council. There is no doubt that marine fauna is exposed to the risk of early extermination by exploitation which is opposed to economic principles. International protection would fill a real need and at the same time meet the wish of all the Governments concerned. It would be well worth while to establish such protection by means of an international agreement framed by a conference of experts. At the same time, it is quite certain that, at the present stage, there can be no thought of immediately convening such a conference, and we must be content for the present to pave the way for it. For that purpose, it would be well to refer the question to the Economic Committee of the League for investigation, suggesting that it should seek the co-operation of the International Council at Copenhagen and of any other body particularly concerned in the matter. This done, the Economic Committee would report to the Council, indicating how far it was possible to convene a conference. In addition, the Assembly might pass a resolution urging that this investigation should be carried out as expeditiously as possible so that the meeting of the conference need not be too long delayed.

It has been asked whether it would be possible to propose that further questions in addition to those mentioned above might be added to the programme of the First Codification Conference. What will be said below regarding the necessity of careful and methodical preparation for the Conference will show how difficult it would be to allow such a possibility. At the Conference no right of initiative can be admitted. It will not even be possible for new questions to be put on the programme during the preparatory work. To do so would disorganise the whole scheme. Exercise of such an initiative can only be conceived in the form of submitting to preliminary enquiry new questions the examination of which would be reserved for a subsequent conference.

II.—The First Codification Conference.

As the number of subjects now ripe for codification is limited to the three questions already stated, your Sub-Committee, following the example of the Committee of Experts and the Council, debated whether these questions ought to be dealt with separately at several conferences, or simultaneously at a single conference, which might be subdivided into different sections. It was of the unanimous opinion that the second alternative was, for more than one reason, the better. Not only did it present the advantage of a great saving of time and money, but it would also go further towards satisfying the interest taken by public opinion in the problem of codification.

It should be observed, however, that if it proved impossible for the Conference to finish its work within the space of time which the Governments participating were able to devote to it, arrangements would have to be made to enable it to hold successive sessions at fixed intervals until it had completed its programme.

It remains to consider the date, place and manner of convocation of the Conference.

(a) Date of the Conference.

The date depends essentially on the preparation necessary for framing the agenda of the Conference, a matter which we shall discuss presently. It is impossible to foresee at all exactly how long this will take. All that can be said is that it is highly desirable that the preparatory work should be performed as rapidly as possible so that the Conference may meet some time in 1929. It is to be hoped that the work will have reached a sufficiently advanced stage for the ninth session of the Assembly to fix the date for which the Conference can be summoned.

(b) Place of the Conference.

For the place of the Conference, the Sub-Committee, in accordance with the suggestion made in the Committee, proposes the capital of the Netherlands. This choice is good for many reasons.

The Hague, on account of its atmosphere of serenity, so precious to all who have stayed there, is the ideal place for an assembly met to co-operate in a difficult task, the success of which calls in a high degree for calm and reflection; further, the First Codification Conference might rally more States if it met at the Hague than in any other town; The Hague was the seat of the two Peace Conferences to the heritage of which the League of Nations may be said to have succeeded; to convene the First Codification Conference at the Hague would demonstrate the continuity of the effort—an effort to-day rendered more systematic by the good offices of the League—to invest international law with a little more precision and stability; lastly, the choice of The Hague would be a compliment to the Netherlands Government, which, through its repeated initiatives in connection with the codification of international public and private law, has never failed to render valuable service to the cause of international understanding.

From the statements of the Netherlands representative at the Council, we may venture to hope that, if the Assembly accepts the proposed choice, the Netherlands Government would willingly accede to the Council's request and extend its hospitality to the First Codification Conference.

(c) The method of Convocation of the Conference.

Your Sub-Committee is unanimously of opinion that the convocation and preparation of the First Codification Conference should be left entirely to the League of Nations. When this point was discussed in the Committee, it was forcibly shown that any other course would be interpreted by a section of public opinion as a real blow to the prestige of the League.

III.—PREPARATION OF THE CONFERENCE.

Knowledge of the nature of the work to be undertaken, added to the experience gained from certain important conferences in the past, lead to the conviction that, in order to ensure the success of the First Conference on Codification, it is absolutely essential that the programme and organisation should be carefully and methodically prepared. This is all the more necessary as the coming Conference is to be the first of a long series of similar Conferences and will establish a tradition which, if it is to be fruitful, must be based on solid and unassailable foundations.

The preparatory work will be specially heavy. It will demand from those who undertake it great sacrifices of time and considerable theoretical and practical knowledge. It must for this reason be entrusted to the Secretariat of the League assisted by a special organisation. Your Sub-Committee is of opinion that this organisation should be a committee limited to five persons, possessed of a wide knowledge of international practice, legal precedents and scientific data relating to the problems to be resolved. They should be appointed by the Council.

This special organisation must above all make use of the work of the Committee of Experts, taking into account at the same time the resolutions which have already been adopted or are in process of being framed by such learned associations of international law as the Institute of International Law, the International Law Association and other similar bodies. Where necessary, it could apply directly to these bodies and request them to devote the work of their next session to the questions which will be dealt with by the First Conference on Codification. Lastly, in order to ensure the university of international law, it should take into account the extensive and remarkable effort at codification made during recent years by the Pan-American Union.

After this preliminary work, which would be in the nature of a general survey of the subjects to be dealt with, the Committee would have to undertake an enquiry approaching the Governments of the States Members and non-Members through the Secretariat, according to the following plan:—

It would first of all draw up a schedule for each of the questions coming within the scope of the programme of the Conference, indicating the various points which were suitable for being examined with a view to reaching agreement thereon. These points should be detailed as fully as possible so as to make them perfectly clear and facilitate the replies. The States would be invited to furnish information on each point from the following three points of view:—

(a) The state of their positive law, internal and international, with, as far as possible, circumstantial details as to their bibliography and jurisprudence;

(b) Information derived from their own practice at home and abroad;

(c) Their wishes as regards possible additions to the rules in force and the making good present deficiencies in international law.

In drawing up the schedules, the Committee should follow as far as possible the precedent offered by the minute and methodical preparation for the London Naval Conference of 1908-09.

The schedules would then be sent through the Secretary-General to the different Governments, with an invitation to reply within a reasonable time, which might be fixed at six months.

If, after examining the replies from the Governments, the Committee considered that it would be useful to make further enquiries of some of them, it would state in a fresh schedule the precise points upon which further particulars were desired. This schedule would again be sent to the Governments concerned through the Secretary-General.

At the end of its enquiry, the Committee would be in a position, after comparing the information sent by the various Governments, to establish the points on which there was agreement or any degree of divergency, in respect of each aspect of the questions to be dealt with. The result of this comparative study of each single aspect should be embodied in a report, the conclusions of which might serve as detailed bases of discussion for the Conference.

In his report to the Assembly in 1928, the Secretary-General should give full information concerning the progress made by the Committee.

When the Committee's work was finished and the bases of discussion for each item on the Conference's programme had been fixed, it would remain for the Council to decide the date of meeting and the form of the invitations.

In your Sub-Committee's opinion, the Council, in sending the invitations, should not confine itself merely to enclosing the reports and bases of discussion prepared by the Preparatory Committee. The lessons taught by the experience of the Second Hague Conference and your Sub-Committee's anxiety to ensure the complete success of the First Codification Conference lead it to think that the Council should also send the Governments invited to the Conference a draft set of regulations for the work and that it would be highly desirable that, in this document, a number of general rules should be indicated with precision in order to make clear the spirit in which the work of the Conference would be conducted and also the scope of the decisions it would be called upon to take.

Your Sub-Committee considers that these rules should include the four following:—

(a) Rule of Unanimous Vote or Majority.

Although it is desirable that the Conference's decisions should be unanimous and every effort should be made to attain this result, it must be clearly understood that, where unanimity is impossible, the majority of the participating States, if disposed to accept as among themselves a rule to which some other States are not prepared to consent, cannot be prevented from doing so by the mere opposition of the minority.

(b) Rule of the Scope of the Engagements entered into.

In such matters as may lend themselves to this, it would be useful to provide for the possibility of concluding two kinds of convention: a very comprehensive convention on the general rules of the subject, likely to be accepted by all States; and a more restricted convention which, while keeping within the framework of the other convention, would include special rules binding only upon such States as might be prepared to accept them.

(c) Rule of the Flexibility of the Conventions.

As these agreements are meant to definite and fix the law, it is not to be supposed that they could be concluded for limited periods or with the option of denunciation. They must be permanent. But, with the double object of facilitating their acceptance by all States and of making it possible to adapt the rules laid down to the changing needs of life, it would be desirable to provide an organised system of revision, such as follows:—

Any convention drawn up by the Conference would be subject to revision after the expiration of an initial period of 10 years if a request to that effect was received from a certain number of signatory States. In that case, it would be for the Council of the League to summon a conference at the earliest possible opportunity to consider that amendments were to be made in the convention the revision of which had been demanded.

(d) Rule of the Spirit of the Codification.

Codification of international law can be imagined in several forms. It might be mere registration of the law in force. It might be something more if, instead of merely recording the rules already in existence, an attempt were made to adapt them to practical needs. Lastly, it might be an entirely original work designed to make good the present deficiencies in the law or to replace the old rules by new. Although it is very difficult to lay down strictly beforehand in what spirit the work of the First Codification Conference should be conducted, it can be stated that while, in order to lead to useful results, the Conference must refrain from making too many innovations, it cannot limit itself to the mere registration of the existing law. It must, as far as possible, adapt the rules to contemporary conditions of international life. It is in order to avoid any misunderstanding on this matter that the States which are to take part in the Conference should be apprised of the spirit in which the work of codification is to be undertaken.

IV.—Future of Codification.

It was proposed to the Committee that a permanent organisation for codification should be formed, by constituting a permanent legal committee and perhaps enlarging the legal Section of the Secretariat. Your Sub-Committee is unanimous in thinking that these plans are, to say the least, somewhat premature. The experience of the Preparatory Committee and the proposals which it may formulate next year should first be awaited.

As regards the continuation of the work of the Committee of Experts, your Sub-Committee endorses the opinion expressed in M. Zaleski's report, which represents the views of the Committee itself. The Committee should hold the session which it contemplates for the purpose of completing the work it has already taken in hand, so soon as funds are available; but it would be premature to ask it at present to carry its enquiries further. It would be better to await the results of the work which it has already accomplished.

V.—Conclusion.

As conclusion to the above observations, your Sub-Committee proposes that you should adopt and submit to the Assembly the following draft Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted, see page 113.)

Annexure 111.—Report of the First Committee on the proposal by the Delegation of Paraguay for the Preparation of a General and Comprehensive Plan of Codification of International Law. (Rapporteur: Dr. Caballero, Paraguay.)

The First Committee referred the proposal of the delegation of Paraguay to the Sub-Committee which it had appointed to report on the various questions arising out of the work of the Committee of Experts for the Progressive Codification of International Law. The Sub-Committee consisted of M. Rolin (Belgium), Sir Cecil Hurst (British Empire), M. Politis (Greece), Dr. Limburg (Netherlands), Dr. Caballero (Paraguay), Count Rostworowski (Poland), M. Guerrero (Salvador) and M. Löfgren (Sweden).

The Sub-Committee adopted a report which was approved, with slight modifications, by the First Committee on 23rd September 1927. The First Committee submits this report to the Assembly and recommends the latter to adopt the Resolution contained therein.

Report of the Sub-Committee.

The First Committee has asked the Sub-Committee to present a report on the proposal submitted by the delegation of Paraguay at the plenary meeting of the Assembly on 10th September 1927, inviting the Council to entrust the Committee of Experts with the preparation of a general and comprehensive plan of codification in international law, paying due regard, as far as possible, to the work of codification which is being carried on in America.

It is unnecessary to mention the considerations which led the delegation of Paraguay to submit this proposal, as they were explained in detail both in the Assembly and at the meeting of the First Committee on 16th September 1927.

The proposal was referred to the Sub-Committee of the First Committee, for consideration in the light of the results already obtained by the Committee of Experts for the Progressive Codification of International Law, and bearing in mind the views and opinions expressed by the First Committee.

The Sub-Committee considers that the proposal of the delegation of Paraguay is of the highest interest for the attainment of unity and universality in international law.

It is of opinion that it would be advisable to consider the possibility of framing a general draft plan of codification with special reference to nomenclature, and the systematic classification of subjects, with a view to their progressive codification as and when they are considered sufficiently ripe.

In carrying out this task, regard should be had, as far as possible, both from the scientific and practical standpoints, to the advance of theory, to the work already accomplished by learned bodies and to the vast and remarkable efforts at codification which are being carried on in America.

The task might be entrusted to a special committee chosen by the Council; the members of this Committee should not merely possess individually the required qualifications, but should also represent the main forms of civilisation and the principal legal systems of the world. The Sub-Committee, however, considered that it would be premature to appoint any special organ for the purpose at the present time. It is preferable to wait until the Assembly is in a position to draw up the future programme of work for the Committee of Experts. It would be sufficient for the moment to invite the Committee of Experts to consider at its next session the conditions under which the problem might be investigated and to present a report to the Council, which would communicate these suggestions to the Assembly.

The Sub-Committee has accordingly the honour to propose that the following draft Resolution be submitted to the Assembly for its approval. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 113.)

ANNEXURE IV.—Report of the Second Committee on the Work of the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation. (Rapporteur: M. Breitscheid, Germany.)

The ninth session of the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation took place in July 1927. The work of this Committee and of its Sub-Committees was to a great extent prepared and facilitated by the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation.

Though still burdened with financial difficulties which have resulted in a certain under-staffing, the Institute has done its work in a satisfactory manner. It prepared reports, made the investigations requested by the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation at its preceding session, convened committees of experts and assisted them by every means in its power; in short, it carried out the resolutions of the Committee and has proved itself once again an indispensable auxiliary of the Committee.

The Second Committee has taken note of the report of the activities of the Institute and of the conclusions submitted by M. Destrée. On behalf of the Governing Body of the Institute, the Rapporteur believes he can affirm that the Governing Body has reason to be completely satisfied with the activities of the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation and that this is an organisation deserving of all possible support and encouragement.

The work of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation was preceded by a meeting of the Sub-Committee of Experts for the Instruction of Youth in the Existence and Aims of the League of Nations. This Sub-Committee, which held a first meeting last year, drew up a number of recommendations and suggestions. These were submitted to the Seventh Assembly at its ordinary session. In the light of the information communicated to the Secretariat both by the Governments and by private international associations concerned with the education of young people, this Sub-Committee of Experts thought it advisable to re-group and arrange in a more logical order the recommendations previously formulated.

In an admirable report which the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation approved unanimously, M. Destrée, member of the Sub-Committee, comments on these recommendations and sets forth the reasons which have led the Sub-Committee of Experts to come to these conclusions. Further, on behalf of the Sub-Committee and in order to confirm the work accomplished, M. Destrée proposes the three following resolutions:—

(a) A League of Nations Educational Information Centre shall be created at the Secretariat of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation in Geneva and at the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation at Paris.

(b) Authority is granted to the Sub-Committee of Experts to meet every two or three years to examine the results obtained in the different States from the application of the recommendations drawn up by the Sub-Committee of Experts and, if necessary, to submit supplementary recommendations.

(c) Authority is granted to the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation, in consultation with the Secretariat, and with the agreement of the Governments concerned, to appoint permanent lecturers and advisers. These lecturers should be at the disposal of the teaching staff and of the groups and associations desirous of promoting a spirit of international co-operation, to instruct them in the aims and existence of the League of Nations. Further, they should encourage the practical application of the Sub-Committee of Experts' recommendations.

These three proposals appear to be fully justified. Nevertheless, whilst the putting into practice of the first and second of these proposals would not impose any fresh charge on the budget of the Committee of Intellectual Co-operation, the third, if it were carried out, would involve a considerable increase in this budget. It would perhaps be advisable, to begin with, to approve only the first two proposals and to authorise the creation of the Educational Information Centre and also the meeting of the Sub-Committee of Experts, as at present constituted, at intervals which should be determined by the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation.

The Council, after examining the work of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation on 2nd September 1927, did not take any formal decision on the proposals of the Sub-Committee of Experts. It merely put forward suggestions by which we might be guided with regard to the future work of the Sub-Committee of Experts.

"The Sub-Committee," said the Council, "might be convened by the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation when the latter thought it desirable. In the intervals between plenary meetings of the Sub-Committee, its Chairman might, if an important question should arise, summon a small committee consisting of some of the members of the Sub-Committee. This small committee would investigate all questions requiring urgent consideration. It would be composed of those members of the Sub-Committee who were more especially qualified to deal with the particular question involved.

"The small committee might be convened by the Chairman of the Sub-Committee after consultation with the Chairman of the International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation. As a general rule, the report of the small committee would be laid before the plenary meeting of the Sub-Committee, except in particularly urgent cases, when it might first be sent direct to the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation."

The four Sub-Committees of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation have continued their work this year and have followed the same cautious and accurate methods as in the past. They have always taken advantage of existing national activities, and their efforts have led more frequently to the co-ordination of existing organisations than to the creation of new international bodies. The International Museums Office, which was founded by the Sub-Committee for Arts and Letters, and the Co-ordination Service of National Information Offices attached to Libraries, which was founded by the Sub-Committee for Scientific Relations, are based on the same principles.

It is to the initiative of the first of these bodies that we are indebted for the agreement between the Chalcographical Institutions of Madrid, Paris and Rome, the exhibitions held simultaneously in these cities and at present at Geneva, the publication of various booklets for the use of persons interested in questions of museography and information on art, &c.

Most of the problems with which the Sub-Committees have had to deal during the recent session were not taken up by them for the first time. They had already been under consideration and their solution called for extensive and thorough investigation, and for meetings of experts and specialists. The Committee has worked without haste, but with no unnecessary delay. For example, in the important sphere of the co-ordination of the bibliography of the various sciences, it has found a practical formula for the organisation of certain subjects in an agreement between those concerned—those who prepare and those who make use of bibliographies. This is true of the economic sciences. In other departments, such as that of biology, progress is being made and there is every reason to believe that important practical results will be obtained.

There are still difficulties in the way of carrying out these useful proposals. These difficulties are mainly financial, and the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation has commended this aspect of the problem to our notice. It is to be hoped that the Committee's appeal will be heard and that these obstacles may be overcome thanks to grants from the international and national associations concerned, and perhaps also to private generosity.

The same difficulties threaten the existence of the Office for Annual Tables of Constants and Mathematical Quantities. The International Committee dealing with this matter is struggling under adverse conditions with difficulties which have become more serious since the war. Governments, scientific bodies and industrial circles are alike interested in the continuation of the work of the Committee for the Annual Tables of Constants.

The Assembly, like the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation, considers that it is essential to provide the Committee for the Annual Tables with the support and resources required to enable it to continue its work. It desires to recommend it to the friendly consideration of Governments, learned bodies and industrial circles.

As regards university relations, the Committee is gratified with the results obtained from the meetings, held under its auspices, of the representatives of the international students' associations and of the Directors of National University Offices. It also considered how the Bulletin issued by the University Relations Section of the Institute might be made as useful and interesting as the financial conditions governing its publication permit.

In connection with intellectual rights, two questions in particular have continued to claim the Committee's attention—scientific property, and improvements in the existing convention on copyright. After an enquiry extending over five years, the Committee believes that the period of investigation is at an end and that it may convene a committee of experts for the former question. It would be the task of this committee to prepare a draft convention, taking into account the observations so far submitted and the enquiry conducted by the Institute of Intellectual Co-operation in the various circles concerned. The work undertaken by the Committee as a result of Senato Ruffini's proposal might thus lead to the conclusion of an international convention to protect and reward scientists and their discoveries.

The organisation of the Congress for Popular Arts has engrossed much of the activity of the Arts section of the Institute. This Congress, which has been carefully prepared, will take place at Prague in the autumn of 1928. The Czechoslovak Government has kindly offered to provide for a part of the necessary expenses. The Congress has aroused the keenest interest in most countries, and especially in Central and Eastern Europe. Invitations to the Congress will be sent to the Governments and organisations interested by a Committee composed of members appointed by the Czechoslovak Government, representatives of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation appointed by its chairman and of representatives of the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation, as well as delegates from the Preparatory Committee of the Congress.

A new scheme has been put forward which would make a very suitable supplement to this work. The town of Berne has informed the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation that it is willing to organise an Exhibition of Popular Arts for 1931 or 1932. The Committee has noted this proposal with the greatest pleasure, and I think I am expressing the sentiments of the Assembly in congratulating the town of Berne on its generous proposal. Moreover, I am sure that the Institute of Intellectual Co-operation, as well as the Secretariat of the Committee, will do all they can to facilitate the carrying out of this scheme.

The Committee on Intellectual Co-operation has once more noted the importance of National Committees, and the extent to which their work facilitates the relations between the Committee itself and the intellectual centres of the various countries.

It has also said how advisable it would be to promote and encourage these committees by giving them moral and, if possible, material support. The Assembly of the League of Nations has more than once shown its interest in these organisations, whose influence is steadily extending, and which now form a network covering not only most European countries, but also States in other continents.

The Committee on Intellectual Co-operation has very rightly taken a keen interest in the international movement which for some time past has developed in regard to the important problem of the cinematograph in its relation to general education and the development of the artistic sense.

Having noted the findings of the Congress of Paris of 1926 and the Congress of Basle of 1927, the Committee has authorised the Institute of Intellectual Co-operation to continue its study of this question, to support the work of the International Committee for Educational and Social Welfare Films, and to keep in touch with all institutions and national and provincial centres which are interested in this question.

The Committee has noted with satisfaction the setting up of a Committee of Intellectual Workers attached to the International Labour Office. It has asked M. Destrée and Professor Einstein to represent it on this Committee.

The plenary Committee, sitting in its capacity of Governing Body, has examined the report of the Director of the Institute concerning last year's financial situation, as well as a report by M. de Reynold in the name of the Committee of Directors.

The Committee learned that it had been possible to balance the Institute's budget for 1928, thanks to the grants which were added from various sources to the French Government's grant. The Governing Body notes with regret, however, that the Institute's resources are still far from adequate for the carrying out of its entire programme.

The Second Committee requests the Assembly to approve its report on the work of the Committee of Intellectual Co-operation and to adopt the following Resolutions. (For text of Resolutions adopted see page 120.)

ANNEXURE V.—Report of the Second Committee on the Settlement of Bulgarian Refugees. (Rapporteur: Major Elliot, British Empire.)

During the seventh ordinary session of the Assembly, the Second Committee had before it the initial stages of the League scheme for the settlement of some 32,000 Bulgarian refugee families. The general plan of work had been drawn up, the machinery to some extent organised, and the work had been started by means of a small advance pending the final negotiations for the loan necessary to put the scheme into full operation.

We can now consider the full year's work and note with gratification the progress achieved. In the first place, it is satisfactory to record the successful floatation of the Bulgarian Refugee Loan. London, New York, Italy, Switzerland and Holland subscribed for bonds bearing 7 per cent. interest and redeemable not later than 1967. The price of issue to the public was 92 per cent. and a total sum of approximately two and a quarter million pounds sterling was made available for the settlement of refugees.

The quarterly reports of the Commissioner of the League of Nations, M. Charron, show that the yield of the revenue assigned for the security of the loan, while not up to the estimates contained in the Bulgarian budget, have nevertheless been amply sufficient to cover several times over the sums required for the service of the loan. It is gratifying to note that there has been a progressive improvement in the yield of the assigned revenues and that yet further steps are being taken to accentuate this tendency.

As regards matters of organisation, the Bulgar Government is to be congratulated on the success with which it has centralised all its refugee services under the able direction of M. Sarafoff, whose energetic co-operation has been a feature of the work of the last year. A wise step has been taken in securing the advice of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. as to the system of accounting adopted, which has thus been placed on thoroughly sound lines.

It will be recalled that an essential feature of the scheme, embodied in Article 8 of the Protocol of 8th September 1926, was the provision by the Bulgarian Government of 132,000 hectares of suitable land free from any encumbrance. Legal difficulties in the acquisition by the State of unencumbered title to the land required have caused certain delays, but these have already been obviated to a considerable extent by a special law passed by the Bulgarian Government. Further delays have been caused by technical difficulties as to maps and surveys, but these are gradually disappearing owing to the excellent work of the Geographical Institute of Bulgaria, to which M. Charron pays a special tribute in his reports.

These difficulties in providing the land have necessarily made the progress of the work of building houses in which the refugees can be installed somewhat slow, but the forth report of the League of Nations Commissioner shows that we may hope for a great intensification of activity in building houses in the near future. Considerable progress has been made in the distribution to the refugees of seeds, agricultural implements and cattle.

Other difficulties have been faced and appropriate measures taken to meet them. The original plans for the drainage of marshes have, upon close technical examination, been found to need revision, which has been undertaken. The League owes a very great debt of gratitude indeed to the distinguished Italian engineer, Signor Fornari, for his invaluable co-operation in this matter.

Similarly with regard to malaria. The well-known Dutch scientist, Professor Swellengrebel, in concert with the Health Section of the League, has rendered services of inestimable value, and, in accordance with his recommendations, a competent medical service has been set up and a suitable organisation started to undertake anti-malarial work.

Plans have been drawn up or are in course of preparation for as much work on road and railways as is permitted by the amount of funds at present available. It is to be hoped that substantial progress will be made in this direction during the coming year.

It is particularly gratifying to record that, owing to the determination of all parties concerned, the problems which might have arisen out of the settlement of refugees in districts near the land frontiers of Bulgaria have in all cases been solved. A high tribute is to be paid to the spirit of co-operation in which the Bulgarian Government and the neighbour States have acted in this matter.

We can therefore record the successful inception of this scheme, and if in many directions unforeseen difficulties have arisen, we can look with satisfaction upon the courage and resolution with which they have been faced and the prospect of success in overcoming them. This has meant arduous work for all concerned, but we can confidently count on the energy and initiative of the Bulgarian Government and of the servants of the League, under the inspiring leadership of the Commissioner, M. Charron, whose skill and devotion have been beyond praise. We can rest assured that they will spare no effort to add still another to the achievements of reconstruction which the League regards with such justifiable pride.

I have the honour to propose to the Assembly the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 125.)

ANNEXURE VI.—Report of the Second Committee on the results of the Mission carried out in certain Latin-American Countries by the President of the Health Committee.

(Rapporteur: Professor L. C. Mackenna, Chile.)

Although a recent development, the participation of the League of Nations in the public health activities of South America already promises to be fruitful. Preventive medicine, by its very nature, embraces the entire human race and recognises no nationalities or frontiers; and the work of the Health Organisation, as approved by the Assembly, is of fundamental importance. Countries which Geographically are far distant from the seat of the League of Nations realise this more than others, and recognise in this high tribunal the most generous of collaborators and the most competent of advisers.

The problems of infant mortality were the main object of the journey to Latin-America of the President of the Health Committee, Professor T. Madsen, and of the Medical Director, Dr. Rajchman. They were to attend the meeting of the International Group of Experts in Child Welfare held at Montevideo last June to study the medico-social causes of infant morality in Latin-American countries. Moreover, their powers of observation gave them deep insight into general health conditions. Suggestions were submitted, and several plans of real continental importance were proposed. The League of Nations, in agreement with the Governments concerned, may be able to transform these plans into great realities. A reference to these plans will be made later.

1. The campaign against infant mortality is of special importance to Latin-American countries. If one considers the great area of certain of these countries and their sparse population, the importance of the loss in human capital caused by high infant mortality rates will be appreciated. How much greater the prosperity of these nations might be if the population increased more rapidly and thus facilitated the growth of its industries, agriculture and commerce.

On this continent, as elsewhere, it was primarily private enterprise which created numerous organisations for child welfare. These organisations have steadily become more efficient, and to-day they are trying to fill the role of public health and social institutions. Nevertheless, in spite of the modernisation of their programmes of work, they are still too widely scattered and their activities lack support and cohesion.

Moreover, they were not all designed for the handling of large problems: they have been engaged in dealing with immediate dangers of obvious urgency. These considerations, together with other similar ones, explain the enthusiasm with which the Latin-American experts respond to the invitation of the League of Nations and attended the Conference at Montevideo.

Delegates of Argentine, Brazil, Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay were thus enabled to make a detailed steady of their national problems relating to child welfare, and, approving the procedure accepted by their European colleagues, they adopted plans for investigations which are to be carried out in 1928. The purpose of this study will be to determine with the greatest possible exactitude the main medical and social causes, both of still-births and of infant mortality. As in the case of the investigations in Europe, it was considered necessary to carry out these investigations in both urban and rural areas, comprising localities with high and low mortality rates in both groups. It is thus hoped to arrive at conclusions on which it will be possible to base, as rapidly and widely as possible, effective prophylactic measures against infant diseases.

In order to obtain results that can be compared as between the different countries, it is obvious that uniformity of method is essential. It was therefore decided to propose that the member of the Health Section of the Secretariat of the League of Nations who is responsible for co-ordinating the investigations in Europe should undertake a similar work in the Latin-American countries.

It was also decided to convene the Latin-American experts during the first half of the year 1928 for an exchange of views on the results that will by then have been obtained and on the possibility of improving the method of enquiry.

It is interesting to recall in this connection that the Montevideo meeting was the first conference held by the League of Nations in a Latin-American country, and it is gratifying to note that the inauguration of the work of this Conference was made the occasion of an official ceremony in the presence of His Excellency the President of the Republic and presided over by the Minister of Industry. These circumstances show the importance which the Government or Uruguay attributed to this Conference.

2. Thanks to the initiative of the Health Committee of the League of Nations, the lot of the Latin-American child will certainly be much improved when each country has determined, with a view to remedying them, the main social-medical causes of infant mortality in its urban centres and rural districts. But the practical application of these measures and their success are directly dependent on the quality and the degree of training of the staff which will be entrusted with their execution and supervision. Mindful, no doubt, of such considerations as these, Professor Araoz Alfaro, member of the League Health Committee, has suggested, with the support of the Argentine Government, the establishment at Buenos Ayres, under the auspices of the League of Nations, of an international health centre for infant welfare. It would provide training facilities for a staff capable of dealing in an efficient fashion with child welfare in Latin-American countries.

This school would also co-ordinate the work of the various magnificent institutions which have been established in the Argentine capital by the State and the municipality with the work of private organisations and of the very remarkable Welfare Society. It would be placed under the presidency of the Argentine member of the Health Committee, who could submit to the Health Committee an annual report dealing with the activity of the school during the past year and the programme of studies for the coming year. But since education is only one stage in developing the practical work to be done, the Argentine Federal Health Authorities desire at the same time to establish dispensaries and welfare centres in those provinces where infant mortality remains relatively high and which receive immigrants from overseas. For this purpose the Federal Authorities are counting on the support of the provincial governments and municipalities.

It would also be possible to profit by the so-called system of inter-changes of public health personnel, which is well known to the Assembly and the usefulness of which has been described in remarkable fashion by the honourable delegate from British India, to give the Argentine undertaking an international character. If scholarships could be granted to Latin-American doctors of countries other than the Argentine to enable them to follow the course of higher education which would be given at the centre in question, and also to pass a period of training in the treatment and prevention stations, and if experts from other countries could be invited by the Health Committee to give courses of lectures or to study there, a real centre for international technical collaboration might be established.

Perhaps one day some other Latin-American country may offer to create a centre complementary to that proposed by the Argentine authorities, for it is important that the public health experts who deal with infant welfare should be effectively supported not only by visiting nurses but also by social workers. If in the future a social welfare school could be of service in a Latin-American capital, and if this could be in Chile, the delegation of this country would be very pleased to ensure, by means of the school established at Santiago, fruitful collaboration with the Health Committee of the League.

3. The work of the Health Committee could be still further turned to advantage by the Latin-American countries if the League of Nations could take under its auspices the higher education in health, which was organised two years ago at Rio de Janeiro, and so endow it with the same international character as the courses organised this year by the Health Committee in Paris and London. This school could be based on the magnificant Research Institute founded by Oswaldo Cruz at Rio de Janeiro and directed with so much scientific ability by Professor Carlos Chagas, member of the Health Committee of the League of Nations.

The training of public health experts and of a health staff is essential to the economic development of Latin-American countries. Public health is not only the technical application of modern experience in preventive medicine; it is also the improvement of the conditions of economic life. Public health officers are pioneers who ensure the exploitation of wealth and enable people to enjoy the natural resources with which they are richly endowed.

The Assembly will thus readily understand the capital importance of giving this national army of " scouts " an adequate technical training—a training which can only be provided by institutions of recognised technical standing. Numerous public health specialists from Latin-America have already profited by the interchange system of the League, and approximately 42 of them, belonging to 15 different countries, holding League of Nations scholarships, have been able to study in North America and in various European countries.

The Brazilian proposal would enable other Latin-American countries to benefit by the excellent training given by the Oswaldo Cruz Institute and the experience it has already acquired. It will probably not be possible for the Health Committee to invite many lecturers to assist in the instruction given there, as it has been able to do in the case of the health courses in Paris and London, but one or two foreign technical experts might be appointed to co-operate for a few months in Rio with the Latin-American staff, and here again, as in the case of the Argentine centre, scholarships might enable Latin-American doctors to derive a large amount of benefit from these courses.

4. The Assembly will also be interested to learn that Professor Carlos Chagas and Dr. Clementino Fraga, Director of the Brazilian Federal Public Health Service, have suggested that an International Leprosy Research Centre should be established under the auspices of the League.

The problem of leprosy has engaged the attention of the Health Committee for some years, and the efforts made in Northern European countries to combat this disease have been crowned with remarkable success. The road which several Eastern and many Latin-American countries have still to travel is an arduous one. The task obviously devolves upon the national authorities, but investigations into the causes of the spread of the disease demand the assistance of all and real co-operation between scientists of all countries. This task affords an excellent opportunity for defining international action and the extent of national effort. If the Health Organisation is able to obtain the co-operation of the great scientists of other countries in the research work already undertaken in Latin-American countries, it will have made a real contribution to the solution of one of the most difficult problems which the health administrations of the countries are called upon to solve.

It is necessary to add that a Brazilian philanthropist—Dr. Guillermo Guinle—is prepared to contribute a sum of 50,000 Swiss francs a year towards the creation of a leprosy research centre. Moreover, it should not be forgotten that the Federal Government of Brazil would take a deep interest in the new development of public health under the auspices of the League of Nations.

5. The comparative researches into the sero-diagnosis of syphilis in Europe, initiated by the Health Committee, and the practical results already obtained, might be extended to Latin-American countries. The Institute of Hygiène of the State of São Paulo is willing to make this possible and has already earmarked in its budget a sum sufficient to provide the salary for one year of a serologist to be appointed by the Health Committee of the League of Nations. As soon as these investigations have been begun in Brazil, they might be extended to other Latin-American countries; a step forward would thus be taken in the campaign against this social scourge.

6. Thanks to the League's mission, co-operation between the sanitary administration of Uruguay and the Mixed Commission of the Health Committee now studying health insurance in Europe has been assured. The National Council of the Uruguayan Ministry, in agreement with the Ministry of Industry, has decided to accept this co-operation in principle. The President of the National Council of Hygiene of Uruguay is prepared to visit Europe in order to follow more closely the work of the Mixed Commission and to introduce into his country all the necessary elements for the working of the new system of health insurance.

7. The Mission of the Health Committee arrived in Latin-America accompanied by Professor Saiki, Director of the Imperial Institute for Research on Nutrition in Japan. Professor Saiki was the first of those who participated in the exchange of professors organised by the League of Nations to visit Latin-America. The important science of nutrition, which Professor Saiki has made his own—a science which deals with the problem of nutrition in its physiological, hygienic and economic aspects—was the subject of numerous remarkable lectures given by him in various cities of the Argentine, Brazil, Chile and Uruguay. The Chilian Government and the health authorities of that country, recognising the practical and social importance of the science of nutrition, have arranged to engage for the period of two years a Japanese expert from the Imperial Institute of Tokyo, of which Professor Saiki is the head, for the purpose of organising similar services in the Central Health Department in Chile.

The Assembly will doubtless agree that the most interesting examples given of practical co-operation of the League of Nations with Latin-American countries call for technical investigation into the possibilities of realisation. The investigation of those various schemes should be entrusted to the Health Committee, and the Assembly will perhaps agree to request the Council to place the matter in the hands of the Health Committee as soon as possible .

After arranging for the technical investigation, it is still necessary to consider the general question as to whether the various possibilities of co-operation which have been examined represent a suitable method for extending the technical work of the League of Nations in Latin-American countries. The essential problem for these countries is their development, for which healthy population and measures to safeguard the life of every new-born child are essential. The Assembly has thus an opportunity of giving clear proof of the desire of the League of Nations to co-operate in this work of fundamental importance, by facilitating the realisation of the schemes just placed before it.

It is sometimes said that the influence of the League of Nations is in inverse ratio to the distance which separates the States from Geneva. Thanks to the various suggestions brought back by the Mission of the Health Committee in Latin-America, the Assembly now has an opportunity to create a living image of the League of Nations in the very heart of Latin-American countries and to establish tangible and definite bonds with the League and its Health Committee.

In conclusion, I have the honour, on behalf of the Second Committee, to propose the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 118.)

ANNEXURE VII.—Report of the Second Committee on the Work of the Health Organisation. (Rapporteur: Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, India.)

The reports presented to this Assembly concerning the work of the Health Organisation of the League furnish a record of progress that is gratifying. It is not necessary to attempt any description of the routine work of that Organisation. The scope and objects of this work have been fully described in reports to this and to previous Assemblies. Attention should, however, be directed to a few aspects of the work of special interest at the present time.

Since the last Assembly a new Health Committee has been appointed. A welcome innovation has been the appointment of expert assessors, who take part in the work of the Committee in an advisory capacity. The appointment of assessors from countries as far distant from Geneva as Australia and Japan is further evidence of the tendency towards universality of the work of the Health Organisation, which received favourable comment during our meetings last year.

The past year has seen a still further development of the Bureau of Epidemiological intelligence at Singapore. The work of this Bureau has now become of administrative interest and importance, not only to countries in the East, where the benefits are obvious, but also to all the many other countries having commercial relations with the East. Weekly telegraphic reports concerning the health conditions in no less than 137 ports of Asia, Australasia and the East Coast of Africa are despatched to the Bureau, and this information is broadcast throughout this area from an increased number of wireless telegraph stations. Movements of epidemic disease can thus be watched and studied and measures taken in advance to repel invasion of infection.

The permanence of the Signapore Bureau, it is submitted, should be assured by the League, whose authorities should ensure its adequate financing. Especially worthy of remembrance is the circumstance that the activities of this Organisation form the chief visible link between Eastern countries and the League Organisation. That those countries—some of whom, like India, are large contributors to the general budget—appreciate this aspect of the League's work is evident from their close co-operation with its labours. Thus, for instance, India is represented on the Health Committee, to the mutual advantages, it is hoped, of India and of the Health Organisation itself. The Government of India, which welcomes his appointment, has not only sent Colonel Graham, its representative, to attend the meeting in January, but is also co-operating by broadcasting the Bureau's weekly epidemiological reports.

The weekly distribution of the Singapore and other current epidemiological information of importance from the wireless station at Nauen in Germany is a still more recent development which proved of very great assistance to administrations in Europe and elsewhere during the influenza epidemic of the early months of this year. During the course of that outbreak all European Health Administrations furnished the Health Organisation with weekly telegraphic summaries of the progress of the epidemic, which information was broadcast twice a week from the Nauen station. The demonstration thus afforded of the capabilities of our Health Organisation to supply prompt and reliable information in the event of the appearance of serious epidemic disease has occasioned much favourable comment.

It is gratifying to know that a way has been found of utilising the efficient epidemiological intelligence work of the Health Organisation, including that of the Singapore Bureau, in discharging the obligations imposed on the Office international d'Hygiène publique and on signatory Governments by the International Sanitary Convention of 1926.

Reference should also be made to the further agreement concluded between the Permanent Committee of the Office international d'Hygiène publique and the Health Committee with the object of securing still closer co-ordination of the work of these two bodies.

The recent termination of the work of the International Sleeping-Sickness Commission deserves more than passing notice. It is another striking example of the widespread nature of the Health Organisation's activities. The Commission has produced a report of very considerable scientific interest and importance and has been able to put forward suggestions for international co-operation, by the Administrations interested, in the control of this disease, whose prevention is of vital public health and economic importance to large territories in Africa.

This Assembly has heard much during previous years regarding the so-called interchanges of public health officers—a system whereby health officers of many countries have been able to profit by the experience of other countries in handling health problems that are important to all. The interchange, or study tour, that is to begin in Germany during the course of the present month has features of special interest, and will be attended by as many as 30 officers holding important positions in the health administrations of almost as many countries.

Following the example of the interchange held in Japan in 1925, one is being arranged in India with the active assistance of the central and local Governments, and great results are anticipated therefrom. It is hoped that the President of the Health Committee and the Director of the Health Section will be able to join the party so as to produce the best results both from the point of view of the League and of the localities concerned. It may not be out of place to emphasise that these interchanges furnish a conspicuous example of international co-operation and emphasise and carry into practice the ideals of universality embodied in the Covenant of the League. By this means and by the dissemination of intelligence as to epidemics and research into epidemics, the administrations and the peoples of distant countries are brought into close touch with the central Organisation of the League, and the mutual benefit derivable from the contacts thus established cannot be over-estimated.

An interesting development growing out of this system of study tours has been the organisation of international health courses. These courses last about seven weeks. They consist of lectures, discussions and practical demonstrations at which the working of public health and sanitary institutions and sanitary engineering plants are thoroughly explained. The subjects dealt with cover a large range, special prominence being given to public health problems of present-day importance and to recent development of public health science and research. These courses afford an opportunity to health officers belonging to many administrations of hearing the views of prominent experts regarding such matters. The first of such courses was held in Paris in the early months of this year, and a second course will be held in London in November and December. In Paris all the lectures were delivered in French; in London the course will be held in English.

The Malaria Commission has recently published a general report, which illustrates the value of this Commission's work to the many countries in which malaria is so prevalent a cause of ill-health. The Commission has made extensive tours throughout all countries in Europe in which malaria presents problems of public health importance, and in Syria and Palestine. Two members of the Commission have recently paid a visit to the United States of America. The opportunity afforded by these tours for discussion between the prominent experts forming the Commission and the malaria experts of the countries visited concerning problems of great local importance have been of the utmost value. The Health Committee continues to receive requests for advice concerning malaria problems and through its Malaria Commission it has recently been able to render signal service to Bulgaria. The Government of India hopes that it may be possible for this Commission to visit India during the latter half of 1928, and it is confident that if this invitation is accepted, every effort will be made by the various local Governments in India to make the visit interesting and helpful. Reference should also be made to the malaria courses that have been organised by the Health Organisation at the Faculty of Medicine, Paris, the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, and at the Institute of Maritime and Tropical Medicine, Hamburg. A laboratory course of some four weeks' duration at one or the other of these institutes is followed by two months' work in certain malaria districts of Italy, Spain and the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes during which participants have an opportunity of seeing and taking part in anti-malaria work there being carried out. The expenses incurred by attendance of these malaria courses for a necessarily limited number of medical officers engaged in malaria work in Government employ in different countries is a charge against the Health Organisation budget, and an increasing number of applications received for attendance at these courses is evidence of their great utility.

Another excellent example of the manner in which a League technical organisation can secure collaboration in dealing with scientific problems is afforded by the International Rabies Conference, which was held in Paris in April last, and wherein my country participated through two experts with practical experience of the subject. Hydrophobia, though nowhere an important cause of mortality in comparison with that occasioned by epidemic disease, is nevertheless in certain countries a problem of great practical importance. Since Pasteur discovered the preventive treatment that bears his name, institutes for the treatment of persons bitten by rabid animals have sprung up all over the world. In the course of time, modifications have been introduced into the treatment as instituted by Pasteur, so that at the present time very divergent methods are employed. The Conference arranged by the Health Organisation afforded the first opportunity there has been for directors of institutes from all parts of the world to meet and compare experiences of the results obtained with the various modifications of the original Pasteur method that are in use in their laboratories. The technical discussions that took place were of the greatest possible value, and the report of the Conference will be an authoritative statement regarding many difficult scientific problems and tend towards increased efficiency.

Reference should also be made to two important activities of the Health Organisation which originated in resolutions of the Assembly enquiries into infant mortality and health insurance respectively.

Several aspects of the study of health insurance are of interest to the International Labour Office, and consequently the Expert Commission which is entrusted with this study consists of twelve members, half of which were nominated by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and half by the Health Committee. This Commission, at its first meeting in Geneva in April last, decided on a programme of enquiry into certain aspects of public health and social insurance, from the point of view of preventive medicine, in certain selected countries. The personnel charged with each of these enquiries is representative of both the public health and the social aspects of insurance. In view of the great interest with which questions of health insurance are being considered in my countries at the present time, the results of this study will be looked forward to with special interest.

The infant welfare enquiry is likewise in the hands of an Expert Commission nominated by the Health Committee, the members of which have been selected in view of their special competence in this branch of public health work. The enquiry that is now being carried out, on exactly comparable lines, in seven European countries (in areas with high and low infant mortality rates respectively, and urban and rural districts) into the immediate and contributing causes of all infant deaths occurring in such areas is being extended to certain Latin-American countries on exactly comparable lines. The results of this investigation can hardly fail to contribute to a saving of life and to the betterment of the physical condition of generations yet to come.

The Second Committee also considered the recommendations adopted by the International Pacific Health Conference held in Melbourne in December 1926 relating to the study of important problems presented by prevailing health conditions in that part of the world, and the possibility of the League Health Organisation's being able to render assistance in their elucidation, in accordance with the request made by the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia.

In conclusion, I have the honour, on behalf of the Second Committee, to propose the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 117.)

ANNEXURE VIII.—Report of the Second Committee on the Work of the Economic Committee. (Rapporteur: M. Gliwic, Poland.)

The work accomplished in the domain of economics in the course of the last year by the League of Nations, the Council, the Economic Organisation, under that eminent economist, Sir Arthur Salter—a work of which the League of Nations has every right to be proud—was, as you know, Gentlemen, the preparation and groundwork of the International Economic Conference. Of this Conference our distinguished colleague, M. Loucheur, will speak to you with that authority which attaches to all his pronouncements. My task is a more modest one. I shall only claim your attention for the necessarily restricted but none the less meritorious and concrete activities of the Economic Committee. Owing to the preparations for the International Economic Conference, this Committee has only held two sessions this year, one of which was devoted to the work entrusted to it by the Council and the other to the work devolving upon it in consequence of certain resolutions of the International Economic Conference referred to it by the Council.

1. International Conference for the Abolition of Import and Export Prohibitions and Restrictions. This question, which was initiated by a resolution of the Assembly at its fifth ordinary session, has been the object of long and careful studies by the Economic Committee in consultation with Governments and interested circles. The International Economic Conference gave its unanimous approval to the draft convention prepared by the Economic Committee as the basis for discussion at an international conference.

By a decision of the Council the Conference on Prohibitions will open at Geneva on 17th October of this year. All States Members of the League and the principal States non-Members have been invited by the Council to send representatives to this conference.

The coming conference, although it has been prepared before the International Economic Conference, may be regarded as the first attempt to give practical effect to the principles and recommendations of that Conference, and it may have a considerable influence upon the success of other measures which may be contemplated to put into operation other important recommendations of the Economic Conference, in particular those relating to tariffs.

For this reason, and in order to free international commerce from a barrier which it considers to be one of the chief obstacles to the freer movement of goods, the Second Committee cannot but express the wish that the coming conference will lead to the conclusion of a binding agreement, signed and subsequently ratified by as many States as possible.

2. As mentioned above, the second session of the Committee was entirely devoted to the preparatory study of certain recommendations of the International Economic Conference referred to the Committee by the Council, viz., the recommendations with regard to tariffs and commercial treaties, to the unification of Customs nomenclature and to the treatment of foreign nationals and enterprises.

As regards tariffs and commercial treaties, the Committee is pursuing a preliminary study of the actual situation in the various countries, so as to be able to judge at which moment and under what conditions further steps could be taken towards a common policy. The study undertaken by the Economic Committee refers in particular to the characteristic features of the tariffs of the various countries, the advantages and disadvantages of their Customs régime as well as of the form and application of the most-favoured-nation clause and so forth.

The first step towards the unification of Customs nomenclature appeared to the Committee to be the drawing up of the general framework of a unified tariff to form the basis for further work. Contrary to the pessimistic anticipations held in many quarters, the small group of experts to whom the Committee entrusted the first task has already achieved very considerable progress. In October they will submit their unified framework along with proposals as to the best methods for elaborating the details, and we have every reason to hope that in the year 1928 great progress towards the unification of tariff nomenclature will have been made.

The question of the treatment of foreign nationals and enterprises is not new to the Committee. It will be remembered that in 1923 and 1925 the Committee agreed upon two series of principles with regard to the treatment of foreigners in fiscal and legal matters, and the treatment of foreigners admitted to exercise a trade, profession or other economic occupation, and that the adoption of these principles was recommended by the Council to all States Members of the League. The International Economic Conference has now recommended that an international conference be held with the object of settling the matter by means of an international agreement. The Second Committee is glad to state that the Economic Committee is already engaged in drawing up the preparatory documents for this conference.

3. The International Convention relating to the Simplification of Customs Formalities, signed at Geneva on 3rd November 1923, has been ratified by seven more States since the last Assembly. This brings the number of ratifications or adhesions up to 27, i.e., nearly one-half of the States Members of the League. It is to be hoped that the other half will find it possible to adhere to the Convention in the near future. The first reports of the Governments on the application of the Convention which have been communicated to the Secretary-General in accordance with Article 9, reveal (I quote the report of the Committee) "the striking progress which has been made under the influence of the Convention, both as regards the clauses which have a binding character and those which are merely in the nature of recommendations." Moreover, the Committee has found that the provisions of the Convention are being increasingly used as a basis for the settlement of questions of a similar character in bilateral treaties.

In view of the encouraging reports of the Governments on the application of the provisions of the Convention, the Economic Committee has decided to take up the study of certain recommendations annexed to the Convention with a view to their practical application.

4. As regards the question of false declarations in Customs matters, arising out of a recommendation of the Geneva Conference of 1923 on Customs Formalities, the Committee, after considering the various proposals which have been put before the Committee either for an international convention or for bilateral agreements, decided, with the approval of the Council, to invite a few jurists and Customs experts to express their opinion on the juridical and technical aspects of the question. Owing to the urgent nature of the other questions now on hand, the proposed meeting of experts has not yet taken place, but the Committee understands that it is contemplated holding it at the earliest possible date.

5. The Protocol of 1923 on Arbitration Clauses has been ratified during the past year by two further States, thus bringing the number of ratifications up to 15. The small number of ratifications during the past year is no doubt due to the fact that an additional protocol for the enforcement of foreign arbitral awards has been prepared and already circulated to the Members of the League. The Assembly will be called upon at its present session to consider this draft, which is intended to supplement the 1923 Protocol. This question forms a separate item on our agenda, and I therefore do not propose to dwell upon the matter here.

6. With regard to the question of the unification of bills of exchange, the Economic Committee is now directing its efforts towards an attempt to assimilate and harmonise in the first place the laws of the countries belonging to the continental group, a complete unification of all existing laws having been recognised as presenting, for the time being, insuperable obstacles. The Economic Committee is of the opinion that if only the continental laws relating to bills of exchange and cheques could be assimilated, great progress would be achieved, and it might then perhaps be easier to bring into closer harmony the continental and the Anglo-Saxon systems. With the approval of the Council, the Committee called together a meeting of experts, drawn from business circles, to point out the practical difficulties encountered by the business world as a result of the divergencies between the laws of the different countries and to single out those difficulties which appeared to be capable of solution by means of an international agreement. As a result of the proposals of these experts, the Committee came to the conclusion that further steps should be taken with a view to framing the necessary articles to serve as the basis of an international agreement. This task will be entrusted to a meeting of experts, mainly jurists, the holding of which has already been approved by the Council and the convening of which is contemplated for this autumn.

The Second Committee has been informed that it, as we have every reason to hope, the work of these experts rapidly achieves the desired result, it should be possible to consider the convening of an international conference, either at the end of 1928 or the beginning of the following year, with a view to reaching an agreement to bring about that assimilation of legislations of the continental type which is so greatly to be desired and to which I have just referred.

I considered it advisable to draw special attention to this circumstance in order that countries contemplating the reform of their laws relating to bills of exchange and cheques might if necessary bear it in mind.

7. In the course of its study into the question of economic crises, the Committee called together a number of experts in order to have their opinions as to the scientific and technical aspects of the establishment of indices and economic barometers. The report of these experts will be considered at the next meeting of the Joint Committee on Economic Crises representing the Economic and Financial Committees and the International Labour Office.

8. Following up the work done by the Economic Committee with the help of the International Institute of Statistics in the field of the unification of economic statistics, the Committee suggested to the Council that a conference should be convened in the near future and to which all Governments should be invited to send official statisticians. The object of this Conference would be to promote the adoption by the various States of uniform methods in the compilation of economic statistics. The Council agreed to this proposal in principle, but decided to await concrete suggestions from the Economic Committee before fixing the programme and date of the Conference.

9. Reference should also be made to recommendation of the Economic Committee approved by the Council in its session of December 1925 to the effect that it would be of great advantage if the League could publish a Statistical Yearbook in which were summarised in a single volume the very considerable quantity of statistics of great interest to Governments and business men, which were at present scattered through a number of different League publications. It was originally intended to issue the first edition of this volume during the course of 1926 but finally decided to incorporate it in the documentation of the Economic Conference. This volume has attracted a very considerable amount of attention and is, I venture to believe, likely in the near future to become one of the best known of all the documents issued by the League of Nations.

10. The Committee entered upon the study of the economic relations between different countries—a question submitted to it by the Council in relation to the problem of disarmament. The importance of this question will be generally realised.

11. Before concluding, I should like to say a few words on a subject which, although not mentioned in either of the two reports of the Economic Committee before us, requires some explanation—that is to say, the question of the Protection of foreign buyers against worthless goods.

The Second Committee expressed the hope last year that every effort would be made to secure the publication before the present session of the Assembly of the documents collected by the Economic Section regarding the various means existing in different countries for protecting foreign buyers against worthless goods or goods the quality of which is unsatisfactory.

An uncorrected proof of this publication has been distributed to the Second Committee.

This pamphlet contains a quantity of information of importance for the business world, and it is to be hoped that the first attempt which has just been made will produce a satisfactory result by indicating more clearly the aim that has been pursued and its utility.

The Second Committee expresses the desire that an urgent appeal should be made to the various Governments requesting them to furnish to the Secretariat the information which it requires in order to complete its work, either by means of additional data in the case of those countries from whom information has already been obtained or by providing such information where it is still lacking.

The Committee is of opinion that it can trust the Secretariat as soon as possible to bring to a successful conclusion the first task which is incumbent upon it—that is to say, to complete this provisional publication so that it may be communicated without delay to all Governments.

The Second Committee has the honour to submit to the Assembly the following draft Resolutions. (For text of Resolutions adopted, see page 122.)

ANNEXURE IX.—Report of the Second Committee on the Work of the Organisation for Communications and Transit and on the Results of the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit. (Rapporteur: M. de Brouckère, Belgium.)

From the Report and the Supplementary Report of the Advisory and Technical Committee for Communications and Transit, the Assembly has been able to form an idea of the way in which this Committee has effectively pursued its work during the past year on the lines already repeatedly approved by the Assembly. To mention only a few examples, the investigations already referred to regarding combined transport, the unification of private law in inland navigation, and the unification of statistics are making it possible to secure most valuable results. Those relating to the unification of tonnage measurement in maritime navigation have at last been put in hand with all the necessary expert assistance. The final report on the unification of buoyage and lighting of coasts has been submitted to the Governments of maritime countries with a view to a possible conference. In the same way, the definite proposals which, in pursuance of the Passport Conference, the Committee has been able to draw up with regard to the issue of a transit card for emigrants, exempting them from the formality of visas, will probably be incorporated shortly in an agreement giving them practical effect, nearly all the Governments concerned having already signified their assent. Lastly, the enquiry regarding inland navigation in Europe has been brought to an end with a detailed study of the important problems of inland navigation concerning Poland, in which country a special mission of experts studied on the spot—in agreement with the Polish Government—the conditions for the construction of various canals, the regulation of the Vistula, the routes of access to the outlets on the Baltic, the drainage of the Polesian marshes, etc. With the report submitted on this question and communicated to all the Governments, the Advisory and Technical Committee, in conformity with the resolution of the Genoa Conference, entered upon the path of providing practical assistance to Governments with a view to the economic reconstruction and development of Europe.

It would undoubtedly be of great interest to examine in detail the results of this regular work of the Advisory and Technical Committee, to whose credit should also be put the investigations undertaken at the Council's request with a view to the improvement of the communications of the League of Nations at times of emergency, which will come under review by the Assembly when it considers the work done in the matter of the reduction of armaments. But this year it would seem that the Assembly, without neglecting the results of the Advisory and Technical Committee's continuous work, should give its particular attention to the results of the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit, prepared by the Advisory and Technical Committee, and held at Geneva from 23rd August to 2nd September last. This Conference, moreover, directly requested the Assembly to take positive action on certain points.

The First General Conference on Communications and Transit, held at Barcelona in 1921, laid the foundations of the Organisation in conformity with the principles adopted in the Assembly's resolutions of 8th and 9th December 1920. It also concluded General Conventions on the Freedom of Transit and the Regime of Navigable Waterways of International Concern and made various recommendations.

The Second General Conference, held at Geneva in 1923, concluded General Conventions on the International Regime of Railways and on the International Regime of Maritime Ports, as well as two Conventions on electric questions.

The General Conference of 1927 had not on its agenda the elaboration of any general conventions. Except as regards a particular question arising out of the Conference on the International Regime of Passports, viz., the question of identity documents for persons without nationality, it did not deal with problems affecting the direct interests of States. For the first time an international conference on communications met with the main object of supervising and bringing to the highest point of efficiency the methods of international co-ordination utilised by the League of Nations in the domain of transports. Yet, although the Governments had no special interests to defend, at any rate as regards the greater part of the agenda, 43 Governments were represented, and this fact alone shows the importance attached by all the administrations to the consolidation and development of the work of the League of Nations as regards communications and transit. The United States of America took an active part for the first time in a General Conference on Communications and Transit of the League. Ecuador and Egypt were also represented, as well as Turkey, who had already taken part in the Second Conference. The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics was not represented at the Conference, but officially communicated its desire to be kept informed of the results, to which it attaches great importance.

Apart from the Governments represented, the presence in an advisory capacity of a very large number of international organisations helped to give this Conference its particular character and to make it par excellence an instrument for the general co-ordination of international activity in dealing with questions of transport. The International Railway Union, the International Transport Office at Berne, the International Commission for Air Navigation, the International Air Traffic Association, the International Technical Committee of Legal Experts for Air Navigation, the International River Commissions, the International Shipping Conference, the International Chamber of Commerce, the International Federation of Transport Workers, the Christian Union of Transport Workers, the International Broadcasting Union, and the High Commissariat of the League of Nations for Refugees took part in the debates in an advisory capacity. This co-operation of organisations and Governments in League conferences is perhaps one of the most interesting innovations introduced by the League in the methods of international co-operation.

The first two items of the Conference's agenda were, according to statute, the consideration of the Advisory and Technical Committee's report on the work done since the last Conference and the report of the Secretary-General of the League on the action taken to give effect to the decisions of previous Conferences.

The Conference, in the course of general and public discussions, examined by categories of questions the work done by the Committee. A detailed table of the work accomplished and of the composition of the Committee and of its various sub-committees or specialised committees had been drawn up for the Conference; the latter was naturally unable to go into all the technical details of the work undertaken by the Committee with the help of over 120 specialised experts; but the new Advisory and Technical Committee will be able to profit by many useful comments and a large number of important suggestions were made with regard to forthcoming activities.

On the Hungarian Delegation's proposal, the Advisory and Technical Committee was asked to study the best means of ensuring as far as possible, in the event of grave occurrences of a general character affecting routes of communications, the maintenance of international transit by the preconcerted utilisation of alternative routes which could temporarily replace routes through which transit had become impossible.

On the Latvian Delegation's proposal, the Committee was asked to examine the position which arose whenever considerations of an international character obstructed the freedom of communications and international transit and created a situation calculated to paralyse and impoverish economic life.

The Conference also decided to forward to the Advisory and Technical Committee for examination a declaration by the Swiss Delegation drawing attention to the necessity for organising international co-operation in the sphere of aerial navigation, where it is at present imperfect, in the most rational manner and with the assistance of the greatest possible number of States.

It is hardly necessary to emphasise the importance, sometimes even from the political and social points of view, of the questions thus raised.

The Conference lastly considered the possibility of hastening the ratification of the general conventions previously concluded, the application of which seemed to it to be of the greatest importance to the peaceful development of trade.

Another point on the agenda related to the revision of the Rules of Organisation and of the Rules of Procedure for General Conferences adopted at Barcelona in 1921. Experience seemed to have shown that, although the principles of the former Rules gave the Organisation sufficient stability combined with elasticity, and sufficient autonomy whilst safeguarding the rights of supervision of the Council and of the Assembly, and although they had thus shown their value and should be maintained, a new Statute of the Organisation was desirable which should be clear and more in conformity than the previous one with the necessities which experience had gradually revealed. The new Statute adopted by the Conference may be regarded as consolidating the Organisation. Changes of substances as compared with the former rules, are not of great importance. Mention should be made, however, of the provisions sanctioning the necessary initiative of the Council as regards invitations to general conferences and the convening of limited conferences, provisions which provide greater latitude than the former Rules; those which give greater liberty than heretofore to the Advisory and Technical Committee's procedure with regard to the settlement of disputes; those which take account of the constitution of the Advisory and Technical Committee and of the specialised organs subordinate to it, whose operation had not been so clearly defined at Barcelona; those sanctioning the holding of general conferences every four years, while allowing this provision to be modified in exceptional circumstances; and, lastly, those, perhaps among the most characteristic, which facilitate the co-operation of States not Members of the League with the Organisation or within the Organisation.

Among these latter provisions, mention should be made of one which cannot be definitely put into force without the Assembly's approval. The text of the Assembly's resolution of 9th December 1920 stipulates that "the total number of members of the Committee shall not exceed one-third of the Members of the League of Nations." Since States not Members of the League may be members of the Organisation, and as such may be called upon to form part of the Advisory and Technical Committee, the Conference considered that, in the event of a certain number of States not Members of the League happening to form part of the Organisation, i.e., in the very case in which the Organisation would have the greatest vitality and importance for the world as a whole, the maintenance of this provision might make it difficult to appoint to the Committee the best qualified States which were members of the Organisation but not Members of the League, the number of places held by the Members of the League having in these cases to be correspondingly diminished. Moreover, from the financial point of view, the voting of the budget by the Assembly sufficiently restricts the Committee's expenditure, and it should be observed that, since the first ordinary session of the Assembly, the rules governing the administration of the League's finances have decided that States not Members of the League admitted as members of any Organisation of the League should contribute to the expenses of the Organisation concerned, unless there is any stipulation to the contrary. In these circumstances, subject to the Assembly's approval, the Conference adopted the following provisions:—

"The Advisory and Technical Committee shall be composed of members appointed by Members of the League of Nations, and may also include members appointed by members of the Organisation which are not Members of the League.

"The number of members of the former class may not exceed one-third of the number of the Members of the League. The number of members of the latter class may not exceed one-third of the number of the members of the Organisation which are not Members of the League. If, however, the number of members of the Organisation which are not Members of the League is less than three (or six) one member (or two, as the case may be) of this class may be appointed."

' It seems likely that, for the same reasons as the Third General Conference, the Assembly will desire to give its approval to these provisions, and in general to facilitate the co-operation of States not Members of the League so happily inaugurated at the Third Conference itself.

One of the questions which aroused the greatest interest at the Conference, notably on the part of the States not Members of the League, and one for the discussion of which the Government of the United States of America had specially sent an important delegation comprising specialist experts, was the question of the collection and exchange of information on communications and transit. The placing of this question on the Conference's agenda by the Advisory and Technical Committee was due to two reasons.

The report submitted to the seventh ordinary session of the Assembly by the Second Committee contained the following observations:—

"The Advisory and Technical Committee has hitherto restricted its activity mainly to Europe, where, as we have said, the situation consequent upon the war had given these services exceptional importance. I would like to point out, however, that, in the interests of the League of Nations and of the Latin-American States, it would be most desirable that its work should extend to these countries. For this purpose, information would first have to be collected on both sides in order that, on the one hand, the Advisory and Technical Committee might become familiar with the situation and conditions of the Latin-American countries as regards transit and communications, and that, on the other hand, the Governments and public opinion in these countries might be acquainted with the aim and work of the Committee, the results obtained and the ways in which the Committee could on occasion do them important service. In order to attain this result, the Committee must get into touch with the Governmental and administrative bodies responsible for communications in each of these countries and supply them with all necessary information on the work it has already done, at the same time asking them for details regarding the situation of communications in each country."

The resolution adopted by the last Assembly and generalising these observations declared that the Assembly—

"Trusts that the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit, which will be held in 1927 and which will examine in particular the general questions of organisation and documentation, will consider the question of improving, as far as possible, technical liaison between the work of the Organisation for Communications and Transit and the specialised administrations and experts of non-European countries."

Apart from the utility of collecting and exchanging information on communications and transit with a view to a better liaison between the Communications and Transit Organisation and specialised circles in countries outside Europe, the Advisory and Technical Committee had also felt the absolute necessity of acquiring continuous and essential information on the position as regards communications throughout the world. Certain misunderstandings having had to be dispelled at the Conference, where the fear had been expressed that it might be proposed to create a large special and independent organisation for the accumulation and distribution of information, leading the Committee to break entirely new ground, the latter stated its intentions as follows in a note submitted to the Conference:—

"When it was first established, the Communications and Transit Organisation concerned itself chiefly with the most urgent task—that of establishing principles. Is that its only task? Is it at the present time its essential task? Responsible as it is for advising the organs of the League and the Governments as to the measures to be taken to secure freedom of communications and to promote international co-operation in the matter of transport, can the Organisation continue its work efficiently if it has not constantly at its disposal the most elementary and indispensable information as to the state of international relations in the field of transport and the general development of the various forms of transport in different countries?

The Committee has felt that it could not remain uninformed as to large fluctuations in traffic, depressions, crisis and advances, important international arrangements concerned with transport, the opening of important new routes, the development of new ports, extensive changes in the general organisation of transport in different countries, and so forth. This does not mean that the Committee proposes to undertake any new work, or in any way to extend its international activities; it merely wishes to provide itself with the necessary machinery for its normal and regular work.

As far as funds have permitted, following out individual ideas and dealing with problems as they arise, the Committee has already in the past collected information on certain points; but this information has been found inadequate to enable the Committee to keep in touch with the most real and practical problems of transport.

The Committee has therefore concluded that it is essential to organise systematically what has hitherto been done on purely temporary, fragmentary and inadequate lines. It has attempted to deal in the most economical manner with a need that has been felt by all international organisations of a like kind.

The work that the Communications and Transit Committee has in mind is by no means as considerable as the informatory work that has been done to meet the requirements of the Economic and Financial Organisation; but the Committee feels that it is an anomaly that the League should have, in the general interest, copious and up-to-date information on every aspect of economic life except that which is perhaps the most international and representative of all transport."

After discussion, the Conference adopted the following resolution with the unanimous approval of the Governments taking part and with the support of all the international organisations represented:—

" The Conference has fully examined the question referred to it of providing further information for the Communications and Transit Organisation. They note that, in the supplementary statement submitted by the Advisory and Technical Committee, that body expresses a doubt whether the Organisation can ' continue its work efficiently if it has not constantly at its disposal the most elementary and indispensable information as to the state of international relations in the field of transport and the general development of the various forms of transport in different countries '; and the Committee adds that it does not propose ' to undertake any new work or in any way to extend its international activities; it merely wishes to provide itself with the necessary machinery for its normal and regular work.' The Conference notes also that the Advisory and Technical Committee thought that the collection and utilisation of such information would facilitate collaboration between the Organisation and experts and administrations in the various countries, particularly as far as non-European countries are concerned.

The Conference is therefore of opinion:—

" (1) That, while the establishment of any special bureau of information is neither called for nor recommended, the Organisation should be enabled to furnish itself adequately with such information as may be necessary to enable it to perform effectively its important and extensive functions, it being understood that information so obtained would, on request, be put at the disposal of Governments and interested organisations;

(2) That, to this end, the Governments and interested organisations in the various countries should be invited to furnish the Organisation regularly with such information of a general character on questions of communication as may be deemed suitable for the purpose, it being understood that only material of a non-confidential nature should be asked for, and that no additional work should be required for the Governments and organisations;

(3) That the information should be limited as far as possible to questions within the province of the Organisation, but that the collection of information upon any particular question should in no way be regarded as bringing that particular question within the competence of the Organisation nor as implying any intention of dealing with the question on the part of the Organisation.

The Conference does not feel called upon to recommend in detail the information which should be collected, or to prescribe any detailed scheme for the utilisation of this information. Such questions should be determined by the experience gained by the Advisory and Technical Committee as to the value of different courses of action, and to some extent by the nature of the question with which at any time the Transit Organisation is dealing.

In dealing with this matter, the Conference has given attention to the resolution of the Assembly of 1926 that the General Conference should ' consider the question of improving as far as possible the technical liaison between the work of the Organisation for Communications and Transit and the specialised administrations and experts of the non-European countries.'

It is confident that, in the collection and utilisation of such information, the Communications Transit Committee will promote closer relations between the Organisation and the experts and administrations—for example, by provision for correspondents in cases where such a method may be considered the most appropriate in agreement with the Governments concerned.

It trusts therefore that the next Assembly of the League will put at the disposal of the Transit Organisation the necessary means."*

The Assembly will certainly congratulate itself on the co-operation in a new form, or in a more complete form than hitherto, which all the Governments have promised through their representatives to bring to the work of the Organisation for Communications and Transit. It will no doubt desire to associate itself completely with the Conference's views and to invite the Advisory and Technical Committee to organise on the lines laid down by the Conference the collection and utilisation of information. Nevertheless, it will not be possible, for financial reasons, to carry out immediately the scheme advocated for this purpose by the Conference; it is agreed, however, that, pending the adoption of the next budget, all possible measures shall be taken in order to get into touch with the different countries with a view to pursuing the preparation of this work. The Conference's debates have already shown how this may be expected to bring about closer relations between the Organisation and the experts or administrations of the different countries, particularly of the non-European countries. The Conference, without wishing to diminish the Advisory and Technical Committee's freedom in the choice and utilisation of information, nevertheless, with the assistance of experts from a large number of countries, drew up for the examination of the Advisory and Technical Committee a list of suggestions regarding the nature of the information which might be collected. In general, this information, which has been defined with the greatest possible clearness, bears on international agreement of a public character relating to transport, the administrative and legislative treatment of transport in the different countries, the main constructions in progress or completed, the general statistics of traffic, and the main changes in freights and tariff systems. It is worth noting that, in the course of this discussion, the American Delegation, after congratulating the Conference on the resolutions it had adopted on the collection and utilisation of information, indicated how a profitable exchange of information and experience might be established in the sphere of transports between America and Europe. It declares its conviction that " the matter of reciprocity in records of experience was a very vital one," and added that " the entire American Delegation was going home to recommend and urge with all the power and influence that it possessed that the United States from now on be represented at these commercial conferences of the League of Nations, and also by all means be equally represented at other commercial conferences."

*An estimate of these means, as communicated to the Conference by the Advisory and Technical Committee, is attached to the Conference's resolution in the form of a note.

The aim set before itself by the last Assembly may be regarded as achieved. The Third General Conference on Communications and Transit marked a great step forward in the mutual comprehension of national problems between countries and continents. It revealed, even on the part of those who had not been continuously associated with the Communications and Transit Organisation, a full appreciation of the importance of this work.

Finally it was in the same spirit of conciliation and international agreement that the Conference solved the special question submitted to it as a result of the Conference on the International Regime of passports– that of identity documents capable of serving as internationally recognised travelling certificates for persons without nationality. After debates which were sometimes of a delicate character, agreement was reached on the drafting of concrete recommendations, setting forth all the particulars of a new uniform document. If the greatest possible number of Governments concerned apply the Conference's recommendations rapidly and in a liberal spirit, the difficulties from which a great number of persons are at present suffering in Europe will be removed.

I have the honour to propose the adoption of the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 126.)

ANNEXURE X. Report of the Second Committee on the Work of the Financial Committee. (Rapporteur: M. Djouritch, Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes.)

As Rapporteur on the work of the Financial Committee, I will take this opportunity of giving a rapid review of the activities of this Committee since its inception.

The Financial Committee, which counts among the most highly qualified and active committees of the League of Nations, was originally created to perform a very modest task. In this connection the history of the Committee is of great interest.

The Financial Committee was formed subsequent to the Brussels International Financial Conference in 1920 with the main object of facilitating the employment of the ter Meulen credits; the original ter Meulen scheme approved by the Brussels Conference was never put into practice. However, once started, the Financial Committee proved to be a peculiarly competent body; new tasks were assigned to it each year and its activity has continually extended since that time.

The most obvious manifestation of the Financial Committee's activities is the series of loans to different countries issued, as the result of its labours under the auspices of the League of Nations to Austria, Hungary, Greece, the Municipality of Danzig, Bulgaria, Estonia and, quite recently, the Free City of Danzig. The total of these loans amounts in round figures to seventy million pounds sterling, or approximately one milliard seven hundred million gold francs.

All these loans were issued without the least difficulty. The investing public has confidence in the loans issued under the auspices of the League of Nations because it knows that they are based on plans carefully studied by the impartial and highly qualified experts who form the Financial Committee. Furthermore, it is well known that this Committee follows systematically and assiduously financial conditions in the countries with which it is concerned.

In consequence, all the loans issued under the auspices of the League of Nations have benefited from a lower rate than if they had been contracted by the respective Governments without such patronage. But the value of the Financial Committee's work is not confined to the facility of contracting these loans. The plans of the League of National, and consequently those of the Financial Committee, are primarily directed to laying sound foundations on which the countries concerned can build the best economic structure permitted by circumstances. The loans hitherto issued have been a means of effecting the reconstruction of the financial position which was compromised in many countries in 1920 and the following years, during which the Financial Committee displayed its greatest activity. Before commencing this reconstruction, it was first essential to stabilise the currency and to effect budget equilibrium in these countries. In both these directions the Financial Committee furnished classic examples, which were later followed by numerous countries when they had recourse in their turn to the advice of the League of Nations and of the Financial Committee, and also by countries which undertook their financial reconstruction independently.

With regard to stabilisation of currency, the classic example is that of the Austrian crown, followed by Hungary, Germany and Poland, to name only those countries in which the depreciation assumed an extremely grave character.

In 1920, at the time of the Brussels Financial Conference, the general conviction was that, before stabilising the currency, it was necessary to balance the budget. This belief is not perhaps erroneous to-day, but the concrete examples quoted above reveal the fundamental necessity of having a general scheme providing a complete and simultaneous system for the stabilisation of the currency and the balancing of the budget. The Austrian example further emphasises that, in a country with a greatly depreciated currency, it is impossible to obtain budget equilibrium as long as the value of the currency continues to fluctuate, and, in consequence, impossible also to lay the foundations of an effective reform of the budget system.

Consequently, it was necessary to stabilise first, and then to aim at a system of budget equilibrium which, becoming practicable in virtue of the stabilisation, in its turn made the latter permanent.

The corner-stone of currency stabilisation in all the countries which have benefited by the work of the Financial Committee was the creation of banks of issue independent of the Government. Independent banks of this kind were founded in Austria, Hungary, Danzig, and Estonia; in Bulgaria, Government influence over the National Bank was materially diminished, while, in the case of Greece, the Financial Committee has drawn up a set of statutes for a new bank of issue that may be regarded as a model of their kind.

The Financial Committee, side by side with its proposal for establishing these independent banks of issue, was responsible for a reform that has given the happiest results—the centralisation of the State revenues in the banks of issue. This reform was effected in Austria and in Hungary and, having led to the most satisfactory results, has been incorporated in detail in the new scheme for the reconstruction of Greek finances.

The second essential step in financial reconstruction is that of securing budget equilibrium. In this direction, the Financial Committee performed work of special importance in all the countries under study. The results obtained were extremely satisfactory. The Financial Committee is concerned not only to reduce expenses by advising reasonable and suitable economies, but also to propose reforms of a nature to increase receipts. When the currency has been stabilised, the effect of these measures is to afford the Treasury a sound basis for assessing taxation, since the calculations are based on stable revenue figures.

The Financial Committee also insisted upon effective control being exercised by the Finance Ministry over the other Ministerial Departments, an essential condition of budgetary equilibrium. One of the most suitable methods of exercising this control is the system of monthly budgets and monthly closed accounts. This system was applied for the first time in Austria on the initiative of the Commissioner-General, M. Zimmerman. It was subsequently applied in Hungary and Bulgaria, and is, it appears, followed at the present time in Poland and other countries.

Great importance was also attached to the regular publication of reports on the financial situation of the States in question. It is only by the publication of such information that public opinion both at home and abroad is able to follow and verify the management of the country's finances, and a large number of Governments now publish monthly or quarterly reports on their financial situation.

The application of the Committee's methods to financial reform had been so successful from a practical standpoint that their main outlines were followed in the most important plans for financial reconstruction in Europe, their general features being reproduced to a large extent in the principles laid down for the financial reconstruction of Germany.

When plans of this kind are prepared by the Financial Committee and put into operation, their application is followed methodically and carefully by the Committee, and as in all its other work, the Committee is careful to see that the essential part of the scheme, in this case, budgetary equilibrium, continues to be observed.

Let us now consider the work of the Financial Committee since the last Assembly. During the latter half of 1926 the Committee devoted itself specially to execution of the scheme for the settlement of Bulgarian refugees, of which the British representative has given a detailed report. There is therefore no need for me to revert to the matter, nor to give a further description of the remarkable work recently accomplished with a view to the financial reconstruction of Greece, of which the Italian representative has already spoken on this platform.

In 1927, the sessions of the Financial Committee provided two very characteristic examples worthy of special mention, for they constitute a fresh assertion of certain principles already applied in practice by the Committee. I refer, first of all, to the investigations and decisions relative to the financial situation in Danzig. The financial situation of the Free City was unsatisfactory and, before proceeding with reconstruction, energetic measures were necessary to bring about a reduction in expenditure. Moreover, it was essential that Poland should agree to allow the Free City of Danzig a larger share in the Customs receipts of the Polish Customs system, in which the territory of Danzig is included. At the same time, the Government of Danzig wished to institute a tobacco monopoly, for which the co-operation of Poland was indispensable, and to fulfill the obligations imposed by the Treaty of Peace upon the Free City. It needed all the authority of the Financial Committee and its ingenuity in finding compromises during the negotiations to achieve the solutions which made it possible to issue a loan last June. This loan provides funds for the liquidation of the floating debt, for the payment of the sums due under the Treaty of Peace and for credits for the building of houses. The loan programme also provides for a system of supervision, which is designed in the same manner as the previous systems to furnish a guarantee for the creditors, whilst ensuring that all necessary steps should be taken for the normal financial development of the country. As in the case of the Danzig municipal loan of 1925, supervision is exercised by a trustee, resident abroad, and is confined to the revenue assigned as security for the service of the loan and to the utilisation of its proceeds for the purposes mentioned in the programme.

The second example of the Financial Committee's work is provided by the study of the banking and currency situation in Estonia, which rendered possible its reform. Although the Estonian budget had been stabilised in 1922, the financial situation of the country was unsatisfactory. The bank of issue was in a dangerous situation on account of the large number of frozen credits with which it was burdened. The Financial Committee recommended first of all the introduction of a currency law and the revision of the statutes of the bank of issue. The Protocol agreed upon with the Estonian representatives provided for the establishment of a gold exchange standard, laid down the principle that the bank should have the sole right of issuing notes, and relieved the latter of its long-term credits, which were to be transferred to a mortgage institute. A foreign loan of £1,350,000 would make it possible to liquidate the long-term credits gradually.

Besides this work of financial reconstruction restricted to certain countries only, the Committee also occupied itself with the study of certain general questions, in the first place with that of double taxation and tax evasion. In this connection it appointed a special committee composed of the high Treasury officials of different countries. This Committee worked for several years and reached its final conclusions last April. The Committee of experts drew up four draft conventions for the prevention of double taxation and to establish judicial and administrative assistance between States in matters of taxation.

On the proposal of the Financial Committee, the Council decided to submit this report to all the Governments for consideration and to summon a general meeting of experts in 1928. The Council has decided further to publish in one volume all the existing conventions relative to double taxation.

The Financial Committee dealt also with the question of counterfeiting currency. It sent a questionnaire to all the banks of issue in order to obtain their opinions. On the basis of the replies received, it forwarded a report to the Council, which decided to appoint a special committee to study the question and prepare a draft convention. This committee hopes to finish its task very shortly.

Lastly, attention must be drawn to the extremely useful work which the Financial Committee has accomplished as regards the proposal submitted by Finland for financial assistance to States victims of aggression. It is true to say that the courageous and detailed report of the Financial Committee shows a practical way of mobilising the financial resources of the States Members of the League against a State guilty of aggression, and furnishes a striking demonstration of the solidarity of the League's attitude against such a State.

Finally, I propose to the Assembly on behalf of the Second Committee the following Resolution:—

"The Assembly takes note of the activities of the Financial Committee and expresses its great satisfaction with the highly useful work accomplished by it."

ANNEXURE XI.—Report of the Second Committee on the creation of an International Relief Union. (Rapporteur: M. De Vest, Hungary.)

In accordance with the resolution adopted by the Assembly on 24th September 1925, the Council convened an International Conference for the creation of the International Relief Union. The Conference, which was attended by representatives of 43 States, sat from 4th to 12th July 1927 and approved a Convention and Statutes. The social and legal importance of these instruments should be emphasised. By putting this generous idea into effect, the League has made a further step along the path of international solidarity. If there is one moment in the life of nations when international solidarity should come into play, it is the moment when a disaster is piling up ruin, breaking the springs of the people's resistance, and casting its whole life into disorder. In such an hour of need the International Relief Union will bring to that country the succour and the brotherly aid of all the nations.

A perusal of the articles of the Convention and the Statutes reveals the care that has been taken not to dry up the springs of private charity, but to stimulate and co-ordinate them. The International Relief Union, as portrayed in the documents mentioned, appeals for co-operative not only to the Red Cross Societies, but also to all public and private organisations in a position to bring relief to stricken peoples. The Conference has revealed its wisdom in setting up a highly flexible machinery which can operate with the utmost efficiency.

The League of Nations can congratulate itself on the results achieved. The Assembly will recall the importance attached by itself and by the Council to the realisation of this scheme. The lengthy discussions that took place in the Assembly Committees in 1923, 1924 and 1925 enabled the project to be examined in every detail. A Preparatory Committee, composed of experts of various nationalities, prepared, following the trend of the Assembly discussions a draft report on which the work of the Conference was based. The Assembly will certainly wish to express to the members of the Committee its satisfaction with the results obtained, and to offer them its thanks. A special expression of gratitude is due to Senator Ciraolo, the promoter of this humane project. The Assembly will also doubtless wish to thank M. Külz, the President of the Conference, who was appointed by the Council.

There is one point to which attention may profitably be drawn. The Preparatory Committee for the Ciraolo Scheme interprets the decisions of the Assembly taken at its fifth ordinary session, in the sense that its mandate will only be terminated by the final constitution of the International Relief Union. Till that time the Committee holds itself at the Council's disposal to prepare the executive measures involved by the creation of the International Relief Union. At its meeting on 3rd September 1927, the Council decided to propose to the Assembly that the Preparatory Committee should continue to meet to prepare draft regulations for the international Relief Union and to submit to the Council any proposals that may facilitate the putting into force of the Convention. I think that the Council's proposal is a particularly wise one. Until the new organisation has been formed, the League cannot disinterest itself in the question without the risk of jeopardising the results already achieved. It must continue, with the assistance of the experts, to concern itself with the scheme. The Preparatory Committee—or if circumstances so demand, only some of its members or experts, who would be specially invited by the Council and would have the assistance of the President of the Conference—will be in a position to propose to the Council all such measures as may be expedient with a view to the early constitution of the International Relief Union. I therefore propose the adoption of the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 126.)

ANNEXURE XII.—Report of the Second Committee on the question of a Greek Loan. (Rapporteur: M. Suvich, Italy.)

On 14th June last the Greek Government forwarded to the Secretary General of the League of Nations a letter asking the Council to approve in principle the conclusion of a loan for an effective sum of nine million pounds sterling and to authorise the Financial Committee to assist Greece in the preparation of a complete plan of currency and banking reform.

In this way the original idea of this loan, which was due to the necessity for completing the work of settling the refugees, changed its character and resulted in the larger conception of a complete and organic plan of financial reorganisation.

The work of setting the refugees, which had been undertaken under the auspices of the League of Nations and had already given valuable results, could indeed only be pursued with difficulty unless a scheme of financial reconstruction was first carried out.

The Financial Committee, at its session in March 1927, requested the Secretariat to collect the fullest possible information regarding the present financial position of the Greek Republic. These investigations were conducted on the spot by M. Avenol, Deputy Secretary-General, and a number of members of the League Secretariat, with most exceptional energy and ability; the Greek Government gave effective assistance in the work by placing at the disposal of these officials all the information and data which they required. The Council having acceded to the Greek Government's request, the Financial Committee was instructed in a resolution dated 17th June 1927, to continue to co-operate with the representatives of the Greek Government and the National Bank of Greece with a view to fixing the conditions under which the League of Nations might intervene.

The negotiations were continued and led to the framing of a draft Protocol, to which are annexed a draft Agreement between the Greek Government and the National Bank of Greece and draft Statutes of the new bank of issue; these documents form a vast programme, which embraces the various problems raised by the financial reconstruction of Greece.

The plan rests on three main bases, which constitute, as it were, the pivots of the reconstruction contemplated; the constitution of an autonomous bank of issue, the achievement and maintenance of budgetary equilibrium, and the stabilisation of the currency.

Apart from these essential aims, the draft deals at the same time with the payment of budget arrears—an essential operation if stable budgetary equilibrium is to be achieved—and the completion of the work of settling the refugees, which will be one of its excellent results.

Taken as a whole, the draft has been planned with a breadth of view and an exactitude in matters of details which does honour to the wisdom of the Financial Committee and the perspicacity of all who took part in the work.

The general lines of this programme follow the classical principles of sound financial policy and are laid down in such a way as to provide the country with a solid modern organisation.

The indispensable condition of achieving the results contemplated is, indeed, the issue of a loan which will furnish the funds required to carry out the important and difficult task proposed.

This loan, for an effective sum of nine million pounds sterling, will be divided into three equal blocks of three million pounds each. One block will be set apart for the completion of the work of settling the refugees, the second to pay off budget arrears, and the third to repay the debt owned by the Greek State to the National Bank, which will be passed to the account of the new bank of issue to provide the latter with the liquid funds required for its operation.

The primary feature of the proposed reform is the establishment of a new bank of issue upon which depends the possibility of the stabilisation of the currency.

It had first of all been proposed to convert the National Bank of Greece into an institution better suited to perform the functions of a bank of issue, but, in the course of negotiations, it was decided that it was preferable for that bank to continue to undertake the various operations not usually assigned to a central bank and to establish a new bank of issue.

The bank of issue—to be known as the "Bank of Greece"—will be incorporated as a joint-stock company with a capital of four hundred million drachmas.

The draft Agreement between the Greek Government and the National Bank of Greece specifies the conditions governing the transfer of the debt represented by the bank's notes in circulation to the new bank.

This Agreement also contains an arrangement concerning the transfer to the bank of issue of certain assets and liabilities of the National Bank of Greece.

From the time the Bank of Greece is established, the National Bank will take over the whole of the shares and may subsequently offer them for sale on the financial market at carefully regulated intervals in order to avoid any depreciation in the price of the shares.

The Committee's attention should be called to Article 4 of the Statutes of the new bank of issue, which reads as follows:—

"The first duty of the bank is to take the necessary steps to ensure the stability of the gold value of its notes. For this purpose, it shall exercise control, within the limits of its Statutes, over currency and credit in Greece."

The following article defines the measures to ensure the convertibility of its notes into legal currency of foreign countries with a gold standard or into currency convertible into gold according to the laws of those countries.

As regards the cover of the notes issue by the bank, it is provided that this must represent not less than 40 per cent. of the amount of the note; this cover must consist only of gold or foreign exchange directly or indirectly convertible into gold.

The draft Agreement and Statutes contain all provisions of a detailed character required by the constitution and operation of the new bank, as well as those governing its transaction, which are limited to loans and discount operations for short periods; it is further stipulated that the bank must publish a balance-sheet three times a month, and that all the other private banks must every month submit statements of their accounts to the Greek Government.

As a corollary to the establishment of the new central bank, an important reform will be introduced into the Greek administrative system. All receipts and payments must be passed through the Bank of Greece, which may employ the branches of the National Bank of Greece for this Treasury service.

To enable the Bank of Greece to commence operations, the Greek Government, as has been stated above, will pay over to it on its opening day a sum of three millions sterling from the yield of the loan; simultaneously, a portion of the State's debt to the Bank of Grece, included in the assets transferred to that bank by the National Bank of Greece, will be cancelled.

The method of repayment by the Greek State of the balance of its debt to the National Bank, and subsequently to the Bank of Greece, is also provided for.

It will thus be possible to secure conditions in accordance with recognised principles for the efficient operation of a central bank of issue upon which heavy responsibilities rest, in particular that of guaranteeing the stability of the currency. These principles, which are enumerated by the Financial Committee, are as follows:—

(a) The independence of the bank;

(b) The sole right of note issue;

(c) The limitation of the bank's operations to loan and discount transactions of a short-term and self-liquidating character;

(d) The reduction of the State debt to the bank and the well-defined limitation of new advances to the State;

(e) The centralisation of the money transactions of the State and of State enterprises in the Bank of Greece;

(f) The provision of adequate and appropriate cover for a unified note issue.

We have already mentioned that another part of the loan, amounting to three millions sterling, will be employed for the repayment of the Treasury arrears, these arrears being repayable up to that sum out of the amount of loan, and as regards the balance, out of the resources available from the Greek State which are enumerated in an annexure to the Protocol.

The part of the loan thus employed will be paid direct to the Bank of Greece, which will release the necessary sums against documents issued by the Greek Audit office certifying that those sums actually correspond to the settlement of the above-mentioned debts.

In the draft agreement the Greek Government undertakes definite obligations concerning the maintenance of budgetary equilibrium, the publication of accounts, the limitation of the amount of its short-term loans, etc.

The proposed securities for the new loan include the surplus of the revenues already assigned to the service of previous loans and at present under the supervision of the International Financial Commission.

A clause in the draft Protocol provides that the conditions of the loan, the issue price, the rate of interest and the expenses of issue, of negotiations and of delivery shall be at least as favourable to the Greek Government as those of the Refugee Loan of 1924. A person appointed by the Financial Committee shall be responsible for seeing that the contracts for the conclusion of the loan are in accordance with the provisions of the Protocol.

A few words must be added regarding the work of refugee settlement, for which the third part of the loan will be employed.

The quarterly reports of the Refugee Settlement Commission give an accurate and detailed survey of the development and progress of this work. In particular, the fourteenth report, that of last June, contains some very interesting information. There is every reason to be gratified with the results obtained, thanks to the activity of all those who have taken part in this task of the highest moral, social and humanitarian value. When it is considered what has been done and what remains to be done, one conclusion becomes evident: it is impossible to interrup such a work.

The Financial Committee is of opinion that the sum of three million pounds sterling, added to the previous balance, will suffice to meet the cost of the most urgent settlement work which it is important to complete in the next two years.

The general plan for financial reconstruction and refugee settlement—of which I have in this report been able to give only a summary account, but which can be seen in all its details in the documents to which I have referred—contains all the elements and provides every prospect of a successful result.

Greece, who in recent years has undergone a very remarkable economic development, has every interest in adapting her financial institutions to present conditions by means of appropriate reforms. It is in order to achieve this purpose that the Greek Government has applied to the League of Nations, not only for its support in contracting the loan, but for its advice in working out a complete plan of banking and currency reorganisation.

The League of Nations has been able to place at the disposal of Greece the weight of its experience and all the ability of its technical services.

Thanks to the perfect organisation of these services, to the skill of the experts which they include, and to the experience which it has already acquired, the League is in a position to furnish very powerful support to the States which appeal to it.

In the case of Greece—since we are more than confident, we are certain of success—one cannot speak of an experiment, but rather of a realisation, and in any event of a fact of the higest importance and of the greatest interest.

I have therefore the honour to propose to the Committee for submission to the Assembly the following draft Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 125.)

ANNEXURE XIII.—Report of the Second Committee on Work of the International Economic Conference and on the Economic Organisation of the League of Nations.
(Rapporteur: M. Loucheur, France.)

Two years have already passed since the Second Committee's Rapporteur on economic questions asked the Assembly to adopt a proposal by the French Delegation asking for the constitution of the Preparatory Committee for the Economic Conference. Your unanimous approval of this suggestion was of good augury. In a few words you gave a general definition of the problem: you outlined the results which you hoped to achieve as regards the improvement of economic relations and the peace of the world.

It was in relation to the problem of security that, for the first time, our colleague, M. Jouhaux, reminded the League of Nations of its duty to restore peace in the economic relations of the peoples. When a more definite proposal was subsequently brought before the Assembly at its sixth ordinary session by the author of the present report, the delegates of all the nations assembled here immediately understood that, in a world still shaken by the Great War, weakened by numerous financial crises, and suffering from serious economic disturbance in the agricultural as well as in the industrial and commercial spheres, the League of Nations alone had the necessary authority to consider the various problems at issue as a whole, to define their causes and to recommend suitable remedies.

In conformity with your suggestions, the Council proceeded to a consultation on a wide basis; it had recourse to interests of all kinds, to various international bodies like the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, and the International Chamber of Commerce and to the national professional organisations; and it called upon the Secretariat of the League of Nations and the International Labour Office for a prolonged effort.

The result of these two years' work has been submitted to the Second Committee. M. Theunis, with that lucidity of exposition, that force and that conciseness of thought which we all know, has given it an historical retrospect of the Preparatory Committee and of the Conference itself; he has emphasised the value of the recommendations which it drew up.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance which should be attached to these recommendations. They have the twofold characteristic of undoubtedly representing the opinion of the best-qualified circles and of giving the League of Nations a unanimous opinion with all the authority of such an impressive combination of experts.

During the whole period of the Preparatory Committee's work, the members of the Committee themselves, assisted by the Secretariat and the International Labour Office, collected a series of documents, as complete as it was scientific, on all the problems to be dealt with. The Conference next impressed public opinion by the competence of the delegations composing it. Every country had sent to Geneva, in the capacity of delegates or experts, their most qualified industrial, commercial and agricultural representatives and their most tried authorities on labour, consumption, co-operation and economic relations in general.

It is unnecessary to expatiate longer on this subject; the value of the unanimity achieved was immediately appreciated throughout the world by all bodies interested in economic questions, and here at Geneva by the Council of the League of Nations. The Conference's recommendations were, indeed, at once submitted to the Council with a very favourable report by M. Stresemann. At its session last June its members made official declarations indicative of that determination—which is happily becoming general among nations—to organise economic peace as an essential condition of a peaceful and prosperous existence for all countries, whether strong or weak.

The Second Committee has just made a decisive step in this direction. It, too, has endorsed the Conference's proposals. To this unanimous opinion of the experts who met at Geneva in May, you are going to bring the powerful aid—the fruitful promise—of the support of your Governments. The resolutions which we have the honour to propose to the Assembly, confirm the general will to work for the execution of the programme submitted to you by the Economic Conference. Its President, in his closing speech, quoted a characteristic sentence of the Commerce Committee:—

"In spite of the variety of the questions raised, the diversity of theories, and the legitimate national sentiments of all those who took part in the discussions, one important and extremely encouraging fact has emerged and, having emerged, has become increasingly manifest as the work has advanced. This fact is the unanimous desire of the members of the Conference to make sure that this Conference shall, in some way, mark the beginning of a new era, during which international commerce will successively overcome all obstacles in its path that unduly hamper it and resume that general upward movement which is at once a sign of the world's economic health and the necessary condition for the development of civilisation."

This unanimous desire of the Conference has in its turn animated the Second Committee and will assuredly animate the Assembly also.

You have, moreover, to give your opinion as to the method of organising the work which has still to be done. In this, too, you will follow the suggestions of the Economic Conference, which considered that the Economic Organisation of the League of Nations should be so adjusted as to perform with success the delicate and complicated work entrusted to it.

As regards the details of this readjustment, opinions differed, but unanimity was reached on the following points: necessity of reorganisation; appreciation of the work done by the Economic Committee; excellent results achieved in the preparation of the Conference thanks to the composition and balance of the Preparatory Committee.

It is from an examination of the Conference's results and of its main conclusions that we have drawn the main ideas which the Assembly will submit to the Council.

These resolutions refer to the three chief categories of economic activity—commerce, industry and agriculture. In perusing them, we find considerations suggested which must lead us to give effect to the Conference's wishes.

It seemed to us necessary in the first place to retain the Economic Committee with its present competence, while adapting it to the new conditions of economic life. The resolution which we submit to the Assembly gives all the necessary particulars in this respect.

The Conference, knowing the value of the results already obtained by the Economic Committee, expressly mentioned that Committee in its resolutions, thus proving the implicit confidence it felt in its work.

But the Conference also affirmed the necessity of the League of Nations and its Economic Organisation consulting, "so far as necessary, the competent bodies representing commerce, industry, agriculture and labour." In chapters full of promise for the future, it repeatedly emphasises the wide range of expert advice on which the Council should be able to draw; it should be able to obtain such advice at any moment from the Economic Organisation which it set up to assist in one of its most valuable tasks—that of promoting economic peace.

This need for forming a group of economic authorities was emphasised in the recommendations of the Conference relating to industrial problems; the chapter on rationalisation, for instance, recommended that efforts should be made to obtain increased production, a higher output and improvement in the conditions of labour, and a reduction in prices "in industry, agriculture, trade and finance institutions, not merely in large undertakings but also in medium and small."

The same reasoning applies to international industrial agreements, the development of which, in the opinion of the Conference, should be followed closely by the League of Nations, which should collect information on the matter and publish it from time to time. It also holds good for industrial information. All the members of the Assembly are aware of the valuable resolutions adopted by the Conference on this subject. They know that these resolutions will call for daily and uninterrupted work, for which the Conference has already drawn up a detailed programme, special mention being made of the information to be obtained both from the Economic Organisation of the League of Nations and from the International Labour Office, the former being requested to draw up reports, studies and statements which will require the highest qualifications on the part of its members.

It is hardly necessary to remind you that the resolutions relating to agriculture show a great desire for permanent collaboration with the representatives of agriculturists. The work of agricultural co-operative societies, the development of credit, and various other problems engaged the special attention of the Conference. In this respect it laid definite tasks on the League of Nations. It drew up a programme for the League which cannot be successfully carried out unless agricultural interests are represented as widely as possible in the Economic Organisation of the League of Nations. It is the unanimous recommendation of the Second Committee that the Council should give very special attention to this important question of the representation of agriculture.

The opinion of the Conference, based not only on the experience of each delegation but also on the results obtained by the Preparatory Committee and by itself, was, generally speaking, that economic problems as a whole could only be examined successfully in their general environment, and considered in their relation to one another, whether they were in their essence industrial, commercial or agricultural.

Confidence in the Economic Committee of the League of Nations, a considerable extension of the problems which have been studied until now, complexity of the task to be undertaken, necessity of close collaboration between all those who have to carry it out—such are the conclusions which emerge from the work of the Economic Conference.

In view of these considerations, we propose to the Assembly the creation of a new organ comprising competent authorities on industry, commerce, agriculture, finance, transport, labour problems and questions relating to consumption. This consultative committee would send its report direct to the Council, and, in order to ensure the necessary liaison, would communicate them immediately to the technical organisations concerned. It would meet on the request of the Council whenever necessary, and at least once a year.

We thought that the International Labour Office should be asked to nominate three workers as members of this Committee. We also expressed the hope that the International Institute of Agriculture and the International Chamber of Commerce would be asked to give their assistance.

Finally without venturing to make any definite recommendations to the Council, we suggest that it would perhaps be well if the Advisory Committee could ask other organisations to join in its work, such as the new International Management Institute and the International Co-operative Alliance.

Some of you may perhaps be inclined to think that this organisation is somewhat complicated, but the proposals which I have the honour to submit to the Assembly in the name of the Second Committee are the results of an exhaustive discussion in which account has been taken of every side of the problem and of all the interests concerned. We have been guided solely by the desire to provide the League of Nations with the means of pursuing its essential task: the establishment of peace through better international economic co-operation.

The Second Committee has the honour to submit to the Assembly the following draft Resolutions. (For text of Resolutions adopted see page 116.)

ANNEXURE XIV.—Report of the Second Committee on the Opening of a Convention relating to the execution of Foreign Arbitral Awards. (Rapporteur: Dr. Leitmaier, Austria.)

In its report of last April to the Economic Committee, the Committee of Legal Experts explained the purpose of its work as follows:—

"The Protocol on Arbitration Clauses, which has been open for signature since 24th September, 1923, lays down, subject to certain specified conditions, that each of the contracting States shall recognise submissions to arbitration concluded between parties, subject respectively to the jurisdiction of different contracting States. It stipulates, in the first place, that the existence of a submission to arbitration precludes recourse to the Courts of either of the contracting States, and, in the second place, that each contracting State undertakes to ensure the execution by its authorities and in accordance with the provisions of its national laws of awards made in its own territory under such a submission.

"On the other hand, the Protocol of 1923 contains no provisions at all regarding the enforcement of awards made in foreign countries.

"This omission was noted in the report submitted by the Economic Committee to the Council of the League of Nations in September, 1926.

"After having (1) recognised the validity of the submission to arbitration in private international relations, and (2) provided for the enforcement of the arbitral award in the State where it was made, a third aim should be pursued, namely, to ensure the international effect of such an award."

Such is the problem which the experts have endeavoured to solve by means of a draft Protocol which has been submitted, in accordance with a Council resolution, to all the Members of the League in order to give them an opportunity of submitting their observations.

At the time when it passed this resolution, the Council also decided to place on the Assembly's agenda the question of opening such a Protocol.

On this question being referred to it, the Second Committee appointed a Sub-Committee of Jurists and asked it to examine the observations submitted by the Governments and to settle the terms of a draft which would, as far as possible, take into account the various views expressed. This Sub-Committee, as well as the Second Committee, unanimously arrived at the conclusion that you should be recommended to open a Convention worded according to the text which is now before you.

Before explaining to you its mechanism and the reasons underlying its provisions, I should like to say a few words as to the importance which should be attached to the question. Recourse to arbitration for settling disputes arising out of contracts concluded between parties of different nationalities is becoming more and more frequent. This fact did not escape the International Economic Conference. The latter, as you are aware, unanimously adopted very specific recommendations on this point.*

In taking the course which I propose, the Assembly will therefore only be continuing the work begun four years ago, whilst at the same time it will be carrying out the wish so clearly expressed by the Economic Conference.

I now come to what I may call the technical part of my report.

The Committee of Experts gave its draft the form of a Protocol open to the signature of States; this was the form already employed for the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses which was opened for signature at Geneva on 24th September, 1923.

The British Government pointed out that, in the form in which it stood, this draft might give rise to difficulties due to the peculiar constitution of the British Empire. It recommended the form of a convention enumerating in its preamble the heads of States participating therein and their plenipotentiaries. The Second Committee have adopted this suggestion.

The Convention will remain open for the signature of countries. They may give this signature at any time they choose.

At the request of the British Delegation, and in consideration of the fact that the system laid down in the Convention would not always apply to all the territories of a given State, the Second Committee has had to modify the terms employed in various clauses of the draft. Thus, in the new draft, reference is made to the territories to which the Convention applies, to the country in which the award is made, etc., these expressions are sufficiently elastic to cover the complex situations which may arise in the British Empire, in federal States, etc.

As regards the contents of the draft, the Second Committee had to consider the very important observations of the Netherlands Government that the Committee's draft differed materially from that adopted by the Conference on International Private Law held at The Hague in 1925. The scheme of The Hague, making it a condition that the arbitral award should have, in the country in which it was made, the same effect as a judgment, provides for it the same means of enforcement abroad as in the case of a judgment. By this system, the power over the award of the judge of the country where it is sought to enforce the award is reduced to a minimum. The draft of the Committee of Experts takes no account of whether the arbitral award has or has not the same force as a judgment in the country in which it was made; it regards the arbitral award itself as founded upon the submission to arbitration, which is a private agreement; hence it is led to admit a much wider power of control on the part of the Courts of the country in which the award is sought to be enforced. This divergence between the systems by no means implied a criticism of The Hague draft by the Committee of Experts. It is explained by the fact that the circumstances considered are different. The Hague draft begins by dealing with the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments; this starting-point greatly facilitates the recognition and enforcement abroad of arbitral awards when they have the same force in the country in which they were made as judicial decisions. The Committee's draft must, on the other hand, be made to apply even between countries which grant each other no special facilities for the enforcement of their respective judgments.

It should be added that The Hague scheme is intended to serve as a model for bilateral treaties, whilst the present draft is intended for a collective agreement; and in a convention of this latter sort every possible precaution must be taken. This collective agreement, moreover, does not preclude the conclusion of bilateral treaties.

* Resolutions of the Committee of Commerce:—(1) Liberty of Trade; (3) Legal provisions or regulations relating to international trade.

The fact remains that The Hague scheme tends to make the enforcement of arbitral awards easier than the present draft. The utility of the latter, one may almost say the necessity for it, is not affected on that account. It is an acknowledged fact, to which the Committee of Experts drew attention in its report, that the 1923 Protocol, for want of providing for the enforcement of arbitral awards abroad, sometimes leads to a denial of justice. This is an omission which must be supplied.

The Second Committee's study of the observations of the Netherlands Government confirmed it in the belief, expressed by the Committee of Experts, that only the recognition and enforcement of arbitral awards given in virtue of a submission to arbitration, covered by the 1923 Protocol should be dealt with. It therefore did not adopt the Swedish Government's suggestion that the proposed agreement should be open to States which had not signed and ratified the 1923 Protocol. In its opinion, the proposed Convention should be regarded as complementary to the 1923 Protocol.

The preamble of Article 1 defines the arbitral awards to which the Convention will be applicable. According to this text is necessary—

(1) that the award should have been made in pursuance of a submission to arbitration covered by the 1923 Protocol;

(2) that it should have been made in a territory of one of the contracting parties to which the new Convention applies;

(3) that it should have been made between persons subject to the jurisdiction of a State or Member of the League of Nations which is a party to the new Convention.

In compliance with a request of the Danish Government, which pointed out that in certain countries the procedure was not completely governed by a "law," the Committee substituted in this preamble and in various provisions the words "in conformity with the law governing the arbitration procedure" for the words "in accordance with the law."

The Second Committee has thought it advisable to maintain the provision (Article 1, litera a) to the effect that the award must have been made "in pursuance of a submission to arbitration which is valid under the law applicable thereto." The German Government proposed a clause specifying what this law was. The Second Committee realised the importance of such a definition for the Court which was asked to enforce a foreign arbitral award. But it considered that no definition could be given in a simple formula and that it involved the most intricate problems of private international law. The exact determination of the law applicable to the submission to arbitration would rather be a matter for the Hague Conference on Private International Law than for this Committee. The latter therefore refrained from making any definition, so that the Court in each particular case will have to discover what this law is by applying the rules regarding the conflict of laws.

The Second Committee, on the other hand, added to the clause requiring that the award should have become final in the country in which it was made (Article 1, litera d). The Italian Government observed that it would be necessary to define the meaning of these words. The difficulty of doing so was due to the diversity of the laws regarding the means of redress. A general phrase based on the distinction between ordinary and extraordinary means of redress did not seem to take sufficient account of this diversity. The draft explains the final character of an award by saying that the award has not this character if it is open to "opposition," "appel" or "pourvoi en cassation." But as this formula is not suitable to awards made in countries which do not possess these means of redress with relation to arbitral awards, it was necessary to add, as regards all awards, that they would not be considered as final if any proceedings for the purpose of contesting the validity of the award, e.g., an action for annulment, were pending.

Naturally the term "pourvoi en cassation" employed in the provision in question will include "le recours en revision" which obtains in certain of such systems of law.

The Second Committee held that, from the particular point of view from which it was dealing with the question, what must be considered was the final character of the award, and not its executory character in the country in which it was made. On this point it did not adopt the opposite view put forward in particular by the Estonian Government. The reasons which led the Committee of Experts not to require that the award should be executory in the country where it was made appeared to the Committee to be conclusive.

The Second Committee carefully examined the case in which an award does not cover all the matters submitted to the arbitrator. It may happen in such a case that the award deals with the claim of one party without deciding on the counter-claim of the other party, and, is so, it would appear desirable that such an award, so long as it remains "partial," should not be enforced abroad, because the decision on the counter-claim may cancel the effect of the first decision. Again, the award may give a decision on a part only of the claim, because the arbitrator finds this part to be proved, whilst another part of the claim may be reserved on the ground that it calls for fuller consideration. In such a case it would appear desirable, inasmuch as this "partial" award has full validity per se, that it should be enforced immediately.

The Committee considered that a satisfactory solution would be to give the authority of the country in which the enforcement is sought the option of postponing recognition or enforcement, or of granting it subject to a guarantee. This authority may, of course, order a "partial" award to be enforced or not at its discretion. Further, if the submission to arbitration authorise the arbitral tribunal to make a partial award where this is in conformity with the law applicable to arbitration procedure, the enforcement of the award may naturally not be refused on the ground that it is "partial." Moreover, it appeared unnecessary to introduce a clause to cover the case in which the losing party has already satisfied the award and would be discharged therefrom—for example, by payment.

By the provision in the preamble to Article 2 of the draft Convention that "recognition and enforcement of the award shall be refused" in the cases covered by that article, all that is meant is that in such cases the authorities of the country where it is sought to enforce the award are not bound to secure recognition and enforcement. Under the terms of this text, recognition and enforcement are admissible even in these cases, if such recognition and enforcement are allowable under the law or treaties of the country concerned (Article 5).

Certain modifications have been made in the drafting of Article 3 for the sake of greater precision and to take account of the new provisions in Article I (lit. d). The Committee did not accept the British proposal to authorise the tribunal to grant a party time to "have the award remitted to the arbitrator." In the first place, it is unnecessary to indicate in the Convention the remedy open to the party, and, secondly, the remedy proposed is not to be found in the law of all countries.

With regard to the documents which have to be supplied, the Committee indicated by an addition to the preamble to Article 4 that the article in question was descriptive in character, and not exhaustive. It accepted a proposal by the German Delegation to the effect that a translation of these documents may be demanded. Naturally, this requirement may be omitted by special agreements between Governments.

The Committee, however, rejected another proposal by the German Government for the production of an official document certifying that the award had become final. The Committee, whilst recognising the importance of this suggestion, shared the opinion of the Committee of Experts that a stipulation of this kind could not be inserted in a collective Convention.

The Swiss Delegation suggested that the Convention should apply only to arbitral awards made after this Convention had come into force. Conflicting opinions were expressed on this point, and a middle course was adopted. This Convention will only apply to awards made after the coming into force of the 1923 Protocol. As the date of this entry into force will be different for different countries, account will have to be taken in each case of the date of the entry into force for the country concerned.

The "protocol" clauses (Articles 7 et seq.) have been slightly modified, partly on account of the difference of form between a convention and a protocol, and partly to take account of the observations of the British Delegation regarding drafting formulas which are appropriate to the organisation of the British Empire.

At the request of the British Delegation, it was also recognised that the Convention should not apply to the colonies, protectorates or territories under suzerainty or mandate of any of the High Contracting Parties unless they were specially mentioned, but it could be rendered applicable to them by a declaration to that effect (Article 10).

Having given the above explanations, I have the honour, for the reasons already given at the beginning of my report, to propose the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 123.)

Convention on the execution of Foreign Arbitral Awards.

signatories of the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses, opened at Geneva on 24th September 1923; having resolved to conclude a Convention with the object of supplementing the said Protocol, have appointed as their Plenipotentiaries the following:—

Who, having communicated their full powers, found in good and due form, have agreed on the following provisions:—

Article 1.

In the territories of any High Contracting Party to which the present Convention applies, an arbitral award made in pursuance of an agreement, whether relating to existing or future differences (hereinafter called "a submission to arbitration") covered by the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses opened at Geneva on 24th September 1923, shall be recognised as binding and shall be enforced in accordance with the rules of the procedure of the territory where the award is relied upon, provided that the said award has been made in a territory of one of the High Contracting Parties to which the present Convention applies and between persons who are subject to the jurisdiction of one of the High Contracting Parties.

To obtain such recognition or enforcement it shall, further, be necessary—

(a) that the award has been made in pursuance of a submission to arbitration which is valid under the law applicable thereto;

(b) that the subject-matter of the award is capable of settlement by arbitration under the law of the country in which the award is sought to be relied upon;

(c) that the award has been made by the Arbitral Tribunal provided for in the submission to arbitration or constituted in the manner agreed upon by the parties and in conformity with the law governing the arbitration procedure;

(d) that the award has become final in the country in which it has been made, in the sense that it will not be considered as such if it is open to opposition, appel or pourvoi en cassation (in the countries where such forms of procedure exist) or if it is proved that any proceedings for the purpose of contesting the validity of the award are pending;

(e) that the recognition or enforcement of the award is not contrary to the public policy or to the principles of the law of the country in which it is sought to be relied upon.

Article 2.

Even if the conditions laid down in Article 1 hereof are fulfilled, recognition and enforcement of the award shall be refused if the Court is satisfied—

(a) that the award has been annulled in the country in which it was made;

(b) that the Party against whom it is sought to use the award was not given notice of the arbitration proceedings in sufficient time to enable him to present his case; or that, being under a legal incapacity, he was not properly represented;

(c) that the award does not deal with the differences contemplated or falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration or that it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration.

If the award has not covered all the questions submitted to the arbitral tribunal, the competent authority of the country where recognition or enforcement of the award is sought can, if it think fit, postpone such recognition or enforcement, or grant it subject to such guarantee as that authority may decide.

Article 3.

If the party against whom the award has been made proves that, under the law governing the arbitration procedure, there is a ground, other than the grounds referred to in Article 1 (a) and (c) and Article 2 (b) and (c), entitling him to contest the validity of the award in a Court of Law, the Court may, if it thinks fit, either refuse recognition or enforcement of the award or adjourn the consideration thereof, giving such party a reasonable time within which to have the award annulled by the competent tribunal.

Article 4.

The party relying upon an award or claiming its enforcement must supply, in particular—

(1) The original award or a copy thereof duly authenticated, according to the requirements of the law of the country in which it was made;

(2) Documentary or other evidence to prove that the award has become final, in the sense defined in Article 1 (d), in the country in which it was made;

(3) When necessary, documentary or other evidence to prove that the conditions laid down in Article 1, para. 1 and para. 2 (a) and (c), have been fulfilled.

A translation of the award and of the other documents mentioned in this Article into the official language of the country where the award is sought to be relied upon may be demanded. Such translation must be certified correct by a diplomatic or consular agent of the country to which the party who seeks to rely upon the award belongs or by a sworn translator of the country where the award is sought to be relied upon.

Article 5.

The provisions of the above Articles shall not deprive any interested party of the right of availing himself of an arbitral award in the manner and to the extent allowed by the law or the treaties of the country where such award is sought to be relied upon.

Article 6.

The present Convention applies only to arbitral awards made after the coming into force of the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses, opened at Geneva on 24th September 1923.

Article 7.

The present Convention, which will remain open to the signature of all the signatories of the Protocol of 1923 on Arbitration Clauses, shall be ratified.

It may be ratified only on behalf of those Members of the League of Nations and non-Member States on whose behalf the Protocol of 1923 shall have been ratified.

Ratifications shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who will notify such deposit to all the signatories.

Article 8.

The present Convention shall come into force three months after it shall have been ratified on behalf of two High Contracting Parties. Thereafter, it shall take effect, in the case of each High Contracting Party, three months after the deposit of the ratification on its behalf with the Secretary-General of the League of Nations.

Article 9.

The present Convention may be denounced on behalf of any Member of the League or non-Member State. Denunciation shall be notified in writing to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who will immediately send a copy thereof, certified to be in conformity with the notification, to all the other Contracting Parties, at the same time informing them of the date on which he received it.

The denunciation shall come into force only in respect of the High Contracting Party which shall have notified it and one year after such notification shall have reached the Secretary-General of the League of Nations.

The denunciation of the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses shall entail, ipso facto, the denunciation of the present Convention.

Article 10.

The present Convention does not apply to the colonies, protectorates or territories under suzerainty or mandate of any High Contracting Party unless they are specially mentioned.

The application of this Convention to one or more of such colonies, protectorates or territories to which the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses, opened at Geneva on 24th September 1923, applies, can be effected at any time by means of a declaration addressed to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations by one of the High Contracting Parties.

Such declaration shall take effect three months after the deposit thereof.

The High Contracting Parties can at any time denounce the Convention for all or any of the colonies, protectorates or territories referred to above. Article 9 hereof applies to such denunciation.

Article 11.

A certified copy of the present Convention shall be transmitted by the Secretary-General of the League of Nations to every Member of the League of Nations and to every non-Member State which signs the same.

In faith whereof the above-named Plenipotentiaries have signed the present Convention.

Done at Geneva, on the . . . . in a single copy, of which the English and French texts are both authentic, and which will be kept in the Archives of the League of Nations.

ANNEXURE XV.—Report of the Third Committee on the Private Manufacture and Publicity of the Manufacture of Arms and Ammunition and Implements of War. (Rapporteur: Dr. Guerrero, Salvador.)

On several occasions the Assembly has emphasised the importance it attaches to the establishment of a convention on the supervision of the private manufacture of arms and ammunition and implements of war. In the second paragraph of the resolution adopted on 25th September 1925, the Assembly "invites the Council to continue the preliminary work on the subject of the control of the private manufacture of arms and ammunition and implements of war, so that a draft convention may be prepared as speedily as possible and that the Council may summon an international conference to consider it, if possible, before the next Assembly."

Last year the Third Committee considered the difficulties which the Council had encountered in carrying out the wishes expressed in such plain terms by the Assembly in 1925. Undaunted by these difficulties, the Assembly again expressed the desire that this work should be continued, so that the Conference might be summoned, if possible, before the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly. That the eighth session of the Assembly is confronted by the same situation as the preceding Assemblies is due beyond doubt to the fact that the difficulties already alluded to have unfortunately not been solved. As may be seen in the report of the Special Committee, which has been laid before the Assembly, there are fundamental differences of opinion as to the proper manner in which to consider this question.

In some quarters it is thought preferable to adhere strictly to the terms of Article 8 of the Covenant, and to confine the projected convention to the supervision of private manufacture proper. Others would like to include State manufacture. Among the latter, in addition to the United States Government, which has expressed its views on this subject very clearly and precisely, are to be found many non-producing countries which fear to be placed in a flagrantly inferior position as regards security if the publicity precautions contemplated in the Convention for the Supervision of the International Trade in Arms are not extended to cover direct purchases of arms by producing countries from national factories. As the Assembly will remember, it was this apprehension that found expression in the resolution embodied in the Final Act of the Conference of May-June 1925, in which the Conference declared that the Convention for the Supervision of the International Trade in Arms and Ammunition and Implements of War "must be considered as an important step towards a general system of international agreements regarding arms and ammunition and implements of war, and that it is desirable that the international aspect of the manufacture of such arms, ammunition and implements of war should receive early consideration by the different Governments."

The Third Committee has been obliged to recognise that the two attitudes described above came into opposition in the Special Committee and that it proved impossible to reconcile them. The Third Committee unanimously agrees, however, that the solution of this problem is intrinsically indispensable, and that it might have an excellent effect on the general problem of disarmament. The Committee was almost unanimous in considering that this solution might perhaps be sought in a Convention which, while subjecting private manufacture to supervision, would extend to State manufacture such of the supervisory regulations as more particularly concern publicity; this would satisfy the non-producing countries, and at the same time would meet the wish of certain other countries that consideration should be given to the special conditions of State manufacture.

On this subject the French Delegation made a suggestion to the effect that the publicity of State manufacture should be secured by the strict application of Article 8 of the Covenant to particulars of military, naval and air expenditure, because, if each country's expenditure on war material were made public, information would thus be furnished which should satisfy the requirements of non-producing countries.

It is with this end in view that the Third Committee has the honour to propose that the Assembly adopt the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 131.)

ANNEXURE XVI.—Report of the Third Committee on Arbitration Security, Disarmament and the Work of the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference. (Rapporteur: M. de Broukère, Belgium.)

The Third Committee has submitted to the Assembly a special report on the Polish Delegation's proposal and another on the investigations made with a view to the establishment of a convention for the supervision of the private manufacture of arms, ammunition and implements of war.

The present report will deal with the other questions submitted to us.

The Committee found, in particular, that the investigations undertaken under the direction of the Preparatory Commission demonstrate the necessity of taking certain precautions to prevent the development of civil aviation being hampered by military considerations and diverted for the same reasons into a direction which might constitute a serious obstacle to the establishment of international confidence. Without prejudice to the work of the Preparatory Commission with regard to the problem of aviation, the Committee trusts that the Assembly will adopt the resolution which it proposes, in order to obviate this risk (Resolution No. I).

The Committee has taken note with the keenest interest of the enquiries undertaken by the Committee of the Council and the technical organisations working under its direction with regard to the methods and regulations which would enable the Council to take as expeditiously as possible such decisions as may be necessary to enforce the obligations of the Convenant, and the most suitable measures to facilitate the working of the League organisations in time of emergency. The Committee considered these questions simultaneously with the proposal on the Assembly's agenda to the effect that it should be laid down as a principle that it is the obligation of the Government Members of the League to facilitate by every means in their power the meeting of the Council in time of emergency.

The Committee proposes for the Assembly's adoption two Resolutions on these questions, to which it attaches genuine importance (Resolutions Nos. II and III).

The Resolution which the Third Committee proposes that you should adopt regarding the system proposed by the Finnish Government for affording financial assistance to States victims of aggression is linked up with the investigations made by the Secretariat in regard to Article 16 (Resolution No. IV).

The Committee, which received the Finnish proposals with the greatest interest, suggests that they should continue to be investigated by the special Committee referred to below.

In the course of discussion, certain delegations made reservations on a number of points; these are recorded in the minutes of the ninth meeting (22nd September).

As regards the proposal submitted to the Committee by Dr. Nansen on behalf of the Norwegian Delegation, regarding a draft optional convention for obligatory arbitration of disputes, the Committee, having regard to the importance of its legal aspect, asked the First Committee to give it preliminary consideration. The Third Committee notes the opinion expressed by the First Committee contained in the following report:—

"The Committee does not consider itself in a position to study the Norwegian proposal in detail during the present Assembly.

It endorses the opinion of the Third Committee favouring the study of a general convention for compulsory arbitrations through the instrumentality of the Committee provided for in the resolution concerning arbitration, security and disarmament voted by the Third Committee on 21st September 1927.

The enquiry should include in its scope the possibilities of the development of arbitration in all its aspects.

The Committee begs to indicate the following points for enquiry:—

(a) Means should be sought for encouraging and promoting the acceptance of the optional clause of Article 36 of the Statute of the permanent Court of International Justice and the conclusion of special treaties for judicial settlement, arbitration and conciliation.

(b) In any investigation into the methods of pacific settlement of disputes between States, special attention should be paid to the procedure of conciliation, which is of the utmost importance.

(c) Very special attention should also be given to the question of the relations between the Council's and the Assembly's mediatory action and the procedures of arbitration and conciliation.

(d) In studying a general convention for compulsory arbitration, enquiry should be made as to how the convention could be given sufficient flexibility to permit the contracting States to adjust the obligations assumed to their particular circumstances."

Lastly, the Assembly referred the Netherlands Delegation's proposal to the third Committee. The French and German Delegations submitted kindred proposals direct to the Committee.

It appeared on examination that, so far from being antagonistic, the three texts expressed similar ideas, and formed the most admirable complements to one another. It was accordingly found possible to combine them in a single Resolution, which met with unanimous approval (Resolution No. V). We need only reproduce the text here with a few brief remarks.

All the delegations were agreed that the work for disarmament should be prosecuted with the utmost energy.

The Assembly, at its seventh ordinary session, had decided that, in the present conditions with regard to regional and general security, the work of the Preparatory Commission should be continued, no effort being spared to bring it to a successful conclusion as quickly as possible, and that the Conference itself should be convened as soon as the preliminary technical work was completed.

All the delegations remain faithful to this view and urge that a further effort should be made to reach the conclusion without delay. At the same time, all realise that the proposed movement along the road to disarmament will be only the first step; and must be followed by others before any real general disarmanent can be achieved.

It is recognised on all hands that the greater the improvement in the conditions of security and the more decided the nature of the first step, the sooner the subsequent steps will be taken. The Committee therefore feels that, with a view to reaching definite solutions as quickly as possible, the study of the questions of arbitration and security should be resumed on systematic lines.

The Committee is accordingly making definite proposals to the Assembly for the organisation of a Committee which would study, under the direction of the Preparatory Commission, the best means of giving all countries the guarantees of arbitration and security necessary to enable them to fix the level of their armaments at the lowest possible figures.

The Third Committee considers that the Committee in question should include representatives of all the States which have seats on the Preparatory Commission and are Members of the League, other States represented on the Commission being invited to sit on it if they so desire.

It should be observed that, in urging at the beginning of Part 3 of the resolution that the work of the Preparatory Commission must continue until the final goal—general disarmament—has been reached, the Committee does not mean that the Preparatory Commission as at present composed should be perpetuated, but simply wishes to point out that, whatever success the first measures of disarmament may have, the question has a character of continuity which calls for uninterrupted work.

A number of delegations desire to make it clear that this resolution, which the Third Committee has the honour to submit for the Assembly's approval, is not to be interrupted as in the slightest degree affecting the obligations incumbent on the Members of the League in virtue of the Covenant.

The Committee unanimously agrees that these obligations remain unaltered, neither diminished nor increased by the adoption of such a resolution.

During the discussions which took place, the attention of the Committee was drawn to the importance to be attached, from the point of view of security, to the conclusion of agreements, especially as between Members and non-Members of the League, on the lines which have been advocated in the United States, i.e., agreements for the outlawry of war.

With regards to the final paragraph of the resolution, the Committee desires to point out that the agreements therein mentioned are not in any way to be confused with such alliances as it was possible for countries to contract for political purposes of one kind or another before the Covenant of the League established general principles and obligations which introduced a measured harmony into international life. The agreements referred to in the resolution are to be regarded as means for enabling States which wish to enter into closer mutual engagements than are provided by the Covenant to help each other to discharge more effectively, so far as they are concerned, the obligations embodied in the Covenant itself. These agreements, therefore, are to be regarded simply as instruments for applying the principles of the League more effectively in specific regions.

As the last lines of the text have given rise to certain observations, it may be well to define their meaning. There is no question of asking the Council to send to State Members of the League a questionnaire regarding their intention in all imaginable cases. The idea which the Commission wished to express is that the Committee which it has suggested should be set up should be instructed to study the forms in which the Council should ask the different States to inform it what measures they would be prepared to take to support its recommendations or decisions in certain cases which the said States might indicate. It is understood that States will have all possible liberty to reply in such manner as they think best to these enquiries by the Council.

The object thus sought is to render it easier for individual States, at the Disarmament Conference, to fix the lowest possible figure for their armaments, by enabling them to graduate them in proportion to the guarantee of security afforded by the assistance on which in certain circumstances they might be able to rely. (For text of Resolutions adopted see page 128.)

ANNEXURE XVII.—Report of the Fourth Committee on the Establishment of an Administrative Tribunal. (Rapporteur: M. Zumeta, Venezuela.)

The Fourth Committee appointed a Sub-Committee,* of which I had the honour to be Chairman, to consider the question of the establishment of an administrative Tribunal. This question was dealt with by the Sub-Committee in a Report.

* This Sub Committee consisted of M. Zumeta, Chairman, Mgr Kaas, Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar, General Gabriel Tancos (deputy: M. Baranyai) and M. Cesare Tumedei.

The Committee, after noting the views exposed in the Sub-Committee, came to the same conclusion as the latter, namely, that the establishment of such a tribunal should be recommended as an experiment, subject to the Assembly's right to reconsider the whole matter subsequently.

The Fourth Committee is of opinion that the draft Statute submitted by the Supervisory Commission should therefore be adopted. It would merely propose a slight amendment of form, viz., that to avoid any ambiguity, Article II, para. 2 of the draft Statute should mention expressly the articles of the Staff Regulations of the International Labour Office referred to in the existing text by the words "the corresponding Articles."

The Fourth Committee therefore recommends that the Assembly adopt a Resolution in the following lines. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 134.)

ANNEXURE XVIII.—Report of the Fourth Committee on the Construction of an Assembly Hall and of New Buildings for the use of the Secretariat.

The Fourth Committee, at its afternoon meeting of 23rd September, had before if the Report* of the Special Committee appointed by the Assembly to consider the question of the new buildings, which was submitted to it in accordance with the Assembly's decision.

The Fourth Committee approved the Report as a whole and, recognising the admirable work already performed by the Special Committee, ventures to suggest that the same Committee is that best qualified to continue the study of this important question. They therefore venture to propose to the Assembly that the names of the present Special Committee (A. Adatci, M. Osusky, M. Politis, M. Urrutia and Sir Edward Hilton Young) should figure in the draft Resolution with which the Committee's Report concludes.

ANNEXURE XIX.—Report by the Special Committee on the Construction of an Assembly Hall and of New Buildings for the Use of the Secretariat. (Rapporteur: Sir E. Hilton Young, British Empire.)

At the eleventh plenary meeting held on Saturday, 10th September, the Assembly appointed a Committee of five members to present suggestions with regard to the decision to be taken in the matter of the new League buildings. The members of the Committee were:—

M. Adatci (Japan),
M. Osusky (Czecho-Slovakia), Chairman of the Supervisory Commission,
M. Politis (Greece),
M. Urrutia (Colombia),
Sir Edward Hilton Young (British Empire).

The Committee appointed M. Adatci Chairman and Sir Edward Hilton Young Rapporteur.

The Committee has examined the question on the lines laid down in the terms of reference approved by the Assembly and has carefully considered all information on various details which the Secretariat was in a position to supply.

The Committee is of opinion that it is impossible to complete the study of the whole question during the present session of the Assembly. There are, however, certain points which appear quite clear to the Committee which, in its view, enable certain decisions of principle to be taken by the Assembly at the present session, thus avoiding the necessity of an adjournment to the Assembly of 1928 and the resulting year's delay in commencing operations.

1. Financial Position.

The accounts of the Building Fund show a cash balance in hand on 31st August 1927 of 11,400,000 francs in round figures, to which must be added the guaranteed sale price of the Hotel National—4,000,000 francs. From this sum of 15,400,000 francs it is prudent to put aside a sum of 1,000,000 francs for the purchase of land and other general expenses. There is therefore a sum in hand at the present time of roughly 14,400,000 francs.

As some time will naturally elapse before any considerable payments must be made from this fund, it seems permissible to anticipate the addition of a sum of about 1,000,000 francs as interest on the large cash balance now actually in the possession of the League, thus bringing the amount available to a total of 15,400,000 francs.

*Annexure XIX.

A study of the prize-winning plans in the architects' competition has convinced the Committee that the sum at present available will not be sufficient to ensure that the new building or buildings shall, without being unduly luxurious, be satisfactory from the æsthetic point of view as well as from the practical. The estimates of cost submitted by the various competitors in accordance with the rules of the competition appear to the Committee to be in nearly all cases inadequate.

Basing itself upon a reasonable estimate of the cubic capacity necessary to provide the accommodation required and a by no means extravagant estimate of the probable cost per cubic metre, the Committee is of opinion that it is necessary to contemplate the probability that the credit allotted will ultimately have to be increased to approximately 19,500,000 francs. Until a plan has been definitely decided upon and carefully revised, it is of course impossible to give a more exact estimate; it may be possible to effect a reduction upon the sum named; and, in view of the amount of cash actually in hand, it is also unnecessary for the Assembly to vote at this present session a definite supplementary credit. All that is needed, and the Committee ventures to urge strongly the necessity of this measure, is that the Assembly should now agree in principle that the Building Fund will be increased to the amount of approximately 19,500,000 francs, should it be confirmed that the required buildings cannot be obtained for less.

The Committee is of opinion that it is reasonable and just that the ultimate choice of a plan should be made from among those which were awarded the nine equal prizes of 12,000 francs.

If the Assembly approves the Committee's recommendations, it will be necessary for a small committee to be appointed to continue the study of the questions contained in the terms of reference of the present Committee, with full powers to choose, with any changes that may be necessary, a plan that in their opinion most nearly satisfies the practical necessities and æsthetic considerations. This committee would, of course, be provided with such expert assistance as it may desire. The decision of the committee should be submitted to the Council for formal approval and ratification.

In conclusion, therefore, the Committee proposes to the Assembly the following Resolution:—

"The Assembly:

Approves the report of the Special Committee of five members in regard to the new buildings;

Approves, in principle, that the amount to be spent on the new buildings may be increased to approximately 19,500,000 francs. The exact amount of the supplementary credit necessary will be submitted to the Assembly at the next session; to study the nine plans awarded the equal prizes of 12,000 francs in the architects' competition, and to choose, with any changes that may be necessary, a plan which in its opinion complies most nearly with the practical and æsthetic requirements. The decision of this Committee will be submitted to the Council of the League of Nations for ratification, and will be communicated to the Assembly at the next session."

Empowers a Committee composed as follows:

ANNEXURE XX.—General Report of the Fourth Committee on Financial Questions.

(Rapporteur: M. Jean de Modzelewski, Poland.)

The present report refers to administrative and financial questions on the Fourth Committee's agenda, with the exception of those relating to contribution in areas. The Administrative Tribunal and the adjustment of the salaries of the staff, which are dealt with in separate documents.

I.—AUDITED ACCOUNTS FOR 1926.

The Committee unanimously recommends the Assembly to approve the accounts of the Secretariat and the autonomous organisations of the League in the form in which they have been submitted to it. It also associates itself with the various recommendations made by the Auditor to the extent to which those recommendations were accepted by the Supervisory Commission.

II.—BUDGET FOR 1928.

(a) General Discussion.

The examination of the items of the three principal budgets of the League of Nations was preceded by general discussions, in the course of which important points were noted and valuable principles arrived at.

The Chairman of the Supervisory Commission and the Secretary-General, on the basis of satistics submitted to the Assembly, informed the Committee that the League's budget was not increasing in proportion to the new tasks entrusted to the League and to the increased work involved for the various organs of the League.

In this connection the following figures are significant: whereas between 1922 and 1926 the budget increased by only 5 per cent. and the staff by 27 per cent., the number of documents translated into French increased by 89 per cent. and that of documents translated into English by 71 per cent. During the same period the documents passing through the Registry increased by 48 per cent., and the number of days during which Committees and Sub-Committees had held meetings by 175 per cent. The statistics for the first months of 1927 indicate that there has been no falling off in this progressive movement since the end of 1926.

The figures mentioned show that the amount of work done by the staff, which, in the opinion of many competent judges, had always been satisfactory, has grown considerably of recent years. The Committee feels sure that this excellent result is due to the great administrative qualities of the Secretary-General, who, assisted by the Under Secretary-General in charge of internal administration and finance and by the Treasurer, and stimulated by the Supervisory Commission, had succeeded in a relatively short space of time in building up that remarkable organisation the Secretariat of the League of Nations.

The Secretary-General stated that it would be difficult to make further reductions in the budget of the Secretariat and the Special Organisations, as this had already been heavily cut down by the Supervisory Commission. This year's experience had been conclusive on this point. For instance, it was only by effecting several important transfers of credits that had been possible to meet the expenses of the Economic Conference, which had been estimated at much too low a figure.

The increased expenditure is largely due to the development of the League's work; it is important, therefore, to consider very carefully any credits for new undertakings since, when one has been started, the credit granted cannot be discontinued without losing the benefit of the expenditure already incurred. If, therefore, the Assembly decides to entrust new tasks to the League it will be necessary to increase the budget or temporarily suspend some part of the normal duties of the Secretariat.

The Committee's attention was drawn by several members to the resolution adopted by the Assembly last year, on the proposal of the Indian delegate, which reads as follows:—

"Without putting obstacles in the way of the development of the League, it is desirable to keep in view a maximum limit of expenditure with the object of securing that the Contributions of individual States shall not normally in future exceed their contributions for the current year."

In order to facilitate the application of the above resolution, some members of the Committee expressed the opinion that the League should impose limits on requests for further expenditure. In order to obtain this result, the Assembly might be invited to delegate authority in the matter of proposals for further expenditure to some smaller body, and this body might examine the order in which new tasks entrusted to the League should be undertaken. No formal decision was, however, taken by the Committee on this point.

The Committee, having special regard to the effect of supplementary credits in increasing the total expenditure of the League, and the necessity for co-ordinating proposals for fresh expenditure, decided that all supplementary credits should be considered together, on the report of the Supervisory Commission towards the end of the proceedings of the Fourth Committee, and that, in the meanwhile, the budget credits should be voted only provisionally. This procedure was followed, with advantage, to the deliberations of the Committee.

It further confided to the Supervisory Commission the task of assisting it as to the comparative urgency of the various proposals for supplementary credits.

The question of expenditure affecting one State or a limited number of States Members of the League was also raised by several members of the Fourth Committee. The Secretary-General stated that he had not lost sight of the resolution adopted in this connection by the third ordinary session of the Assembly. For instance, certain States not Members of the League which had been invited to participate in conferences convened by the League had, although they were not bound to do so according to the terms of the financial regulations, paid at their own wish an equitable part of the expenses of these conferences. It would, however, be dangerous to give too wide an application to this principle, especially in the case of Members of the League that derive few direct advantages from their participation in the work of the League of Nations.

The question of publications led to an exchange of views. As regards the Secretariat, the Secretary-General explained to the Committee that the Publications Department had just been reorganised and the expert who had recently been engaged was successfully developing the sales by increasing the number of agents and regulating the internal and external organisation of his department. This has made it possible to include in the budget for 1928 an appreciably higher sum in respect of receipts from the sale of publications than was included in the budget for 1927.

In reply to a question asked by a delegate, the Secretary-General, stated that receipts from the sale of publications were all shown in a single item of the budget, whereas the cost of printing, in conformity with the decision of the second ordinary session of the Assembly, was charged to the Sections undertaking the preparation of the documents.

As regards the sale of the publications of the International Labour Office, the Director of the Office gave figures showing that the actual sales had been constantly expanding for several years past.

(c) Branch Offices.

The Secretary-General and the Director of the International Labour Office agreed in principle with the suggestion made by various delegates regarding the economy which might be effected by placing the branch offices of the Secretariat and of the International Labour Office in the same building. Nevertheless, no change can, of course, be made in the present system before the expiry of the current leases.

(d) Budget of the Secretariat and of the Special Organisation.

The Committee noted with interest a memorandum prepared at the request of a delegate to the Seventh Ordinary Session of the Assembly, on the work of the Information Section. It asked the Secretary-General to furnish it each year with a similar document; a member of the Committee suggested, however, that the time had perhaps come to stabilise the total strength of this important Section of the Secretariat.

After a long discussion, the Committee decided not to make any change in the budget of the Administrative Commissions and Minorities Questions Section. While, in the opinion of one speaker, the time had come to make certain cuts in this department of the Secretariat, several members of the Fourth Committee considered, on the contrary, that there could be no question of reducing these credits, but rather that it might be contemplated to increase them in view of the great importance of the services rendered by the Section, particularly in regard to minorities. The Secretary-General undertook to consider the question in all its aspects when the 1929 budget was drawn up.

Upon the examination of the budget of the Economic and Financial Organisation, the British delegate observed that, to achieve a general stabilisation, it was important that the chief items of the budget should be stabilised. In this connection, he drew attention to the deplorable habit observed in the budgets of many States of continuing to include in the budget items of expenditure which had become obsolete in consequence of the completion of the work for which the credits had been originally voted. The Director of the Section assured the Committee that he did not think that any criticism of this kind could be levelled against the budget of the Economic and Financial Organisation. As soon as a piece of work was completed, the official who had been in charge of it was assigned a new task.

(e) Budget of the International Labour Organisation.

The budget of the International Labour Organisation provoked an interesting discussion with regard to the question of refugees. As this work could probably not be completed for many years, a member of the Committee asked the Director of the International Labour Office if the credits relating thereto should not in future figure under the heading of Emigration Service of the Office; this new arrangement of the budget might perhaps present the advantage of effecting certain economies.

The Director of the International Labour Office reminded the Committee of the circumstances in which the refugee work had been taken over by the International Labour Office and of the suggestions put forward in various quarters that this work should be developed so as to assist the unemployed or workers in Europe finding themselves in an uncertain and precarious position. These suggestions had not, however, been accepted by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office and had indeed been rejected by the Assembly in 1925 and 1926; accordingly the Refugee Service remained provisional, and the credits relating thereto had to be entered in a separate budget.

(f) Allocation of the Expenses of the League.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Allocation of Expenses, who represents France on the Fourth Committee, recalled the fact that the Sixth ordinary session of the Assembly had considered that the Committee on the Allocation of Expenses would have sufficiently reliable figures in 1928 to establish on a solid basis a final scale for the allocation of the expenses of the League of Nations. As the Economic Conference had observed, however, the world was still in an unbalanced state, particularly in Europe, where the stability of before the war was far from having been attained. In any case, the Committee on the Allocation of Expenses, whose conclusions were chiefly based on a study of the State budgets, could not expect to find a sufficiently sound basis for its work next year.

The budgets on which it would have to work would indeed be those of 1926, a year which was one of the most disturbed as regards the financial situation of several important States, owing to the erratic movements of their national currencies, while a large number of other countries, which had previously stabilised their rates of exchange, had serious difficulties to face owing to the reactions produced on their internal prices and directly affecting their budgets.

Agreeing with the conclusions of the French representative's statement, and without wishing to encroach on the sphere of the 1928 Assembly, which, as pointed out by the Indian delegate, is alone qualified to take a decision on the substance of the question, the Fourth Committee considers that the time has not yet come to draw up a final scale. It nevertheless thought it well to provide in the budget the sum 7,500 francs in order to allow of the convocation of the Committee, more especially in the event of new States applying for admission to the League.

III.—REPORTS OF THE SUPERVISORY COMMISSION.

The Fourth Committee, in approving the conclusions of the Supervisory Commission's various reports, desired to express its lively thanks to the Chairman for the care with which the Commission had studied the various questions laid before it by the last Assembly.

The recommendation by the Supervisory Commission to include the expenses of the Permanent Central Opium Board in the general budget of the League gave rise to an interesting discussion. M. Cavazzoni, delegate of Italy, adduced all the arguments which, in his opinion, weighed against the Supervisory Commission's proposal. The Geneva Convention had not yet come into force. Before the Board could act with any effect, the Convention would have to be ratified by the most important producing, manufacturing and consuming countries. The powers conferred upon the Board are a part of those already exercised by the Advisory Committee of the League; there could be no question of charging the League of Nations budget with a fairly substantial sum in order to establish an institution towards which most of its Members were indifferent, while some of them were opposed to it. Finally, the Council has not yet stated whether it intends to assume the duties devolving upon it under the Convention.

After a discussion, in which several members of the Committee took part, the Fourth Committee, by seventeen votes to two, approved the recommendation made to it by the Supervisory Commission.

Although there is reason to suppose that the Convention will enter into force next year, the Fourth Committee considered that, as the Central Board could hardly meet, even according to the most optimistic view, before the middle of next year, and as the Convention had been concluded over two years ago, no harm would be done if the first meeting of the Board did not take place till the beginning of 1929; in these circumstances, the Fourth Committee decided to enter no credit for the Board in the 1928 budget.

In accordance with the proposal made to it by the Fourth Committee, the First Committee did not insist upon inscribing in the 1928 budget a special credit for the Committee of Experts for the Progressive Codification of International Law, in addition to the credit voted for the Preparatory Committee of the Codification Conference. Nevertheless, it proposed to the Fourth Committee, which entirely agreed, that, if necessary, the unexpended balance of the credits voted for the Preparatory Committee should be devoted to a possible meeting of the Committee of Experts for Progressive Codification.

With regard to the credits asked for for the collection of information on communications and transit, the Fourth Committee was, for imperative budgetary reasons, unable to grant the necessary sums for this year, at the time when the demand was made. It agreed, however, that, until the adoption of the 1929 budget, the Chief of the Transit Section should be authorised to enter into relations with States with a view to pursuing the preliminary stages of the work asked for by the Transit Conference.

When voting supplementary credits, several speakers mentioned that the time-limit given to the members of the Fourth Committee to examine the proposals for supplementary credits and the report thereon by the Supervisory Commission was really too short. Although it is hard to improve the present system without prolonging the Assembly, the Committee invites the competent authorities to study the question and, if necessary, to make proposals to the Fourth Committee of the next Assembly.

The Fourth Committee decided to instruct the Supervisory Commission to examine, before the next Assembly, the procedure to be followed in future should disputes arise through the Fourth Committee's refusing supplementary credits proposed by a Committee.

IV.—GIFT BY MR. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JUNR., FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SPECIAL LEAGUE LIBRARY.

With regard to Mr. John D Rockefeller, Junr.'s gift for the establishment of a special League library, the Supervisory Commission pointed out that, in accordance with the Financial Regulations, the accounts will be kept and controlled in the same way as those of the ordinary funds of the League. The Committee recommends that, as soon as practicable, a detailed budget should be drawn up and, having been examined by the Supervisory Commission, should be annexed to the general budget of the League.

The Committee is of opinion that it would be well to give the Secretary-General authority, should he think it desirable, to invite several library experts to visit Geneva at an early date, to consult with the Secretary-General and the League Librarian as to the best possible use of the gift. It might also be useful to secure the benefit of the great experience recently obtained in the United States in library construction, either through a visit to that country by the League Librarian, and perhaps by the architect of the new buildings or by inviting to Geneva an American library expert. Finally, should the Secretary-General consider it advisable to incur expenditure next year, such expenditure might be authorised, provided always that the Secretary-General obtained the approval of the Council, and that the Supervisory Commission had previously been consulted and agreed.

V.—ENLARGEMENT OF THE PREMISES PLACED AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE PERMANENT COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE.

The Fourth Committee desires to pay a tribute to the generous act of the Netherlands Government which, by the loan of 240,000 florins, without interest, to the Carnegie Foundation at the Hague, made it possible to enlarge the premises at the disposal of the Permanent Court of International Justice without appreciably adding to the Court's budget. In order that the Foundation may repay this sum to the Netherlands Government, the Committee recommends that the Assembly should approve the entry in the Court budget for each financial period between 1929 and 1952 of an additional credit of 10,000 florins as a supplementary contribution to the Foundation by the Court for that period, it being understood that the alterations to the premises shall be completed before 10th June 1928. The arrangement concluded in 1924 between the Secretary-General and th Carnegie Foundation at The Hague would have to be altered to this effect.

The Committee's report would be incomplete if it did not include an expression of thanks from the whole of the Fourth Committee to its popular Chairman, Jonkheer van Eysinga, who has directed its discussions with firmness, tact and courtesy. The Committee's thanks are also due to the distinguished representative of Portugal, M. de Vasconcellos, who was so good as to accept the role of Vice-Chairman.

In conclusion, the Fourth Committee has the honour to propose to the Assembly the adoption of the following draft Resolutions:—

1. " The Assembly, in virtue of Article 38 of the Regulations for the Financial Administration of the League, finally approves the audited accounts of the League for the eighth financial period ending 31st December 1926."

2. "The Assembly, in virtue of Article 17 of the Regulations for the financial administration of the League, approves for the financial year 1928 the general budget of the League, of the Secretariat and of the Special Organisations of the League, of the International Labour Organisation and of the Permanent Court of International Justice, the total of which, including supplementary credits, is 25,333,817 francs*;

"And decides that the said budgets shall be published in the Official Journal."

3. "The Assembly adopts, in so far as they have been approved by the Fourth Committee, the conclusions of the various reports of the Supervisory Commission submitted to its consideration."

4. "The Assembly adopts the conclusions of the Report of the Fourth Committee."

ANNEXURE XXI.—Report of the Fourth Committee on the Question of the Cost of Living and the Adjustment of Salaries. (Rapporteur : Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, Salvador.)

The Fourth Committee, having had before it the Report of the Salaries Adjustment Committee and that of the Supervisory Commission on the same question :

While noting that these two reports agree in concluding that the system hitherto adopted in determining the cost-of-living index on the basis of which the variable portion of the salaries is fixed has shown itself to be unsatisfactory ;

Is also of the opinion that it is not possible to decide whether and how far the present salaries should be modified.

ANNEXURE XXII.—Report of the Fourth Committee on Contributions in Arrears. (Rapporteur: M. A. F. Vennersten, Sweden.)

The Fourth Committee instructed a Sub-Committee to consider the question of unpaid contributions for the financial years of the League previous to 31st December 1926.

The Sub-Committee was composed as follows:—

M. Wladimir Molloff (Bulgaria).
Dr. A. J. Restrepo (Colombia).
M. Jean Réveillaud (France).
Dr. H. K. Ghadimy (Persia).
M. A. F. Vennersten (Sweden).

M. Vennersten was elected Chairman and Rapporteur of the Sub-Committee.

The Sub-Committee presented a confidential report to the Committee.

After this report had been discussed at a private meeting, the Fourth Committee unanimously agreed to propose to the Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution.* (For text of Resolution see page 134.)

ANNEXURE XXIII.—Report of the Fifth Committee on the Protection of Women and Children in the Near East. (Rapporteur: Mdlle. Forchhammer, Denmark.)

It will be remembered that the Assembly, at its seventh ordinary session, decided that the Mission for the Rescue of Women and Children entrusted to Miss Jeppe by the League of Nations should be prolonged for one year more under the conditions fixed by the Assembly at its sixth ordinary session—that is to say, under the high authority of the Power which holds a mandate in Syria under the League of Nations. Considering that Miss Jeppe was of opinion that her task could be discharged during 1927, the Assembly requested her to submit to the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly a Final Report on the results of her mission.

In conformity with this decision, Miss Jeppe has presented the Report which you have before you containing a review of all her work. She reminds the Assembly that the Commission was originally constituted as a Commission of enquiry and that the actual rescue work began in March 1922. During the following five years 1,400 people have entered the Commission's Reception House. In addition, about 200 persons have been rescued with the help of their relatives whom they had reached before arriving at the Reception House.

In order to achieve this end, about 20,000 Turkish gold pounds have been used, or a little over 18,000 pounds sterling, which gives an average cost of £11 5*s.* per head, including cost of administration, maintenance of the rescue home, board, clothing, medical care and education, and the settling on the land of some of the older boys.

It is reported that 75 per cent. of the rescued have succeeded in getting into touch with their relatives, and 400 have become self-supporting, as they have been taught a trade or found suitable work.

With regard to last year's work, Miss Jeppe reports that the mission has received much sympathy and encouragement, and has therefore made good progress. The French Government has been supporting the Commission wholeheartedly and no difficulty or resistance has been made by any particular element of the population. The funds placed at her disposal for this work from various sources amounted to over £6,000. The result has been that the number of rescued has exceeded that of former years. Three hundred and twenty-five persons have been rescued, the largest number in any past year being 300.

In reviewing the work of Miss Jeppe we can only repeat the words spoken by Dame Edith Lyttelton at the seventeenth plenary meeting of last year's Assembly: "The bravery, courage and resource that she has shown are worthy of the highest praise." We are proud to have been associated with her in her good work. Although Miss Jeppe is severing her official connection with the League of Nations, as she feels that her work of rescue is completed, she is, it is understood, continuing in a private capacity her efforts to restore these unfortunate people to a normal life. She considers that, until this task is completed, she will have to remain responsible for at least 400 people.

It is therefore to be hoped that the generous financial support which has been given by voluntary organisations will continue till the work has been brought to a satisfactory conclusion. The Committee considers that she should be allowed to retain the furniture and equipment of which she is at present making use until her work for the rescued is definitely at an end.

The Fifth Committee proposes the following Resolution to the Assembly. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 139.)

ANNEXURE XXIV.—Report of the Fifth Committee on Child Welfare. (Rapporteur: M. Janson, Belgium.)

The Assembly has no doubt examined the report on the third session of the Child Welfare Committee of the Advisory Commission for the Protection and Welfare of Children and Young People, and will certainly wish to express its gratitude to the Committee for the work it is doing and has already done.

In conformity with the recommendation made by the Council of the League of Nations at its session in June 1926, the Child Welfare Committee endeavoured to make a judicious choice of the questions to be placed on its agenda, in order to concentrate its attention on the problems whose study and solution are of practical value to Governments. With this in view, it formed an Agenda Sub-Committee, which has already provisionally settled the agenda for the next session.

In pursuance of the recommendation made by the Assembly at its seventh ordinary session, the Committee decided to pursue the enquiry on the effects produced on children by the cinematograph and to study the position of the illegitimate child in the various countries. The Council, during its session in June 1927, instructed the Secretary-General to send to the Governments the questionnaire drawn up by the Committee with a view to obtaining information bearing on these two enquiries. The questionnaire dealing with illegitimate children was sent on the understanding that the Governments should only give information if they thought fit. The attention of the Child Welfare Committee is directed to the importance, from a physiological and mental point of view, of the enquiry undertaken concerning the cinema.

The Child Welfare Committee has recorded its gratitude for the efforts of the Health Committee to improve and standardise the statistics of still-births and infant mortality, and has decided to leave the study of the medical aspects of the question to the Health Committee, at the same time requesting it to forward to the Child Welfare Committee all documents dealing with the social aspects of the problems which concern child welfare.

After a detailed study of the very full information collected with regard to the age of consent and of marriage, the Advisory Commission, sitting as a plenary meeting of its two Committees, expressed its conviction that the fixing of too early an age as the age of consent is likely to encourage the traffic in women and children, and to lead to the corruption of young persons. It requested the Council of the League of Nations to draw the attention of the Governments to the imperative necessity of taking this factor into account in order to ensure the effective protection of children and young people. The Commission decided to postpone to its next session the question of the legal age of marriage, and its possible relation to the age of consent. The Council requested the Secretary-General to submit to the various Governments for consideration the Commission's resolution dealing with the age of consent.

The Committee decided to pursue, jointly with the International Labour Office, the enquiry into the effects of family allowances on the welfare of children.

The Child Welfare Committee requested the Secretariat to await the results of the enquiry now being conducted by the International Prison Commission with regard to Juvenile Courts, and to submit a report at the next session.

The Assembly, at its seventh ordinary session, had recommended that the examination of the question of mental and physical recreation should be left on the Child Welfare Committee's programme. In conformity with this recommendation, the Committee appointed rapporteurs, who will submit a report in the course of the next session on the methods adopted in the various countries and on the results already obtained. The International Labour Office has been requested to communicate to the Secretariat the information in its possession on the utilisation of workers spare time in its relation to child welfare.

Furthermore, the Committee decided to retain the question of blind children on its agenda and the members and assessors of the Committee agreed to collect information in their respective countries on this subject.

Finally, the Committee examined the information received by the Legal Sub-Committee in answer to the questionnaire on the two draft international conventions, relating respectively to the repatriation and relief of minors, and to the execution of judgments relating to the enforcement of the obligation to provide for the maintenance of minors when those responsible for them reside abroad. It requested the Legal Sub-Committee to continue its work on certain lines which it indicated.

It should be recognised that the work of the Child Welfare Committee is considerable and that great efforts have been made to bring it into line with the recommendations of the Assembly and of the Council.

The Fifth Committee concludes therefore by asking the Assembly to grant its support to the work of the Child Welfare Committee and to adopt the following Resolution:—

"The Assembly notes the report submitted by the Child Welfare Committee, expresses its appreciation of the work it is doing and requests it to continue on the lines indicated in the report on its third session."

ANNEXURE XXV.—Report of the Fifth Committee on the Traffic in Opium and other Dangerous Drugs. (Rapporteur: Mme. Larsen-Jahn, Norway.)

The ninth session of the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium and other Dangerous Drugs was held at Geneva from 17th January to 3rd February 1927. The Report of the Committee to the Council on this session was examined by the Council on 11th March 1927, and the necessary instructions were given to the Secretary-General with regard to the action arising out of the resolutions contained in that report.

The Advisory Committee concluded from the documents in its possession that the illicit traffic in drugs continues to be a grave danger. The Advisory Committee points out in its report the necessity for a general and vivid appreciation of what that traffic means in terms of human suffering, misery and degradation. It goes on to make the very serious statement that, with regard to combating the drug evil, action by the Governments falls far short of their contractual obligations; but neither the Committee nor the League is in a position to grapple with this huge problem except to the extent to which they are aided in that task by individual Governments; the possibilities of direct executive action are necessarily confined to these individual Governments, acting not only within their national territories but also in direct co-operation with each other.

The Fifth Committee wishes to draw the special attention of the Assembly to the gravity of the statements made by the Advisory Committee, a body of specialists who undoubtedly possess the most intimate knowledge and the widest experience of the subject. A very grave charge is made against the individual Governments, and the documents published by the Advisory Committee support, it must be admitted, to the very fullest extent the view it has expressed as to the danger of the situation. The Fifth Committee would like to make an appeal to the Assembly delegates that they should all, on their return to their respective countries, urge upon the competent authorities there the necessity for drastic action.

The Advisory Committee has, in its second resolution, made a definite recommendation, namely, that a systematic and searching enquiry should be undertaken without delay by the Governments of all the countries which manufacture the drugs or import them on a considerable scale with a view to discovering from whom and by what methods the illicit traffickers procure their supplies. One method of investigation has been indicated in that resolution, and the Fifth Committee cannot too strongly recommend to the Assembly delegates that they should do all in their power in their own countries to see that the Committee's request is complied with.

A very important exchange of views took place in the Advisory Committee on the subject of a resolution submitted to that Committee by the representative of the Italian Government. The Italian representative proposed that the Advisory Committee should hold an extraordinary session, with a view to drawing up concrete proposals for the reduction of the quantities of drugs manufactured to the quantities required for medical and scientific purposes, and also with regard to combating the contraband traffic in drugs with special reference to the causes which produce it and including penal and other measures which might be adopted to suppress it. In the course of the discussion it became clear—though there was no formal proposition on the subject, and no vote was taken on it—that a majority of the members were either in favour of or would not oppose the calling of an extraordinary meeting of the Advisory Committee to discuss the question of the illicit traffic generally, provided that the discussion at such a meeting were limited to measures which fell within the scope of the Hague Convention or of the Geneva Convention of 1925. The Advisory Committee preferred to leave the matter to the appreciation of the Council, and the Council, being of opinion that the calling of an extraordinary session of the Advisory Committee to discuss the question of the illicit traffic might well be desirable, empowered the Chairman of the Committee to call such a session should circumstances warrant such action. An extraordinary session has now been summoned for 28th September.

The Advisory Committee has also pointed out the importance of the bringing into force of the Geneva Convention of 19th February 1925. It states that great difficulties will continue to be encountered in dealing with the huge illicit traffic unless the further powers which the Convention confers are obtained and that serious harm is being caused by the long delay in bringing the Convention into general operation.

The situation in China is the subject of another resolution of the Advisory Committee, which recommends that all Governments should exercise special vigilance in the case of all postal matters destined for China in so far as this is possible.

The Advisory Committee has again passed a resolution with regard to the ratification of the Hague Convention by Turkey. This question was considered by the Assembly of 1923 and also by the Assembly of 1926. Up to the present time, no reply has been received from the Turkish Government to the Secretariat's communications on this subject.

The lack of information with regard to the exact situation as to the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs in Central and South America has caused some anxiety. It was, however, a great satisfaction to the members of the Advisory Committee to see a representative for one of these countries take part in their work for the first time,

Bolivia having appointed a representative on the Committee. The Fifth Committee draws the special attention of the delegations from the Central and South American countries to Resolution 5 of the Advisory Committee, which deals with this point.

Resolution 6, dealing with the necessity for controlling the opium and drug traffic in free ports and free zones, is of special importance to all countries in which free ports and free zones exist. Undoubtedly, these countries will take every possible measure to stop the leakage which may take place through such ports and zones as a consequence of inadequate control.

Several resolutions deal with the necessity of furnishing reports on the commerce in drugs in the various countries. The Governments should not forget that the Hague Convention has already laid down special stipulations in this respect, and they will realise that lack of information is bound to hamper the work of the Committee.

The Fifth Committee has the honour to submit to the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly the following Resolution:—

"The Assembly notes with approval the report of the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium and the resolutions contained therein, and earnestly recommends them to the attention of the States Members of the League."

ANNEXURE XXVI.—Report of the Fifth Committee on the Work of the Commission of Enquiry into the Production of Opium in Persia. (Rapporteur: M. Veverka, Czecho-Slovakia.)

The Assembly will remember that the sixth session of the Assembly, on 26th September 1925, adopted the following resolutions.

"I. The Assembly:

"Having considered the resolution contained in the Final Act of the Second International Opium Conference with regard to the appointment of a Commission of Enquiry in certain opium-producing countries:

"Recommends that such a Commission should be sent to Persia to study:

"(a) The existing situation with regard to the cultivation of the poppy;

"(b) The replacement of a proportion of this cultivation by other crops.

"II. The Commission shall consist of not more than three persons, to be appointed by the Council; a person having the necessary qualifications to act as chairman, an expert on the agricultural side of the problem to be nominated after consultation with the International Institute of Agriculture, and a person having experience of business conditions and markets in the East and knowledge of transport problems.

"III. The Assembly is of opinion that such an enquiry would require for its work the sum of 100,000 gold francs and decides that this sum be voted for the purpose."

Before going into further details, we must mention the great generosity of the Persian Government, which provided credits in excess of 100,000 gold francs for the housing, transport and other expenses of the Commission while in Persia; and of the Bureau of Social Hygiene of New York, which further guaranteed the expenses of the Commission up to 150,000 gold francs, and were thereby very largely instrumental in its success.

The Council, at its meeting on 11th December 1925, appointed the following persons to serve as members of the Commission:—President: Mr. Frederic A. Delano (United States of America), a former member of the Federal Reserve Board. Members: Dr. Fridiano Cavara (Italy), Professor of Botany at the University of Naples: Mr. Victor Cayla (France), Agricultural Engineer.

It was later agreed that Mr. Delano should be accompanied by an American agricultural expert, whose duty it would be to assist the President of the Commission on agricultural questions. Mr. J. B. Knight was chosen for this purpose.

From the report of the Commission which is now before the Assembly it is clear that the Commission has diligently and carefully studied poppy cultivation in Persia. It has in its report presented and explained that situation in detail. It has made a special study of the question of substituting a portion of this cultivation by other crops, and by the revival or introduction of certain industries, and it has concluded that, while difficult of accomplishment, it is not only possible and feasible, but to the economic interest of Persia to adopt a programme for the gradual diminution of the cultivation of the opium poppy.

The report of the Commission has been presented to the Persian Government, which has submitted its observations in a memorandum presented by a letter to the Secretary-General, dated 4th March 1927.

The Persian Government found itself in general accord with the conclusions and recommendations of the Commission save those pertaining to the increased cultivation of cereals, the morphine content and alleged medicinal demand for Persian opium, the percentage of opium addiction among the population and the attempt to prove that poppy cultivation has some relation to the periodic famines.

In its written and oral statements presented to the Council, the Persian Government called attention to an erroneous belief which has heretofore existed that Persian opium entered to a considerable extent into the manufacture of narcotic drugs, and it demonstrated by the statistics published by the League of Nations that less than one-half of 1 per cent. of all opium used in the manufacture of medicinal opium, morphine and heroin was furnished by Persia, and was therefore forced to the conclusion that a reduction in the quantity of opium produced in Persia would have no appreciable effect in reducing the quantity available for the manufacture of narcotic drugs. It further pointed out that, if all the producing countries accepted the curtailment programme proposed for Persia and annually reduced their production by 10 per cent. of the quantity remaining at the end of each year, there would still be produced 20 years from the present time twice the quantity of opium necessary to meet the medicinal requirements of the world.

From the foregoing analysis of the situation, the Persian Government concluded that, in order to obtain an effective control over the narcotic trade within a reasonable period, not only must the principle of curtailment be applied to the producing countries, especially Persia, who are least able to afford the losses involved and who are least affected by the drug habit, but that it must also simultaneously be placed in effect in the countries which manufacture drugs—the coca leaf and its derivatives to be subjected to the same reduction programme as opium and its derivatives.

The Commission recommended a 10 per cent. annual reduction on opium cultivation but did not find itself in a position to estimate either the time required or the cost involved in the substitution of other crops and industries for opium. The Persian Government did not consider itself warranted under the circumstances in accepting blindly an indefinite programme of reduction, but it did accept a three-year trial of the plan, during which period the essential factors of time and cost of substitution could be determined.

The programme which the Persian Government proposed to submit to the Medjless with recommendation for its enactment into law was then stated as follows:—

1. Approval of recommendation of reduction in area under poppy cultivation of 10 per cent. per annum after three years on the plan proposed by the Commission of Enquiry.

Note.—The annual reduction to continue for three years, after which time the Persian Government will reconsider its position, taking into account the effect the reduction has had on the welfare of the cultivator, the trade balance, the budget and the general economic conditions of the country, and what action has been taken by other producing countries to curtail the production of the raw material and the manufacture and distribution of habit-forming drugs.

2. Acceptance of the opium import certificate system with an annual reduction, beginning not later than the third year after the present, of 10 per cent. of the quantity annually permitted to leave the country without production of opium import certificates.

Note.—Subject to the reservations indicated in the note to para. 1.

3. An exemption from land taxes for a period of five years in the case of areas diverted from the cultivation of the poppy to that of substitute crops.

4. Preference in the granting of agricultural loans to be given by the State Bank of Persia, when established, to cultivators who divert part or all of their land under opium cultivation to that of substitute crops.

5. In agreement with the intention of the League of Nations and the recommendation made by the Commission, the Government promises to study the increase of export Customs duties on such opium as is exported without certificate, and likewise to study changing the existing taxes on opium to other taxes which will facilitate and expedite the decrease of the cultivation of and commerce in opium.

While the Persian Government has accepted unconditionally to propose its reduction programme to the Medjless, it is nevertheless pointed out in the letter from the Persian Government to the Secretary-General, dated 4th March 1927, that the Government and people cannot be expected to continue to support a programme of reduction unless Persia is accorded substantial equality of opportunity with regard to the world's trade in medicinal opium, and unless Persia is enabled to put into effect the reasonable measures which are essential for fiscal and economic readjustments. Among these reasonable measures the Commission of Enquiry has particularly noted and recommended tariff autonomy. The Persian Government is likewise convinced that its independence and freedom in the establishment of legal Customs tariffs are essential for the protection and encouragement of Persian substitute industries and the promotion of export. In fact, the Persian Government states that the attainment of this aim is an indispensable condition if the Persian Government is to pursue the policy which the League of Nations is considering for curtailment of the production of and commerce in opium. The Persian Government is confident that there will be a generous appreciation by other Governments of this important aspect of the situation.

The Fifth Committee would also draw the attention of the Assembly to the letter from the Chairman of the Commission to the Secretary-General, in which he replies to certain points of detail in which the Persian Government criticised the report and gives a very clear and valuable summary of the personal observations of the members of the Commission during its visit to Persia and of its findings and recommendations.

The Assembly will certainly agree with the Fifth Committee that the League of Nations owes a great debt of gratitude to the members of the Commission of Enquiry, who carried out the mission entrusted to them with no consideration as to their own personal convenience, and have succeeded in collecting a large amount of first-hand information of the very greatest importance.

On reading through the report of the Commission, one cannot but admire the scientific method, the thoroughness and the care with which it has been prepared. The attitude of the Persian Government is also worthy of the highest praise. Not only did the Persian Government do everything materially possible to assist the work of the Commission, but when the results of this work became known in Teheran the Persian Government immediately expressed its willingness to co-operate as fully as possible in attaining the results desired by the Second Opium Conference and later by the Assembly of the League of Nations. This readiness of the Persian Government to further the efforts of the League to combat the drug evil will be regarded as particularly comforting in view of the recent announcement by another producing country that it is taking steps to reduce progressively the exports of opium except for medicinal and scientific purposes, so as to extinguish them altogether within a definite period. The Fifth Committee expresses the hope that it will not be long before the example set by these two Governments is followed by the other countries concerned with the production of opium and coca leaf and with the manufacture of their derivatives, such as morphine, heroin, cocaine, etc. The Fifth Committee draws the attention of the Assembly to the statement made by the Persian Government that the programme to be submitted to the Medjless provides for the acceptance of the recommendations of the Commission with the reservation that after the plan has been in effect for three years the position will be reconsidered, taking into account the welfare of the cultivator, the budget, the trade balance and the economic situation of the country, and the action taken by other producing and manufacturing countries to curtail production and manufacture.

The experiment which has been made in sending the Commission of Enquiry to Persia is of so great value that the League should not lose sight of the further development of the policy which has thus been inaugurated.

To the words of appreciation to he Persian Government the Fifth Committee would like to add a respectful request to that Government that it should keep the League informed of further developments in the programme which the Persian Government has laid down for its own guidance and which it has suggested as a general measure towards an effective reduction in the production of opium. At the same time the Fifth Committee expresses the firm conviction that other Governments concerned with the production of the raw material and with the manufacture of narcotic drugs will take similar or equivalent action and that those Governments which do not already keep the League informed of the measures which they are adopting will do so in the future.

The Fifth Committee desires once more to appeal to those Governments, which have so far failed to ratify the Geneva Arrangement and Convention, to do so with as little delay as possible in order that full and effective co-operation may be assured.

The Fifth Committee has the honour to submit the following Resolution to the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 138.)

ANNEXURE XXVII.—Report of the Fifth Committee on the Traffic in Women and Children. (Rapporteur: M. Portela, Cuba.)

The Tarffic in Women and Children Committee held its sixth session at Geneva from 25th to 30th April 1927, and was presided over by His Excellency M. Regnault, delegate for France.

The greater part of the session was devoted to the consideration of the Report of the Special Body of Experts. The Council had forwarded to the members of the Traffic in Women and Children Committee Part I of this Report in order that it might consider what action it could recommend as a result of the information submitted by the experts. The suggested remedies in Part I of the Report were very fully discussed. The Committee particularly recommended that severe measures should be taken by the various Governments regarding foreign procurers and souteneurs.

Further, in order to check the traffic, the Council was requested to invite the various Governments to supervise conditions under which girls under 18 years of age are allowed to go abroad with contracts of employment, and, in particular, to insist on the strict enforcement of emigration laws and regulations. Special attention was devoted to the question of contracts for artistes in music-halls and other similar establishments. It was recommended that an enquiry should be undertaken by the Secretariat with the assistance of the International Labour Office regarding the methods adopted in the different countries for the material and moral protection of artistes travelling abroad under contract in music-halls, etc.

The Committee considered the observations of the experts on the effects of the low wages paid to women in certain employments, and recognised that the low wages paid to women in certain branches of employment is a factor which cannot be disregarded in considering the problem of prostitution in its relation to the traffic. The Committee suggested that the Secretariat should examine the question of women's wages with the International Labour Office, and consider whether any aspect of the question should be explored, reporting to the Committee at its next session.

The more general measures to which the Committee continues to attach the greatest importance are the adhesion of Governments to the International Conventions and Agreement for the Suppression of Traffic in Women and Children and direct administrative co-operation between the central authorities of the different States on all matters connected with the traffic.

The question of the influence of obscene publications was also discussed at some length. A resolution was adopted drawing the attention of the Council to the fact that a large number of States which have signed the International Convention for the Suppression of the Circulation of and Traffic in Obscene Publications have not ratified their signatures, and that many States Members of the League have taken no steps towards becoming parties to the Convention. The Council was asked to invite the Governments of those States to take the necesary steps in order to secure their co-operation in this important matter.

The Committee, being convinced that the fixing of too early an age as the age of consent is likely to encourage traffic in women and children, requested the Council to draw the attention of the Governments to the imperative need of fixing the age of consent sufficiently high to ensure the effective protection of children and young people.

As regards the legal age of marriage, the Commission thought it important that the age of marriage should reach a rational standard. It decided to postpone further consideration of this question until its next session.

The Secretariat was instructed to continue to collect information on the question of the expulsion of foreign prostitutes. The Secretariat was further, requested to make a summary of laws in its possession dealing with the punishment of persons who live wholly or partly on the immoral earnings of women, and to present it to the Committee at its next meeting. The information already obtained by the Secretariat on the question of the employment of women police should be completed. The Committee noted with satisfaction the increasing number of women employed in the police forces of various countries.

With regard to the control of prostitution and licensed houses, the Traffic in Women and Children Committee took note of the observations contained in the Experts' Report. In view of the fact that Part II of the Report has not yet been published and that certain members of the Committee require additional information, it was decided to postpone further discussion until the next session. Considerations of the same kind led the Committee to adopt a similar decision regarding the question of extending the experts' investigation to countries which have not yet come within the scope of their enquiries. The Committee found that it could not express an opinion on this matter until it had thoroughly examined Part II of the Report. It took note of the desire expressed by the voluntary organisations for an early publication of Part II of the Experts' Report.

The report of the Committee to the Council was considered by the Council on 16th June 1927.

The Rapporteur, Sir Austen Chamberlain, thought that women's wages seemed to be a large economic question and to lie outside the scope of the Committee's work, and the Council approved this point of view.

The Secretary-General was instructed to take the necessary action arising from the report, subject to the observations formulated by the Rapporteur.

The report of the Traffic in Women and Children Committee gave rise to a very full and interesting discussion in the Fifth Committee, which centred on the question of licensed houses and the question of measures in force with regard to souteneurs and procurers. A number of delegates emphasised the importance of the employment of women in the police. Several delegates made interesting statements concerning the situation in their own countries, and urged the importance of employing women police to patrol public places.

Certain delegates expressed a wish that the age of consent should, in no case, be lower than the age of marriage.

The German delegate on the Committee informed her colleagues that a new law, which provides for severe penalties, was to come into force on 1st October, abolishing licensed houses in Germany within the limits of its power. The delegate of Hungary also mentioned the fact that the system of the licensed house had recently been abolished in that country. Several delegates gave it as their opinion that the abolition of licensed houses in their countries had been fully justified.

The delegate of Cuba stated that licensed brothels had long been abolished in Cuba, and that very stringent laws, regulations and police measures were enforced for the protection of young female emigrants and the prosecution of their habitual exploiters.

The delegate of France stated that his country was also moving towards the abolition of the system of licensed houses, but that it must be given time. He pointed out that the suppression of regulated prostitution could only be effected by attacking not only the licensed-house system but all the different factors involved, also that this was the policy adopted by France.

The delegates of Roumania, Japan and Hungary stated the opinions prevailing in their own countries with regard to this most difficult question.

The Committee was unanimous in recommending that the strictest possible measures should be taken against souteneurs and procurers. The British delegate laid stress on the desirability of adequate punishments being provided for in regard to sexual assaults on children, and also for persons who for the sake of financial gain stimulate the graver forms of vice.

A special tribute was paid by the Committee to the excellent work of the Special Body of Experts on the traffic in women and children.

The Fifth Committee has the honour to submit to the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted see page 137.)

ANNEXURE XXVIII.—Report of the Fifth Committee on Measures in favour of Armenian and Russian Refugees. (Rapporteur: Major Elliot, British Empire.)

There are several League activities closely connected with refugee problems, and it may be of use to state at the outset, for the information of delegates attending for the first time, that the present subject has no connection with the Greek or the Bulgarian Refugee Settlement schemes. The problems of Russian and Armenian refugees have occupied the attention of successive Assemblies for some years. They have been dealt with jointly by the High Commissioner for Refugees (Dr. Nansen) and by the International Labour Office with great vigour, and both are greatly to be congratulated on the very useful results which have attended their efforts. In the original stages, a very serious problem was presented by the influx of large numbers of disorganised and destitute refugees into countries where the machinery of government was in process either of reconstruction or of creation. This aspect of the problem has now entirely passed away, and the greatest praise is due to the energy and self-sacrifice of the Refugee Service, whose patient and unremitting work over a long period has, with the help of the League and the help of the Governments concerned, reduced the whole question to one of comparatively small dimensions. It is an especial pleasure to me to offer, in the name of the Fifth Committee, our homage to the great personality of Dr. Nansen, whose vision and guidance throughout have been such an inspiration.

The problems were attacked as follows:—

1. The anomalous status of the refugees was dealt with by the issue of identity certificates, to overcome passport difficulties, etc. These certificates have proved, as can be well imagined, of the utmost use to the refugees, who have gratefully recognised their value.

2. The destitution and unemployment were dealt with by the transfer of the refugees to countries, largely in Europe but also overseas, where opportunities for employment presented themselves. In this manner, approximately 200,000 were placed in a position to support themselves.

3. Land settlement schemes were drawn up to deal with a proportion of the remaining refugees.

The High Commissioner for Refugees further convened an Inter-Governmental Conference in May 1926 for the purpose of improving the passport system and of raising a revolving fund of not less than £100,000 to assist the migration of refugees.

The International Passport Arrangement existing when this Conference met had at that date been adopted by 46 and 34 Governments for Russian and Armenian refugees respectively.

The Conference of May 1926, however, finding that refugees in some countries were not receiving the benefits from the passport system contemplated by the original International Arrangement, drew up a Supplementary Arrangement to improve passport facilities. It also arranged to increase the revolving fund by means of the issue of stamps constituting a special yearly tax of 5 gold francs on the renewal of the Nansen certificates, usually charged only to self-supporting refugees. Last year, in its survey, the Fifth Committee reported to the Assembly that the statistics supplied by the International Labour Office indicated the existence of not less than 1,000,000 Armenian and Russian refugees in 26 different countries. As the records for some countries had not been received, the Committee considered the total might be safely estimated at 1,500,000.

Of these, 190,000 were reported unemployed, but here again the complete statistics were lacking, and the total number of unemployed was estimated at 250,000. There are therefore 1,250,000 placed, and the problem now before us is the problem of the last 20 per cent. Progress has been as follows.

Fifty Governments in the case of the Russian passport and 36 in the case of the Armenian passport have now adopted and recognised in principle the original Passport Arrangement.

Sixteen Governments have notified their formal adhesion to the Supplementary Arrangement drawn up by the Inter-Governmental Conference of 1926. The report before you shows that a sum of approximately 150,000 Swiss francs has already been received for the revolving fund from the issue of these stamps.

The report of the Director of the International Labour Office notes that there are at present 10,000 unemployed Russian refugees in Shanghai, while the position of trade in that city at the present time affords no prospect of an early reduction of their numbers. The majority of these Russians are resident in the French Concession. Through the courtesy of the French Government, the International Labour Office has been able to arrange for the issue of Nansen passports through the French Consul in Shanghai.

In Turkey, some 4,000 Russian refugees came under a Decree of the Turkish Government, promulgated this spring, which required them either to obtain Turkish nationality or to leave Turkey before 1st August 1927. The Chief of the International Labour Office Refugee Service proceeded to Angora to deal with this emergency, and was able to secure a suspension of the application of the Decree by the Turkish Minister for Foreign Affairs.

LEGAL STATUS OF REFUGEES.

Another matter should be taken note of by the Assembly as affecting the interests of all categories of refugees now under discussion, whether Russian or Armenian, self-supporting or destitute, urban or agricultural.

The Advisory Committee, in September 1926, resolved that :—

" The different practical questions concerning Russian and Armenian refugees cannot find a satisfactory solution as long as the Legal situation of these refugees is not regulated by the League of Nations."

The Advisory Committee went on to suggest the formation of a technical Commission of Russian and Armenian experts to act as advisers.

A summary of the conclusions of this technical Commission is to be found in the High Commissioner's report. It recommends the adoption of a variety of measures to ensure legal rights in respect of property, marriage contracts and other matters, and urges that an Inter-Governmental Conference should be summoned before the end of 1927, at which the technical Commission might discuss with representatives of the interested Governments how best to carry out these measures.

LAND SETTLEMENT AND UNEMPLOYMENT SCHEMES.

During the past year these problems have received special attention at the hands of two different bodies. The schemes considered fall under two separate aspects, namely, the settlement of the Armenian refugees at present still remaining in Asia (mandated territories), numbering 90,000, and settlement overseas.

For the convenience of the Assembly, these proposals will be separately summarised.

SETTLEMENT OF ARMENIAN REFUGEES IN SYRIA.

This problem has been considered by a Joint Armenian Sub-Committee of the Advisory Committee attached to the High Commission for Refugees.

The Joint Sub-Committee was set up in accordance with resolutions of the seventh ordinary session of the Assembly and of the Advisory Committee. Its Chairman is Dr. Nansen. Its Vice-Chairman is M. Albert Thomas, and its members include representatives of phil-Armenian societies in various countries. The Joint Sub-Committee works in close co-operation with the mandatory Power for Syria. It held its first meeting in November 1926.

At the request of the Joint Sub-Committee, Mr. T. F. Johnson, (Assistant High Commissioner for Refugees and Chief of the Refugee Service of the International Labour Office) went to Syria in December 1926. He reported that, out of the total of 90,000 Armenian refugees there, 40,000 were in camps and needing assistance, 12,000 of them in a most precarious situation, and the other 28,000 in casual employment only.

The High Commissioner reports that, since the beginning of 1927, considerable progress has been made to improve this state of things.

Land has been acquired and plans of houses approved to accommodate 2,500 urban refugees at a cost of £40,000. Measures have been taken to acquire land to settle some 3,500 agricultural and urban refugees. This second scheme is estimated to cost some £30,000 and is being carried through on funds already in the possession of the Joint Sub-Committee. The process is inevitably slow owing to difficulties of obtaining a clear title to land, &c., which will be familiar to those with experience of Near-Eastern land purchase. However, 20 families have already been settled between Tyre and Sidon, and land has been acquired for 500 more, who are now in process of settlement.

It was estimated that the sums expended would be repaid by the urban refugees in five yearly instalments, and within a period of seven or ten years by the agricultural settlers. The High Commissioner estimates, however, from evidences of energy and enterprise shown by the first settled groups of agriculturists, that the latter period will be much shortened. The repayments will be devoted to the settlement of further groups. The following contributions have so far been made to the revolving fund for this settlement work:—

	French frs.	£ Sterling.	Swiss frs.
Lebanon Government ..	3,000,000 approx.	25,000
High Commissioner for Refugees ...	.....	3,000
British United Armenian Committee ...	.....	5,000
Union Arménienne de Bienfaisance ...	.....	500
Anonymous ...	.....	1,000
Grant from Nansen Stamp Fund ...	.....	1,000
			(approx. 25,000)
Total (approximately)		... £35,500

The High Commissioner adds that it is hoped, by means of combined efforts in Europe and America, to raise within the next few months the sum of £120,000 required for settlement of the most indigent refugees in Syria.

Overseas Settlement of Refugees.

Proposals were received by the International Labour Office from five States, all in South America (namely, Argentine, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Peru), to receive refugee immigrants, for land settlement, to the number of 30,000, in return for an advance of some £20 per head from the revolving fund.

Absence of funds to take advantage of these offers was the motive that prompted the High Commissioner to carry out a suggestion made by the Inter-Governmental Conference of 1926, namely, that interested Governments should be invited to make special advances to the revolving fund for overseas settlement.

A second Inter-Governmental Conference was accordingly convened and met in Geneva on 15th and 16th June 1927. M. Veverka (Czecho-Slovakia) was in the Chair.

The Conference (1) approved in principle of overseas settlement for Russian and Armenian refugees.

2. It further expressed the wish that Governments which have not yet ratified the Supplementary Arrangement of 1926 should do so.

3. A third representative of the Conference requested "such Governments as are disposed to facilitate the migration to overseas countries of refugees on their territories to inform the High Commissioner as soon as possible, and in any case before the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly of the League," of the number of refugees whose settlement they would be preapred to finance, and the number of unemployed refugees, according to their occupations, on their territories desirous of emigrating.

4. The Conference requested the Council of the League of Nations to afford all possible facilities for the transfer of Armenian refugees to Soviet Armenia.

5. The Conference requested the High Commissioner to communicate these resolutions to the Council and the Assembly for their consideration.

It will be seen from the report of the Conference that the German Government has already promised a first contribution of 100,000 R. Mks. to the revolving fund, and that the Czecho-Slovak Polish and Serb-Croat-Slovene delegates to the Conference intimated the willingness in principle of their Governments to participate in this scheme either by means of advances, financial guarantees or the issue of the Nansen stamps on their territories.

The report concludes:

"It is hoped that the Governments at present expending large sums for the maintenance of these refugees will find it possible to adopt one of the means recommended by the Inter-Governmental Conference for advancing the necessary [emigration] expenses.

"There is every reason to believe that, by the application of the recommendations of the Conference, the interested Governments will be enabled to eliminate from their budgets in a comparatively short space of time the heavy annual expenditure of £2,000,000 at present incurred by them for the maintenance of unemployed refugees without involving themselves in any absolute capital expenditure."

It will, of course, be understood that the schemes described here cover only a proportion of the refugees and, consequently, of the liability.

It will be seen that the essence of the whole matter is to be found in the third resolution of the Conference of 1927, namely, that the Governments interested should supply the High Commissioner as soon as possible with detailed proposals as to the number of refugees whose settlement they would be prepared to finance, etc. Time is all-important, as the problem tends irrevocably to become, in some cases, more difficult to solve. Moreover, the opportunities now open for settlement will not remain open indefinitely.

The devoted efforts of the High Commissioner and his staff have now resulted in the formulation of definite plans for the settlement of a substantial proportion of these unfortunate people. The execution of these plans depends on the co-operation of the various Governments concerned. Unless that co-operation is undertaken forthwith, it would seem not only unreasonable but unjust to expect from the Refugee Service that it should continue to assume responsibility for the liquidation of this problem.*

ANNEXURE.

EXTENSION TO OTHER ANALOGOUS CATEGORIES OF REFUGEES.

On page 6 of his report the High Commissioner refers to the case of analogous refugees and summarises the proceedings of the Assembly and the Council. He states that he has, in conformity with a resolution of the Council of 10th December 1926, submitted a memorandum on the subject.

The memorandum forms Annexure 5 of his report.

It defines the term "analogous categories," and enumerates these, as far as known, under various heads, pages 163-164.

---

* It should be noted that, since the discussion and adoption of this report by the Fifth Committee, the Council, at its meeting on 15th September, had before it the propsoals of the Conference of 1927 with regard to overseas settlement. The Council passed no resolution but approved a report, as follows:—

"The Council has taken note of the memorandum of the High Commissioner for Refugees relating to the recommendations of the Inter-Governmental Conference, which examined certain proposals for the settlement of refugees in overseas countries. The Council has also taken note of the Minutes of that Conference.

"As, upon the motion of the Norwegian Government, the questions involved are also included in the Supplementary Agenda of the Assembly, the Council will doubtless prefer to await the discussions in the Assembly before taking any resolution on this subject."

† This question had not been considered by the Council when the present report was adopted. The Council, however, considered the question on 15th September and adopted the following resolution:—

"The Council:

"Requests the High Commissioner for Refugees to take the necessary steps to institute an enquiry into the applications submitted to him by Syrian, Assyro-Chaldean, Montenegrin and Turkish refugees mentioned in the annexure to his report and to submit to the Council, at a later date, proposals with regard to these refugees; and

"Decides to postpone to its December session consideration of the action which might be taken on appeals from the other classes of persons mentioned in the annexure to the High Commissioner's report, to enable Governments to submit any observations or information on this subject which they may consider desirable."

ANNEXURE XXIX.—Report of the Sixth Committee on the Slavery Convention. (Rapporteur: Sir E. Hilton Young, British Empire.)

The Sixth Committee considered the information which was communicated to the League of Nations by different Governments concerning the progressive abolition of slavery and conditions analogous thereto in accordance with the resolution adopted by the Assembly on 25th September 1926. This information consisted of documents from the Abyssinian Government, the British Government, the Government of India, the Portuguese Government and the Government of the Sudan, and of supplementary statements made orally to the Committee by representatives of India and of the British Empire.

The delegates of certain States pointed out that, in view of the fact that their legislation was already in conformity with the provisions of the Convention and had moreover been communicated to the Assembly in the report of 1924 on slavery, and considering that the progress anticipated as a result of the Convention will in certain respects be slow although steady, the parties to this Convention should not be expected to furnish every year a lengthy report on the subject.

Attention was drawn to a recent decision of the Full Court of Sierra Leone which suddenly revealed a regrettable deficiency in the legislation of that Protectorate respecting slavery. The Committee was glad to learn that an Ordinance was being urgently prepared to remedy this unfortunate hiatus in the legislation of the Protectorate and that a special session of the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone had been convened to bring the Ordinance into effect.

Hope was expressed that the Abyssinian Government would see its way to furnish the League with information on the steps taken to abolish slavery and the slave trade in Abyssinia, and on the measure of the success which these steps have in fact achieved. A report was received on 15th September 1927 from the Abyssinan Government giving certain lists of persons freed from slavery and of persons convicted of offences against the slavery laws of that country.

The Committee noted that although the Slavery Convention had been opened to the participation of 56 Members of the League and 14 other States, it had up to the present time been ratified or acceded to by only 14 countries: Australia, Austria, British Empire, Bulgaria, Denmark, Haiti, Hungary, India, Latvia, New Zealand, Portugal, Spain, the Sudan and the Union of South Africa. It was happy to note, however, the statements made by the delegates of Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Netherlands and Norway in the Sixth Committee that they hoped their Governments would soon be in a position to ratify the Convention.

ANNEXURE XXX.—Report of the Sixth Committee on Mandates. (Rapporteur: Dr. Nansen, Norway.)

The Sixth Committee considered a series of questions concerning the execution of the provisions of Article 22 of the Covenant during the past year and was assisted in its deliberations by the Vice-Chairman of the Permanent Mandates Commission, M. Van Rees.

The Committee was happy to note that, on 8th September, 1927, the Council had approved a report by the Netherlands representative which explained in general terms the nature of the legal relationship between the mandatory Powers and the territories under their mandate, and it feels that the Assembly might well congratulate the Council on having thus so satisfactorily cleared up an important point which has in the past given rise to certain complications of a novel character.

No attempt was made to deal separately with the situation in the different territories under mandate, but certain features of the state of affairs in Iraq and Syria were called to the attention of the Committee, and it was glad to note the statement made by the representative of New Zealand concerning the special steps which the Government of that country is taking in order to provide the Mandates Commission with full information in regard to the recent difficulties in Western Samoa.

It is hoped that the mandatory Powers and the Mandates Commission will continue to give special attention to the great importance of having in the mandated territories officials who have had the special training required for their responsible work as the executors on the spot of the provisions of the Covenant and the Mandates, and who appreciate the necessity for a sympathetic study of the psychology of the inhabitants, as well as of native administration and native welfare, in order that these provisions may be most effectively fulfilled.

The increase in the liquor traffic, in certain territories under B mandate, is of such proportions that the Committee believes the Assembly should bring this matter formally to the attention of the Council with the hope that the Mandates Commission, in collaboration with the mandatory Powers, will continue to give serious consideration during the forthcoming year to the causes of this increase, and to the steps which have been taken to deal with the problem. After the success achieved by the Commission in defining the more important terms concerning the liquor traffic which are used in the B and C Mandates and in the Convention of St. Germain of 10th September 1919, one may confidently expect some positive achievement in dealing with this larger problem, to which the Council called special attention in 1922, and which is mentioned in the Covenant itself.

The Committee noted with interest that the rules with regard to petitions which have been set up by the Council and by the Mandates Commission are being condified by the latter in order that in future, the various steps in the procedure which is followed in connection with such documents may be clearer to those concerned.

The Sixth Committee was impressed with the value of the minutes of the meetings of the Mandates Commission, which are circulated to the Members of the League and are put on sale. They have become increasingly important as the Administrators of the different territories have appeared more and more frequently before the Commission, and the Sixth Committee considers that such valuable material on the administration of mandated territories should be made known as widely as possible to all those who are interested in such problems. (For text of Resolution adopted, see page 142.)

ANNEXURE XXXI —Report of the Sixth Committee on the work of the Conference of Press Experts. (Rapporteur: M. de Brouckère, Belgium.)

The Sixth Committee has carefully examined the work of the Conference of Press Experts, which was held at Geneva from 24th to 29th August last, and the deliberations of the Council at its meeting on 2nd September.

When, in 1925, the Assembly, at its fifth ordinary session, at the instance of the Chilian delegation, adopted a resolution to convene a Conference of Press Experts, it was at first perhaps not thought that 23 months would elapse before the Conference could meet.

Close examination of the question revealed its great complexity. The 1925 resolution requested the Conference to seek means of ensuring the more rapid and less costly transmission of Press news with a view to reducing risks of international misunderstanding. The difficulty consisted in dealing with this problem, which, though undoubtedly a technical one, has nevertheless an important moral bearing, and at the same time carefully avoiding any interference to which the Press, always jealous of its independence, might justly have taken exception.

It was, therefore, necessary to allow the Press itself, in preliminary work which extended over nearly two years, to decide in the first place as to the advisability of holding this Conference, then to settle the agenda, and finally to examine it in three preliminary meetings, which included heads of agencies journalists and directors of Press bureaux. This careful preparation enable the Conference to work rapidly and to complete its task in less than a week.

The Conference met at Geneva on 24th August. Sixty-three delegates, 35 technical advisers and 20 assessors coming from 38 States, Members and non-Members of the League, and representing telegraphic agencies, newspapers, international organisations of journalists and official press bureaux took part in the work. Lord Burnham the distinguished President of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association of Great Britain, who was asked by the Council to preside over the Conference, could say in his closing speech without exaggeration that the Conference constituted the most important Press meeting which had ever been held.

It is noteworthy that this Conference, which brought together such varying interests and so many different countries, should on almost every question have adopted unanimous resolutions. These resolutions, therefore, are of great value.

The Assembly should not only convey its thanks to the representatives of the Press who accomplished this work, but also express a desire that the Governments should direct their competent authorities to examine the suggested improvements in the most sympathetic spirit.

In taking note of these resolutions, the Council grouped them into two categories: on the one hand, those which, in the opinion of the Conference itself, require further thorough technical study, and, on the other, those which can now be submitted to the Governments.

The Council has already referred to the Organisation for Communications and Transit the resolutions of the first class, and, in particular, those dealing with telegraphic and telephonic rates, telegrams in cypher, improvement of communications, the conveyance of newspapers, and identity cards for journalists. We express the hope that the technical enquiries necessary for giving effect to these resolutions will be carried through promptly and with the assistance of special committees if required.

Consideration of the resolutions of the second class which deal with the question of subscriptions to newspapers through the post, the ownership of Press news, various professional facilities for journalists and censorship in time of peace, has been postponed by the Council till its session in December next. These resolutions can thus be carefully studied by the Members of the Council before the latter decides whether these questions should be submitted to the Governments. Your Sixth Committee considers that you might recommend that Council to undertake this investigation with the sympathetic attention which these resolutions deserve.

Finally, the Council, giving effect to two other resolutions of the Conference, has stated under what circumstances it would be prepared to lend the assistance of the League organisations in the study of Press problems. The Assembly will doubtless wish to associate itself with this decision.

In conclusion, I have the honour to propose the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted, see page 142.)

APPENDIX III.

Certain Speeches delivered by Members of the Indian Delegation at the Eighth Assembly.

ANNEXURE I.—Report of a Speech by Sir Ramaswami Ayyar in the Assembly on the 6th September, 1927.

The plenary meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations furnishes an opportunity for passing in review the multiform activities of the organisation and its constituent and allied bodies. As one of the delegates representing India at this Assembly, it is both my duty and my privilege to contribute to this discussion, and in doing so I shall naturally confine myself to those aspects of the work which have a close bearing on my country and her problems, and shall only pause for a moment to congratulate the Secretary-General and the heads of the various departments of the Secretariat of the League upon the comprehensiveness and thoroughness with which they have discharged their duties and the lucidity that characterises the numerous documents produced as the result of their co-ordinated activities.

The position of India vis-à-vis the other members of the League and the entire organisation itself is unique. By her signature to the Treaty of Versailles and the Covenant, and by her continuous and faithful adhesion to the principles of the organisation, she has enrolled herself in the fraternity of those who have undertaken, and are pledged to the work of establishment the principles and understandings of international co-operation as the actual rule of conduct among Governments.

Monsieur Villegas in his most suggestive discourse described the work of the technical organisation of the League as possessing a universal character, as removing sources of conflict and forging the links joining nations one to the other by their true interests, and as establishing valuable relations amongst all the Members, including the most distant. It is the path of wisdom to realise this aspect of the League's work and not to fix our attention exclusively on certain spectacular political happenings, and, in the language again of Monsieur Villegas, to see in them "the whole of international life."

It is true that many of the problems coming up for discussion before the League are essentially European in character and do not concern India in the narrower sense. But he would be both petty in outlook and short-sighted in policy who does not see in most of the activities of the League a genuine effort to promote that active and practical comradeship without which world-opinion cannot be adequately formed. The formation of such a world-opinion and the impact of that opinion on the several nations must have a profound and an enduring effect on India and on the world from many points of view; and therefore, it is not inappropriate that India should have taken, as indeed she has taken, a lively interest in the deliberations of the League and its constituent bodies. The quest of the ideal is one of the strongest characteristics of my race. As an Indian, therefore, I feel at home in an Assembly which expects, and indeed assumes, the existence of idealism in its members. But our idealism to be of value must be not merely our inspiration, but must be applied in a practical way to the complicated issues of national and local character which come before us. There is no question that the necessity of establishing on an international basis social, commercial and diplomatic standards is being more generally recognised. We are striving for the creation of a new mental attitude which has been called the international mind and which can only be evolved by the widening of our interests. Though I recognise and appreciate the value to our country of its participation in the League, yet I hope also that the presence of delegates from India and from other far-off lands such as China, Japan and the South American Republics may be of value to the League itself by preserving that character of universality which was the intention of its founders. It is just the fact that delegates from all parts of the world are not merely present but take an active part in the League's business which has kept it true to its name of a League of Nations, and has saved it from degenerating into a concert of Powers. It is not without legitimate pride that I point out that India has been fulfilling in real practice the ideals of which I have spoken and in particular has shown her loyalty to them by legislation in pursuance of the Washington Labour Conventions. This is not perhaps directly the work of this Assembly but of an organisation which forms part of the League as a whole. As an instance of a subject in which India is less directly interested, but in which nevertheless she has accepted and fulfilled obligations involved in her membership of the League, I may mention that my country has signed and ratified the Convention and Statute on the freedom of transit; the Convention and Statute on the regime of navigable waterways of an international concern and its additional protocol; and the Convention and Statute on the international regime of railways and of maritime ports. It is also noteworthy that India took part in the Conference on Communications and Transit, which has, in accordance with the spirit underlying the work of the League, made provision for the collection and exchange of such general information on communications and transit as is likely to improve international co-operation. A similar remark may be made as to India's attitude with regard to many other questions connected with the activities of the League and its ancillary bodies. I may specially refer to the agreement concerning the suppression of the manufacture of and the internal trade in and use of prepared opium that has just now become operative. India's recent work in connection with the implementing of the Slavery Convention is also, I venture to say, a notable example of her adherence to the League ideals. It is a matter for sincere congratulation that day by day the authorities of the League are, in their turn, realising the importance and the world-reactions of Indian and of Eastern problems. This is illustrated by the work on opium, the work of the Health Section, including the Singapore Bureau, the interchange of medical officers, researches into problems of malaria and sleeping sickness, and many other inquiries recently undertaken at the instance of the League authorities. But it is not easy for my countrymen, remote as they are and absorbed with the problems of their own land, to realise in a concrete way how the ideals of the League are being converted into practice; and the development of the international attitude depends not merely on enlightenment but upon the establishment of more extensive and solid relations between the practical work of the League and the actual interests of my country. We shall welcome anything which will tend to develop the contact between India and the League and the appreciation of the League in India, believing that such development cannot fail to be of mutual benefit.

By reason of her political and geographical position, which is sui generis, India is only indirectly though much interested in some of the great political problems, such as disarmanent, which have been sought to be tackled by the League, and it is therefore through the technical organisations of the League that its ideals can be most adequately realised in the non-European countries. I propose, therefore, to deal specially with two departments of the League's work in which India's interest is direct and conspicuous. The work of the Health Organisation in Eastern countries was specially considered in 1926, and the Assembly drew particular attention to the universality of the work done by the Organisation. The Annual Report of the Health Organisation for the year 1926 discloses that weekly and monthly epidemiological report are published giving information of great importance transmitted from the Eastern Bureau at Singapore dealing with 122 ports served by the Bureau. These data are made available to the world very early and in a collated form. They furnish a valuable index of the trend of epidemic diseases. India is represented on the Eastern Bureau at Singapore, and the Bureau's work has continued to expand and has acquired a new significance from the duties lately entrusted to it as part of the machinery for carrying out the International Sanitary Convention. The Government of India has recently agreed to broadcast a résumé of the Bureau's weekly bulletin concerning the prevalence of epidemic diseases. It is in the highest interests of India that she should make every effort to prevent and check the spread of infection and epidemics, and realising such obligations to the full she welcomes heartily the co-operation of the Health Organisation of the League. Such co-operation should, I submit, be regarded as one of the methods by which the League may manifest its interest in the problems of those parts of the world which are distant from the centre of its activities. Is it, therefore, too much to ask that such an obligation should be one of the first charges on the energies and finances of the League as a whole?

Very important work in connection with malaria has been done by the Malaria Commission, and there is no doubt that such researches as relate to the importance of river deltas from the point of view of endemic malaria will be of the most vital importance to India. I hope that the Malaria Commission may be able to find an opportunity of visiting India. Special courses in malaria organised by the Health Organisation of the League of Nations were held last year at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. It is also to be hoped that the programme of interchanges of Public Health personnel will include British India, as is indeed suggested in the Annual Health Report. It is important to remember in this connection that a study tour for medical officers belonging to administrations in Asia and Australasia will take place in India in January 1928. The contemplated visits of these officers to the various provinces in India will, there is no question, be of great value not only to the countries concerned but to India itself. This event will moreover be a noticeable instance of a visible interest in India taken by the League authorities, and this will be the first occasion on which a League organisation will come into direct personal contact with India and with the Indian administration, and we confidently anticipate valuable results not only from the technical but also from the wider aspects.

Perhaps, however, the work in which India was most interested in connection with the recent activities of the League were the discussions, deliberations and the conclusions of the International Economic Conference held at Geneva in May 1927, wherein the Indian delegates, I may venture to assert, played a useful and honourable part. As one of the Assembly resolutions truly pointed out, economic peace will largely contribute to security amongst the nations, and the difficulties standing in the way of the revival of general prosperity are largely economic in character. The meeting of the Assembly of the League last year realised that the economic situation of the world called more imperiously than ever for international co-operation and it hoped that the Economic Conference would be summoned as soon as possible. That Conference comprised among the participants both members and non-members of the League of Nations, and there were also present economic experts and publicists from the United States, the Soviet Republics, Egypt and Turkey, and delegates from such organisations as the International Chamber of Commerce. It is needless for me to recount the results of the work of that Conference, as that task has been performed in a masterly fashion by Monsieur Theunis in his closing speech made on the 23rd May 1927. He emphasised that the Conference must be regarded not as an isolated event, but as a stage in the continuous work of international collaboration in the economic sphere. The Conference worked through three Committees, one on Commerce, a second on Industry, and a third on Agriculture. In the report of the Committee on Commerce, it is rightly stressed that in spite of the variety of questions raised, the diversity of theories and the legitimate national sentiments of all those who took part in the discussions, one important and extremely encouraging fact has emerged, namely, the unanimous desire of the members of the Conference that it should mark the beginning of a new era during which international commence will successfully overcome all obstacles in its path that unduly hamper it and resume that general upward movement which is at once a sign of the world's economic health and the necessary condition for the development of civilisation. While considering the economic problems in their international bearings, the Conference did not ignore the importance of national considerations, some of which are, in the language of Monsieur Theunis, social and political rather than economic in character. The Indian delegates presented a document to the Conference pointing out the principal features of the position of the world as envisaged from the point of view of India. In that document it was made clear that, speaking generally, India depends more on internal than on external markets; but, at the same time, it was emphasised that in India as in Europe many industries endured their share of the prevailing depression, especially inasmuch as the reactions of economic factors are now a days very rapid and complete. The fiscal policy of India and the need for its adoption with a view to the development of nascent industries built up with local labour and capital to meet local needs, were then outlined, and it was rightly asserted that the protective policy of India aims at the development of such manufactures only as possess natural advantages and will one day be able to meet world competition. The gap that has occurred in India between the price of raw materials and the price of manufactured goods, as well as the fluctuations of price, were also mentioned. This was done by way of stressing the elementary truth that India stood to gain from an improvement of the world's economic situation.

In dealing with the question of customs tariffs, Sir Campbell Rhodes, who sat on the Economic Committee, dissipated all possible misunderstandings of the Indian position by pointing out that the Indian tariff before the war was very low and has been augmented both to obtain revenue and in a very limited number of cases for the purpose of protection, but that her economic and tariff policy can well stand a comparison with that of many other countries, and the Indian delegation proved that although the proportionate increase was great the actual level of Indian tariffs was not open to just criticism. The position of India with reference to agriculture was specially recognised by the appointment of Dr. Hyder as one of the Vice-Chairmen of the Committee on Agriculture. It has to be borne in mind that the Economic Conference has definitely realised the importance of agriculture as entitled to an equal footing with industry and commerce and as being the occupation of the majority of workers throughout the world. It was the object of the Indian delegation to concentrate attention on measures which will diminish the cost of production and eliminate the unnecessary links in the chain connecting the producer with the consumer. The resolution that was finally passed provides that care should be taken to assist in the maintenance of an equitable balance between industry and agriculture. In the memorandum submitted by the Indian delegates India's position as a producer of raw materials was specifically adverted to and the necessity advocated of (1) a reduction of agricultural cost, (2) the improvement, by organising research and popular education side by side, in the quality and quantity of crops, and (3) the spread of the co-operative movement in all its forms as designed to produce efficiency at all stages of agricultural work up to the stage of sales and as insuring to producers their just share in the market value of the crops.

One of the most important subjects in the agenda of the League is the consideration of the Report of the Economic Conference, and it is to be fervently hoped that the attitude of the League towards the deliberations and resolutions of that Conference will be such as will demonstrate its abiding interest in the problems and conditions of countries far removed from the scene of European economic life, but forming nevertheless component and, by no means, insignificant factors in the sum-total of world economy. It must be realised that the recommendations and suggestions of the Conference have yet to be considered by the Indian legislatures and the Indian Executive Government, but it can be said with some confidence that these recommendations are in general conformity with the principles already followed in India; and, where there are differences they are susceptible of adjustment and compromise. In the matter of agriculture, it is generally known that there is an important Royal Commission dealing with the topic of Indian agriculture and allied problems, and we in India are awaiting the report of that Commission, which will no doubt engage the early attention of our local and central Governments. In their consideration of the matter they will undoubtedly derive immense assistance from the resolutions of the most authoritative gathering of economic experts that has ever been summoned.

The subjects dealt with above, and others, such as the Slavery Convention, the difficulty caused by the diversity of laws in the matter of bills of exchange, and the progressive codification of international law, are amongst the topics which are of special interest to my country. But as has already been state, it is not only with a view to the elucidation of these specific problems, but in the conviction that all the different but convergent activities of the League, political, technical, and humanitarian, are slow but sure advances in the direction of organised co-operation amongst the peoples of the earth, that India is not only content but is most willing and anxious to take part in the work of the League.

ANNEXURE II.—Report of a Speech by Lord Lytton in the Assembly on the 20th September 1927.

I have asked leave to say a few words on the Report of the Fifth Committee which has just been submitted to the Assembly by Mme. Lauset Jahn—the Rapporteur—not with the object of criticising or dissenting from any of its recommendations, but rather with the object of underlining, as it were, some of its passages which seem to me to be in danger of escaping the attention which their importance deserves.

The fact that the Fifth Committee has accepted with unanimity and practically without discussion the Report of the Advisory Committee on Opium and other Dangerous Drugs may be evidence of the efficiency and the businesslike methods of that Committee. But it has also had the effect of preventing the recommendations of the Advisory Committee from receiving that measure of publicity which they deserve when we remember the gravity of the problems with which the Report deals and their immense importance for every country in the world.

The Report of the Fifth Committee which has just been presented to us is a short one, and, though it contains some sentences of grave import, there is a risk, I think, that it may be adopted by the Assembly without a full knowledge of the obligations upon those who accept it. I speak as the delegate of a country that knows this evil, whose people are very much alive to its gravity and very much in earnest in their determination to put an end to it. This is one of those questions in regard to which India looks to the League of Nations for help.

I am anxious, if possible, that the members of this Assembly should not accept the Report of the Fifth Committee without realising two things which that Report brings out very clearly. First, the enormous extent of the continued illicit traffic in drugs; and secondly, the grave human importance of that trade. Though I am anxious that those two things should be realised, I speak not on behalf of India alone, and I address myself not merely to my fellow delegates as representatives of their respective countries. I address you as men and women. It is to your human sympathies that I appeal rather than to your national interests.

The passage I want first of all to emphasise is that contained in the second paragraph of the Report of the Fifth Committee, where we are reminded that the Advisory Committee has stated that a broad examination of the reports received from the various Governments shows that an illicit traffic, which can only be fairly characterised as enormous, still exists. Do you realise what those words mean? Let me endeavour to make them clear.

The country which I represent—India—imports a small amount of cocaine for medical purposes, but the illicit traffic in cocaine in India is stated by the Advisory Committee, in its Report, to be as much as 40 times the legitimate imports—and this, too, in spite of the existence of vigorous and efficient administrative efforts to suppress it. In para. 16 of its Report the Advisory Committee describes this illicit traffic from ascertained statistical facts. You will see from that paragraph that opium is there mentioned by the ton, and heroin and morphine by thousands of ounces. Single consignments of over 4,000 ounces (125 kilogrammes) of morphia and 8,000 ounces (230 kilogrammes) of heroin are cited.

Now, it is possible that these figures—mere statistics—scarcely convey to you their full human import. Let me try and translate them into terms of human misery. Let me ask you whether you have ever known from personal knowledge a single case of a man or woman who has fallen a victim to this drug evil? If you have, you need only recall that one case to your memory, and you will realise that the figures I have mentioned, translated into terms of single injections, run into millions. One consignment alone mentioned by the Committee would amount to over three million injections. Think what that means.

If you have not personally had this experience, let me ask you to think of some friend, someone who is dear to you, some man or woman in the prime of life with full physical efficiency with a sound and clear mind, and then consider what would happen to such a person in little more than a few months if once he or she fell a victim to this drug habit. That might well happen quite innocently, perhaps in the first instance merely because a search was made for relief from some temporary physical or mental distress. The process may be slow, but the end is certain, and that end is in every case absolute destruction, physical, mental and moral, the lowest depths of degradation to which the human being can sink.

Now with that picture in your mind, with your friend rotted to death before your eyes, what, I ask you, would be your feelings if you were told that there are individuals who make their living out of this trade, that there are Governments which have it in their power to put an end to it and yet allow it to continue? Yet this is what the Committee tells us. It tells us in words so restrained that their full import might well be lost upon those who read them. Let me quote the passage which follows the statistics which I have just mentioned. It is contained in para. 17 of the Committee's Report:—

"These (say the Committe) are striking and alarming facts. They show the appalling extent and the very widespread ramifications of this illicit traffic. They are the more striking, and probably the more alarming, when it is recalled that 54 nations—and among them are included all the manufacturing and distributing countries—are parties to the Hague Convention, which includes, as an obligation accepted by all the signatories, a provision to the following effect:— 'The Contracting Powers shall enact pharmacy laws or regulations to limit exclusively to medical and legitimate purposes the manufacture, sale and use of morphine and cocaine and their respective salts . . . They shall co-operate with one another to prevent the use of these drugs for any other purpose.'"

This brings me to the second point which I wish to emphasise in the Report which has been submitted to us. I have spoken of the extent of this illicit traffic. Let me remind you of the obligations under which we already are in this matter. This is not one of those human problems which cannot be solved, which must be tolerated because no remedy for it can be found. On the contrary, it is one which all the nations of the world have recognised, have already discussed among themselves and have pledged themselves to remove. It is one of the evils of the world which this League of Nations of ours is competent to remedy. Europe, America and the Far East are being deluged with these deadly narcotic drugs. The individual efforts of no single nation can stem the tide, but the combination of all nations can produce that result. By such a combination the tide can be stemmed swiftly and effectively. The States Members of this League are already bound by an International Convention to do this, but it still remains for public opinion in several countries to insist on the fulfilment of that obligation.

This is the task which you are now asked to undertake. The Advisory Committee has expressed the opinion that a "clear statement as to the enormous volume and wide extent of the illicit traffic, and a vivid appreciation of what that traffic means in terms of human suffering, misery and degradation, are essential to progress and reform."

This Committee has told us the facts. It has tried to give us this appreciation. The remedy is now in our own hands.

This brings me to my last point. With this knowledge in our minds—knowledge of the extent of the traffic, knowledge of the obligations already undertaken to put an end to it—what remains to be done?

There are probably not more than 30 factories in the world in which these drugs are manufactured. If the Governments concerned would put a ring-fence round them so as to prevent the products from those factories ever getting into the illicit markets, the evils would cease and this reproach to our civilisation would be removed.

The Advisory Committee has urged, with all the insistence at its command, that the most valuable single step which can be taken at present to control this huge illicit traffic, with all its disastrous moral, social and physical consequences, with all its vast train of suffering, misery, degradation and vice, is to secure the enforcement of the Geneva Convention of 1925 at the earliest possible moment. The Fifth Committee has accepted that recommendation and has proposed its acceptance to the Assembly. I have intervened for the sole purpose of emphasising that report and of appealing to you, in your individual as well as in your representative capacity, to accept the advice and to help to put it into operation.

I do not suggest that the Convention of 1925 is perfect; that it exhausts the subject; that there may not be some provisions in it which will give rise to difficulties when they come to be put into operation. But this Convention represents the furthest point yet reached by the collective wisdom of the nations of the world. It represents the most effective weapon which has been put into our hands for controlling this evil. If we use it, it may be possible to put a stop to the evil within a single year. If when you return to those countries which you represent here, you will tell your countrymen what you have learnt from the Report before you, if you will tell them what those facts mean and secure a public opinion in every country which will insist upon action, it will be possible for Mme. Larsen Jahn, when she comes to this tribune next year, to say, in those memorable words used by M. Briand last year in another connection, "It is finished."

But if we are indifferent, if we neglect to use this weapon which has been put into our hands, we cannot escape our responsibility for the loss of life which it was in our power to save.

ANNEXURE III.—Report of a Speech by Sir Ramaswami Ayyar in the Assembly on the 20th September 1927.

I have been charged with the task of presenting to the Assembly the report of the Second Committee on the work of the Health Organisation. The report is before you and, as has been already ruled, I do not propose to read it. But I think, however, it would be useful and in many ways helpful if I placed before you certain considerations which tend to demonstrate the universality of the work of the Health Organisation and the comprehensiveness of its labours. Allow me to divide the work of the Health Organisation into two categories, one particular and the other general.

Dealing with the second aspect first, let me point out that the Health Organisation in regard to the new Health Committee that has been appointed has made a notable departure in appointing expert assessors from such countries as Australia and Japan, this procedure proving, if proof were wanted, that the League is anxious and willing to enlist support from every quarter of the globe and to invite co-operation from everywhere for the work it has to do.

The other aspect of the general work upon which I desire to dwell for a few minutes is the system of the interchange of health personnel which has been inaugurated. Persons occupied in the elucidation and solution of health problems from every country have the opportunity to meet and discuss questions of common import which interest other nations, in fact all nations alike. This procedure has already been fruitful of great results. Speaking specially for my country, I welcome a departure which will be of inestimable value to such distant countries as mine.

The third general aspect of which I wish to speak for a moment is the system of international health courses, of studies and instruction in health problems, which are given to people of all countries in selected centres. These are the general aspects of the work; I now come to the particular.

The Health Organisation, through its various bodies, has carried out valuable work in the matter of sleeping sickness—the research into which is of special benefit to vast tracts in Africa; it has conducted a conference on rabies and this also will be of benefit to many lands. There are, however, two matters of which I wish to speak with special emphasis. I will first refer to the Malaria Inquiry. Malaria is an almost universal disease; it has been pointed out that even in a country like England, where it is generally supposed that malaria does not exist, this disease has not been entirely eradicated; but to a country like mine research into malaria is a matter of the greatest import. The Malaria Commission has visited Europe, Syria, and Palestine, and hopes to visit India. On behalf of the Government of India a very cordial invitation has been extended to the members of that Commission, and I trust that their useful work will be continued in India to the mutual benefit of that country and the rest of the world.

I now pass to the Singapore Bureau. I attach special importance to the work of that Bureau, not only because it is efficacious in giving early intimation of the spread of epidemics and serving as a centre for research, but because it is a visible link between the life of the tropics, the life of the Orient and the life of the League, as forming an invaluable liaison between the work done at Geneva and that carried out in far-off countries.

The Singapore Bureau is not only valuable in itself, it is expressive of the ideals of the League, the ideals of universal service, of universal work.

These problems do not loom very large in the public eye, but they are as significant as the ostensibly greater problems which are the topics of journalistic encounters and debates. It is not least through such organisations as the Committee for Communications and Transit, the Economic Conference, the Health Committee, and the League's other technical organisations that world unity, for which the League stands, will be achieved.

With your permission, therefore, Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen, I will move on behalf of the Second Committee the following Resolution. (For text of Resolution adopted by the Assembly, see page 117.)

ANNEXURE IV.—Report of a Speech made by Sir Fazl-i-Husain in the Second Committee on the 13th September 1927.

As regards the subject of International Intellectual Co-operation and the various items that fall under it. I wish to make a few suggestions which may be of practical utility to India. In your note it is stated under the head "National Committee on Intellectual Co-operation" that the League was informed "in 1925 that the Inter-University Board (Secretary, Mr. N. S. Subba Rao, Mysore) wished to be recognised as an institution with which the Intellectual Co-operation Committee might correspond with a view to the formation of a national committee in India. No information has been received as to whether any further action has been taken in the matter."

I feel that India can derive a great deal of benefit from the various notes and reports that are prepared by the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation at Paris and by its Governing Body, and lastly, by the International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation at Geneva and by its Sub-Committees. I was Minister for Education in the Punjab for five years, 1921-5, and I have to state that during that period neither I myself nor my secretary, the Director of Public Instruction, knew the details of the intellectual activities of that League and its various Committees. It should be remembered that in India, Education being transferred Provincial subject, there should be a central agency to disseminate this information to the various Provinces and so ensure that there should be no difficulty in the Education Commissioner of the Government of India doing this work. Formerly there used to be an All-India Advisory Board of Education, but it came under the Retrenchment Acts, and I believe the Education Board of the Government of India has from time to time considered the advisability of reviving it. I am of the opinion that it is necessary to establish an organisation in India for the Provinces, on the lines of the League of Nations for different nations. Sometimes it has been urged that if the Government of India undertook the constitution of such a body the Provinces might resent it and the Education Ministers might not join it. I believe this view is not correct. A national Committee of Intellectual Co-operation of Ministers and Directors of Public Instruction in each Province, Vice-Chancellors of each University, and two other representatives from each Province to be nominated by the Government of India, will afford a very suitable body to deal with the Intellectual Co-operation work of the League of Nations, who will in their turn forward the literature to the various Provinces and various Universities. In this way India will be able to keep in touch with the Intellectual Co-operation movement of the League of Nations to the very great benefit of herself, and thus be in a position to contribute to the success of the League of Nations Intellectual Co-operation movement at Geneva.

The parallel for my suggestion is to be found in the Department of Public Health. The Director of Public Health to the Government of India works on the Health Organisation of the League of Nations, attends its meetings and performs certain other functions. In the case of Intellectual Co-operation the work is such that it should be shared by a much larger number of people than in the case of the Health Organisation.

What I have suggested above is not a cut-and-dried scheme, but only the result of what has struck me, when studying this case for the Second Committee.

It is impossible to over-estimate the importance of the work of international intellectual co-operation in the scheme of League of Nations operations, for it seems to me that the disarmament of ideas, that is to say, breaking the barriers of prejudice, is no less important than the much talked of disarmament in the matter of cruisers. Some go so far as to urge that the disarmament of ideas must precede any effectual disarmament, whether naval or military. This much, however, is certain, that the removal of prejudice in the domain of ideas offers wide scope of work for all who want to serve the best interests of humanity.

The work already done by the International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation and the Institute at Paris is very considerable, and I have much pleasure in paying my tribute of appreciation and admiration to those who have served on the Committee of the Institute. Verily, quite a large number of schemes undertaken and completed are such as benefit all members of the League of Nations; in fact, their benefit extends to non-members as well, as, for example, the bibliography of economic sciences, of biological sciences; again, there is work which is of undoubted importance; but it seems to me that it is possible that the work may gain in its character of nationality and universality if kindred fields of work in the Orient were also included within its scope. For example, the study of Græco-Roman antiquities I have no doubt can be made not only more interesting but also more comprehensive by the study of Indian and Mesopotamian archæology being added to it. Recent discoveries at Harappa and Mohanjadaro are believed to bring to light fairly well developed ancient civilisations of 300 years or so before Christ. I may be permitted, Sir, to emphasise that the word "international" should have as broad an interpretation as possible. I know it is not limited in any way to the nations of Europe, but to demonstrate its comprehensiveness as including nations of the Orient it is essential, in the interests of the League itself, that the evolution of international culture should afford every scope for the culture of the East to contribute as good a share to it as it can possibly do. It is possible that countries situated far away from the home of the League—Geneva—may run the risk of being overlooked, and therefore I trust the Director of the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation at Paris and our own International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation will bear in mind that it is for them to see that the texture of the international culture of the future is such wherein the best in the Orient also is reflected.

ANNEXURE V.—Report of a Speech by Sir Fazl-i-Husain in the Second Committee on Friday, 16th September 1927.

I have much pleasure in rising to congratulate the Economic Committee on a good year's work well done. No doubt the World Economic Conference, very naturally, overshadowed the activities of the Economic Committee, and many subjects which would have ordinarily come within the scope of the Economic Committee were taken over by the World Economic Conference. Still a good deal of work has been accomplished by the Economic Committee and a good many subjects have been handled and I have no doubt will be approaching completion next year. Before I begin to pass this work under review with reference to India I should like to associate myself with those who have preceded me in congratulating the Rapporteur, who has placed in our hands an excellent summary of the activities of the Economic Committee, and made a résumé, for the use of those who have not had time to go through the proceedings of the Economic Committee so lucid and so full, and yet so brief.

The first item that I will take up is the International Conference for the abolition of import and export prohibitions and restrictions. In principle, no one can quarrel with the object in view. India welcomes this International Conference because international conferences lead to mutual understanding which follows a frank statement of the case. These conferences also afford equal opportunities of being heard and understood. In this case the objective of the Conference is the removal of artificial barriers in the way of international trade India has already decided to be represented on this Conference by Sir Atul Chatterjee, the High Commissioner for India. I have no doubt the Conference will go into this matter thoroughly, but I may as well mention here that India is prepared to incur responsibilities which others are ready to incur to the same extent and simultaneously. It is on reciprocity we rely, and a country in the position of India should not be expected to incur responsibilities which are not equally and simultaneously accepted by others.

The next question is the unification of customs nomenclature, and I wish the Committee every success in arriving at satisfactory results. The draft report, para. 2, last paragraph, deals with the treatment of "foreign nationals and enterprises," and says: "It will be remembered that in 1923 and 1925 the Committee agreed upon two series of principles with regard to the treatment of foreigners in fiscal and legal matters," and closes with this sentence: "I am glad to state that the Economic Committee is already engaged in drawing up preparatory documents for this Conference." I notice that this subject is not covered by the resolution given at the end of this Report, and which resolution is to be submitted to the Assembly for adoption. On enquiry from the Rapporteur I find that it is a case of oversight, and he has no objection to this subject being added to para. 2 of the resolution, and therefore I venture to place before the Committee an amendment of para. 2 of the resolution to this effect: Omit "and" from the last but one line of para. 2 of the resolution, and add at the end "and to the treatment of foreign nationals and enterprises." This is, as I have already said, only a matter of oversight.

The third point which I take up is "the simplification of customs formalities." The International Convention signed at Geneva in 1923 was not ratified by India then, but I am glad to say that India has seen its way to ratify that Convention, and I have no doubt will be glad to see what further advance the Economic Committee can make in carrying this problem to a still more satisfactory conclusion in the future. When on the matter of agreeing to international Conventions, I may as well deal with the important question of the Protocol of 1923 on arbitration clauses. I need not go in detail into the reasons for India not agreeing to this measure in the past, as now I have been authorised to state that, in view of the fact that the English law has been amended so as to make a stay of proceedings in cases of agreement to which the Protocol applies possible, it is likely that the objection to accession to the Protocol hitherto entertained may be withdrawn. The question of adherence is under reconsideration and will be decided along with the question relating to the supplementary draft protocol on the foreign arbitral awards. As the Committee is aware, an expert Sub-Committee is sitting on the supplementary draft protocol, and the Indian delegate Sir Edward Chamier, is assisting the Sub-Committee as an expert.

I will now refer to the subject of unification of economic statistics. There can be no two opinions as to the desirability of unification, and yet I feel the Council did well in calling for concrete suggestions. Economic statistics are not always available and to make them available is, at times, so costly that some States may not feel justified in incurring the requisite expenditure.

I heartily welcome the Statistical Year Book, which is bound to be of great use to all nations. I am prepared to extend my welcome to the progressive assimilation of laws relating to bills of exchange and cheques, though the work is limited to Europe, for I have no doubt that when that is accomplished the work of progressive assimilation will go beyond the confines of Europe. And I am sure the importance of economic barometers cannot be over-estimated, but it should be remembered that the economic barometer, unlike the physical barometer, is one that does not register differently for different climes or heights. The world has recently been so much reduced in size by scientific discoveries and inventions that the fall of the barometer relating to cotton in Egypt is bound to affect the markets in India, America and Europe. Therefore, the economic barometer of the future is to be one which is extremely sensitive and delicate, and serves for all countries and all climes and all continents. It is the one work which, in its universality, is the ideal work for the League to accomplish, and I wish the experts engaged in it every success.

ANNEXURE VI.—Report of a Speech by Sir Fazl-i-Husain in the Second Committee on Friday, 16th September 1927.

I did not intervene at an earlier stage of the debate because I was not sure whether I could usefully take any part in it. The discussion at one time grew very exciting. The point of order, viz., whether this Committee had jurisdiction to discuss the question before it, and for the matter of that whether the League of Nations itself had jurisdiction to discuss this matter, was being hotly discussed, and at the same time several issues relevant to the proposal, as well as irrelevant to the proposal, were also agitating the speakers. The Hon. Member from Australia raised the question of order in an acute form, urging that the consideration of the proposal constituted breach of the Covenant which was sacred to the League. At that stage I mentioned, Sir (President), to you that I was going to raise a point of order whether any matter other than the question of jurisdiction is open to discussion. At that stage the Hon. Member from Australia modified his position, and later it was stated that the subject was within the jurisdiction of the Committee as well as the League, and therefore the real question for discussion remained—should the proposal of Finland and others be agreed to or not? The representative of Britain, Major Elliot, summed up the position lucidly, holding that the subject is within our jurisdiction, but the current of opinion expressed in the Committee is not in favour of the proposal, and the proposal did not secure general support. With that conclusion I am inclined to agree, but before I say anything on this question I wish, Sir, to make the position of India clear in the matter of alcoholism.

Indian opinion in the matter of alcoholism is very strong, and it is decidedly against alcoholism. As the Committee is no doubt aware, since the Reformed Government has been operating, excise is a Provincial transferred subject, which means that Provincial Legislatures have full control of excise excepting such part as relates to foreign liquor, which is still a Central subject. Most of the Provinces have passed excise legislation on the lines of giving local option to local bodies. Indian opinion is very strongly for controlling liquor, and a very strong body of public opinion is in favour of prohibition. All the Ministries in charge of excise in different Provinces are in principle for prohibition, and have not actually adopted prohibition chiefly because it is in India so very difficult to enforce it. I may mention that the difficulties of enforcing prohibition in India are greater than in other countries because there exist natural facilities for illicit distillation of liquor to an extent that does not exist elsewhere, and regulations cannot be enforced in remote and sparsely populated areas where palms and kikr grow wild and very primitive arrangements for illicit distillation are sufficient. I have no doubt in course of time Indian public men will try to create strong public opinion in favour of prohibition, and it will then be possible for the Ministers to lead on to the goal which they have set before themselves of enforcing prohibition. It is much to be regretted that the evil of alcoholism follows in the footsteps of industrialism on a large scale. An industrial centre somehow or other falls a victim to this evil. Whether this is so in all the countries of the West I do not know, but in the case of India such is the general impression left in my mind by looking at various industrial centres. Alcoholism is treated in India as an evil, but it is not yet a serious problem there, and Provincial Governments are trying to keep it under strict control, and on the whole it may be said that the Indian excise laws are satisfactory and there is a very clear tendency at keeping the consumption low.

As regards the international question which is before the Committee for decision now, I am hardly competent to express an opinion. It is a matter which needs intimate knowledge of the conditions prevailing in the Continent of Europe, and various delegations from European countries, accredited agents of their Governments, are in the best position to decide this matter. This much, however, I can say, that from the discussion to which I have had the honour of listening this afternoon, it appears to me that there is a strong body of opinion emanating from important countries and nations which does not look with favour upon the proposals, and I find myself in absolute agreement with Major Elliot, the representative of Britain, in saying, in legal language, that the proposers of this proposal have failed to make out a case. May I venture to tell the proposers and supporters of the motion that, even from their statement of the case, as embodied in Article 19, it appears that the League is already engaged in attending to the evil of alcoholism in various departments of its activities; that apparently there is a machinery in existence to grapple with the problems connected with alcoholism, and in view of the opinions expressed in this Committee this afternoon, will it not be wise on their part not to pursue this proposal any further, and wait for a more appropriate occasion? For I feel that by pushing the proposal this afternoon they will not achieve the object they have in view, and if the proposal is actually pushed to a division the result may be prejudicial to the cause they have at heart, and also not reflect much credit on the Committee as a whole.

ANNEXURE VII.—Résumé of a Speech by Sir Ramaswami Ayyar in the Second Committee on the 16th September 1927.

Speaking on Friday, the 16th September, on the work of the Organisation for Communications and Transit, Sir Ramaswami Ayyar, after referring to the fact that he was the Indian delegate to the Third General Conference on Communications and Transit, added that he was therefore in a peculiarly advantageous position for the purpose of appreciating the importance and necessity of the work of the Conference. The labours of that Conference marked a great advance towards the mutual understanding of national and international problems. It was noteworthy that at that Conference there participated not only the States who are Members of the League, but such countries as the United States of America and Egypt, and in addition it secured the co-operation of great and powerful organisations like the International Chamber of Commerce. Its work fell into three categories, one being devoted to the perfecting of the actual structure and procedue of the Conference. This work, though important, and designed to facilitate work and to give both stability and elasticity to the organisation, was not really of paramount interest to distant countries like his own. The question of identity certificates was also among the matters discussed and it gave rise to many complicated considerations. A compromise had been arrived at which avoided many of the objections adduced during the debate; objections that were political in character, and in regard to which certain nations felt very strongly. Here again, in the form in which the resolution has finally emerged, the problem is essentially one affecting Europe, and more particularly Central Europe, and he would not therefore dwell on this matter. What he desired specially to say with reference to the work of the Conference related to the collection and exchange of information on Communications. For the discussion of this matter the Government of the United States of America had specially sent an important delegation. Various speakers at the Conference adverted to the need of improving the technical liaison between this organisation and the administrations of all, and especially non-European, countries. It was also argued that the Advisory and Technical Committee had felt the absolute necessity of acquiring continuous and essential information on the position as regards communications throughout the world. It is gratifying that the Conference dispelled all fears which were entertained at one time that a large special organisation was going to be created, charged with new work. It was laid down that no new work was proposed to be undertaken, and that such statistics and information as were to be collected would not involve any extra burden upon Governments or extra expense, as the data that were required were those contained in publications already periodically issued by the several Governments of the world. So long as it was made clear that no special bureau was recommended, and so long also as the collection and co-ordination of public statistics was the main feature of the work, he had not only no objection to advance but welcomed the collection of information on the one aspect of economic life which is perhaps the most international of all, namely, transport.

ANNEXURE VIII.—Report of a Speech by Lord Lytton in the Second Committee, 17th September 1927.

Many countries have expressed their willingness to accept the recommendations of the World Economic Conference and have undertaken to adopt them en bloc. The Indian Delegation is not yet in a position to do this, and it is necessary that I should explain the reasons. India supports unhesitatingly the general principle that the economic policy of States should be directed towards the peace and prosperity of the world, and would welcome the elimination of any economic factors calculated to cause friction or misunderstanding. So much I can say, not only on behalf of the Government of India, but on behalf of public opinion throughout India. There is, I believe, no important recommendation of the Conference which is inconsistent with the past or present economic policy of India, and India on the whole stands to gain by the adoption throughout the world of the general recommendations of the Conference. If on minor points there are any inconsistencies the Government of India will seek to reconcile them.

On behalf of the Government of India I can also say that their future policy is likely to be equally in conformity with the recommendations of the Economic Conference. If I do not go further and accept these recommendations without reserve it is not because the Government of India contemplate any action in the future which is inconsistent with them, but merely because they have not yet had an opportunity of ascertaining public opinion in India on the subject, and do not wish to commit the Indian peoples to agreement with a document which they have not yet studied. The Report of the Conference has only just been published, and though it has been examined by the Government it has not yet been studied or discussed by the general public. It would be most unwise and would militate against ultimate acceptance if the Indian delegates were to commit their countrymen to agreement with the Report in advance of such discussion. Fiscal autonomy is a new experience for India, and it is natural that her people, having so recently secured in practice a large measure of freedom in fiscal matters, should guard it somewhat jealously. In exercise of that freedom India has recently adopted a policy of discriminating protection, but this policy does not conflict at all with the principles of the Conference Report. It is generally accepted in India that any industry which seeks protection must prove itself to be one which has natural advantages and is capable of eventually meeting world competition unaided. In these circumstances the protection recommended by the Indian Tariff Board is always understood to be for a limited number of years only. The Report of the Economic Conference will receive full publicity in India, and there is little doubt that when it has been fully examined and discussed it will be found to be in general conformity with Indian economic policy. If the decision is left to the Indian people unhampered by any premature commitments here, I have no doubt that the spirit in which the Conference performed its task will be appreciated in India and that its recommendations will be generally accepted. But it would be wiser not to assume this agreement prematurely. I feel sure that my colleagues on this Committee will appreciate the delicacy of the situation and will rest satisfied with the statement that I have made.

I have thought it necessary as head of the delegation to make this general statement of policy, but I desire to retain the freedom of my delegation to deal in detail with other matters raised in the Report should they desire to do so at a later stage.

ANNEXURE IX.—Report of a Speech by Sir Fazl-i-Husain in the Second Committee on the 20th September 1927.

During the course of this debate delegates from different countries which have benefited from the beneficent activities of the Finance Committee and the League have offered their thanks for the valuable help received by them, and mention has also been made of most valuable help in financial reconstruction having been rendered to Austria, Hungary, Greece, the Municipality of Danzig, Bulgaria and Estonia. Loans were successfully floated because the credit and prestige of the League were behind the Governments, and, as pointed out in the Report, a lower rate was obtained than would have been the case if they had been contracted by the respective Governments without such patronage. There can be no doubt as to the value of the work in the matter of stabilising the currency and effecting budget equilibrium. It should, however, be remembered that such help is help given to individual countries, and in countries outside Europe there is a section of the public that, when criticising the League of Nations, emphasises that its beneficent work is limited to a certain tract in Europe, and therefore, the work is not international in the larger sense of the term. This criticism has been so persistently made, and the fact that only those delegates who have come from the countries benefited generally speak in this debate, I feel called upon to meet this criticism. The League at its inception was criticised as a body of talkers with a view to showing that nothing practical was to be expected from that body, and these critics were mostly in Europe. Therefore it was essential for the League to repudiate this calumny and to demonstrate how effectively the League would deal with practical problems and how it could function and prove its practical utility. Hence I rejoice on that successful accomplishment of this work as it enables the League to establish its position, and I have no doubt that the work of the Financial Committee has enabled the League to consolidate its position, at all events in Europe. Moreover, I have no doubt that, if requests similar to those which had come from Austria, Hungary and other countries were to come from another continent, they would receive the same sympathetic consideration as was extended to the European countries.

I associate myself wth the British Delegation in appreciating the work done during the last year. It has been mostly financial reconstruction relating to Bulgaria, Greece and Estonia, but work of a more general nature was also undertaken, viz., double taxation and tax evasion. Final conclusions of experts in the shape of draft conventions have been circulated to various Governments and I have no doubt will be duly considered by them. A work of even more general nature, i.e., counterfeit currency, is in the hands of a special committee, and I wish that committee every success in dealing with it.

ANNEXURE X.—Résumé of a Speech by Sir Ramaswami Ayyar in the Second Committee on the 21st September 1927.

Sir Ramaswami Ayyar pointed out that, having been one of the members of the Drafting Committee, he realised the difficulties of reconciling various interests, but inasmuch as the delegate last year had mentioned the topic of the adequate representation of agricultural interests he felt it was his duty to put forward certain considerations relevant to the discussion. In the first place it must not be forgotten that in India the number of persons directly interested in agricutural operations, either as actual labourers or as peasant proprietors or large holders of land, is much more than 100 millions. He drew attention to the immensity of the figure, for the purpose of emphasising the great importance of agriculture to his country. It is worthy of remark that one of the great contributions of the Economic Conference to this part of the work was the instance on the importance of agriculture and its elevation to a place equal to that occupied by that of industry and commerce. Another feature peculiar to his country was that the agricultural worker, and indeed all agricultural interests, were unorganised and had not formed themselves into unions which were capable of looking after their own interests This remark is appropriate to a certain extent even to industrial workers, but was particularly applicable to Indian agriculture. Notwithstanding this difficulty, it was not impracticable, and indeed it was essential, that such immense interests should be adequately represented either on the Economic Committee or on the Preparatory Committee, or both, and represented so as to indicate not only the importance attributed to agricutural interests but to the special conditions of a distant Eastern country which plays a large part in the sum total of the agricutural activities of the world.

ANNEXURE XI.—Report of a Speech by Lord Lytton in the Third Committee on 16th September 1927.

I have no wish to prolong the general discussion which has already proceeded in this Committee for three days. On the contrary, if I intervene it is chiefly with the object of suggesting that the Committee might now proceed with the detailed examination of the subjects submitted to it. I have listened with great interest and attention to the speeches which have been made in the Assembly and in this Committee, and I would ask your permission, Mr. President, to say in a very few words how those speeches have been impressed one who is new to your debates.

The country which I represent here as the head of the Indian Delegation is less intimately concerned with the subject of your debates than others whose delegates have taken a prominent part in them. India depends for its defence in the main upon the British Fleet and on the soldarity of the British Empire. In that connection, therefore our interests are in the charge of the British Delegation. The army maintained in India for internal security or for the defence of its land frontiers has been considerably reduced in recent years. I should, however, point out that it is engaged in a task very different from that which you have in your minds when you speak in these rooms of war and, the alternatives to war. The majority of the Members of the League are nations which are actually at peace with their neighbours and whose armaments exist to deal with a contingency which they believe to be remote and which they hope will never arise. They send their members here every year to discuss whether, and, if so, how, these contingencies may be made even more remote or may be dealt with otherwise than by armaments, which, if not needed, become mere burdens on their finances which they can ill afford to maintain. India, on the contrary, has on her frontier tribes whose traditions, and instincts, and habits of life are those of war—not war as it is spoken of in our debates, as it is understood in the Covenant of the League, a resort to force as a final measure after all the resources of diplomacy have been exhausted, but war in a more primitive sense, war which is practised as an almost daily occupation, as a profession of brigandage. In dealing with such neighbours the securities which the League of Nations has to offer us can be of no value.

In the few words I have to address to you, therefore, I speak rather as a sincere believer in the value of the League of Nations to the world at large than as the delegate of a country which derives any special advantages from the security against war which it has to offer.

What has struck me, Gentlemen, in listening to these debates is the value which speaker after speaker has seemed to attach to the reaffirmation in some phrase or formula of principles which are already accepted by all the States Members—and not merely accepted as ideals, but which they have pledged themselves by treaty to put in practice should the need arise.

The Netherlands delegate has asked us to consider whether the time has not come to re-examine the principles of security, arbitration and disarmament, which were prominent features of the Protocol of 1924, but which he himself now admits are also features of the Covenant itself.

The Polish delegate has asked us to register a new declaration that a war of aggression is an international crime. I have no objection to his resolution, but as M. Scialoja has reminded us, this does not give us anything more than the Convenant; and I would ask, does not this reaffirmation of the fundamental principles of the Covenant without any new sanctions give ground for the criticism that we are nervous lest these principle should be forgotten if they are not constantly repeated?

The danger is not that our principles should be forgotten, but that they should come to be regarded as no more than formulæ, counsels of perfection, which belong to the region of ideals rather than to the practice of States, and that danger is increased rather than diminished by the mere repetition of these ideals. I hope therefore that this Committee will not content itself with merely accepting M. Sokal's proposal. I agree with M. Briand that once we have dreamed disarmament—and we have done more than that, we have promised it—we are bound to find some means of giving it practical effect. Gentlemen, it is the business of this Committee not merely to dream, not merely to reaffirm general principles, but to work out in a businesslike way their practical application in a world of realities.

Some of us are inclined to insist on the need for action, others on the difficulties of action. What matter? Both are helpful. If we are not convinced of the need, we shall not be at sufficient pains to overcome the difficulties. If we are not reminded of the difficulties and face them, we shall find that our measures will not stand the test of action when they come to be applied. You may feel that some of the speeches we have listened to are like adverse winds, whilst others are more favouring gales, but those who know how to sail a ship can advance by the aid of a head wind no less than with that of a wind astern. If you look out of these windows upon that lake which is ever before our eyes while we live in Geneva, you will see many little sailing boats floating like swans upon its blue water. Some are proceeding up the lake, some down, some are crossing from one side, some from the other, but it is the same wind which propels them all. So with our work, it is the public opinion of the world which is our motive force. Some currents may appear to be opposed to our wishes or aims. We cannot ignore them, we cannot go against them, but by tacking either to the right or to the left we may make even those currents serve to advance us further towards our goal.

On this Committee it is not a question of defining that goal, of stating new principles or of reaffirming those that have been already stated and agreed. What we have to do is conscientiously, laboriously, patiently, to discover and recommend the means by which those principles may be applied with the most advantage. By signing the Covenant of the League, the nations of the world have registered their determination to find and to use some means of settling international disputes other than war. The repetition in this room of that determination is mere waste of time. What we have to do is to advise how it may find practical effect. If one means proves abortive we must find another. If work of a whole session is found to have been ineffective because our recommendations have failed to find agreement among the nations which we represent, we must seek for means of securing greater agreement. If one conference on naval disarmament has failed we should rather explore the causes of its failure with faith than bewail the fact of its failure with despair. To improve if possible the machinery of arbitration to make that method of settling disputes more attractive to the nations of the world, to increase if possible the security which can be afforded to all nations against aggression from its neighbours—and so to make possible that progressive disarmament which every country desires for its well-being and development—that is the task of the League of Nations. To suggest practical means for the attainment of these aims is the task of this Committee, a task to which I hope it will now devote itself without further delay.

ANNEXURE XII.—Résumé of a Speech by Sir Ramaswami Ayyar in the Fourth Committee on 12th September 1927.

In the first place, after thanking Sir Edward Hilton Young for the kind references made by him to the Indian Delegation's Resolution last year, Sir Ramaswami Ayyar pointed out that the object of that Resolution was not exclusively to achieve economy in the administration of the League and the allied organisations. If the League is to function adequately so as to fulfil its objects thoroughly and attain those ideals of universality which have been referred to in the meetings of the Assembly, it has necessarily to be very circumspect so that no one group of activities absorbs the bulk of its finances, and so that all the countries of the world may benefit by the activities of the organisation. He then specifically referred to the International Health Organisation. He pointed out that it is possible that a large part of the expenses of the Singapore Bureau may become a charge on the League Health Budget in the future. He observed with satisfaction that for the year under consideration there was no intention of curtailing the activities of the Bureau, inasmuch as the proposed contribution for the Bureau is the same for 1928 as for 1927. Although India is not specially contributing to the expenses of the Bureau like some of the countries, still it must not be forgotten that the general contribution of India to the budget of the League is very heavy, and that the country is the sixth largest contributor to the revenue side of the budget. In these circumstances it is not unnatural that India should urge very strongly that the Singapore Bureau, which is the main organ of the League's activities in the east, should be put on a secure footing before new commitments are undertaken. He had heard with gratification that the Rockefeller contribution was likely to be renewed, but it is always well to be prepared for all contingencies, and having regard especially to the fact that it has been practically decided that the Health Budget should not exceed in the aggregate one million Swiss francs, he proposed that every effort should be made by the League authorities to see that the future of this very important branch of the League's work should not be jeopardised in any manner. He made these remarks not by way of attaching any blame to any officer, but merely as a rule of budget procedure to be followed not only in the matter of the Health Budget but in all other undertakings. He next quoted the Resolution of the Assembly of 1922 to the effect that expenditure incurred for special investigations in the special interests of one or more Members of the League should be met by those Members. He felt confident that this principle had been kept in view in the framing of the budget. He also referred to the participation by various Governments who are not Members of the League in Conferences held under the auspices of the League. He noted that the United States had made itself responsible for its share of the expenses of these Conferences, but he hoped that as a financial canon all States which participated in the activities of the League should be expected and called upon to pay their share. Lastly, he specially adverted to the Publication Department, and hoped that it would be reorganised and put on a strictly commercial basis He noticed that such a process had already been commenced, but he hoped that it would be expedited and that a rule would be made so that the publications of the League would pay their way. He was in favour of the appointment by the League of agents for the sale of its publications in India, and showed that there is absolutely no body of official persons who are charged with the task of popularising the activities and helping the sale of the publications of the League, so much so, that it was a matter of some difficulty in India to get hold of those publications except through the kind offices of the Legislative Department of the Government of India, which in turn did not possess a really adequate library of League literature.

ANNEXURE XIII.—Résumé of a Speech by Sir Ramaswami Ayyar in the Fourth Committee on the 17th September 1927.

Sir C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar emphasised that the report of the Sub-Committee was essentially a matter of compromise and adjustment. It could be clearly seen from the report that there were two currents of opinion. It had been suggested that it was possible that a tribunal of the kind proposed would not be as useful as the pursuit of the idea of conciliation, either by means of special safeguarding clauses in the contracts of the Secretariat or by other means. It was pointed out on the other side that in the matter of sanctions and as to the law applicable in each case there existed great difficulties to be overcome before the scheme could be successfully worked.

The fundamental problem was whether the employees of the League, who had no legal means of enforcing their rights, could best be protected by the establishment of such a tribunal or by some other means. The Sub-Committee had had to decide whether this tribunal would be useful and expedient.

After reading his report Sir Ramaswami Ayyar said that it was obvious that the report was a compromise. One of the principal elements in their decision had been what was termed in argument the psychological aspect. The League of Nations was an organisation which endeavoured to encourage arbitration in the international field, and it had been pointed out that its own employees had at present no tribunal where appropriate relief could be claimed regarding matters in controversy between them and the Secretary-General and higher authorities.

Sir Ramaswami Ayyar said that he understood that the Assembly was to adopt a provisional statute and in a separate resolution to lay down that this statute, setting up the framework of the Administrative Tribunal, should be subject to revision in 1931. He would have no objection to this.

ANNEXURE XIV.—Report of a Speech by H. H. the Maharaja of Kapurthala in the Sixth Committee on the 13th September 1927.

I am glad that we have an opportunity this year of devoting a short time to the consideration of what may, I suppose, be regarded as the most important single achievement of last year's Assembly, an achievement which, while it redounded generally to the credit of the League, owed much at the same time both in its inception and in its negotiation to a distinguished League figure whose absence we all personally regret this year. It is a measure which fulfils in the highest sense the League ideal of promoting the causes of humanity and civilisation

I have asked your permission to address the Committee primarily for the purpose of correcting a misunderstanding for which the Indian Delegation at last year's Assembly was inadvertently responsible. The leader of the Indian Delegation last year in his speech in the Assembly on the adoption of the Slavery Convention, referred to the Kingdom of Nepal, an independent State on the northern frontier, which had recently completed the liberation of nearly 60,000 slaves at a cost which, though considerable, was by no means heavy in relation to the work accomplished. He went on to say that this was a result on which the Kingdom of Nepal might be congratulated, and that it was clear evidence of the influence of the League in the East. It has since been pointed out, on behalf of the Maharaja of Nepal, that the intention to liberate slaves in Nepal was announced before the Nepalese authorities could have known that the League was taking the question of slavery in hand, and that accordingly the project for liberating these slaves had been conceived quite independently of the ventilation of the subject by the League of Nations. I make this statement in order that the Government of that State may receive all the credit to which they are legitimately entitled for their enlightened policy. The fact which I now bring to your notice is evidence of the spontaneous attention which Eastern rulers are now giving to matters of this character. Those Governments which may have a similar task to face might study with advantage the history and methods of slave liberation in Nepal.

Two events of importance have occurred in India during the last 12 months in connection with slavery. First His Highness the Khan of Kalat, a State in the extreme west of India, has, after many years of persistent effort, finally succeeded in abolishing all forms of private property in human beings. Secondly, the Government of Burma sent last winter two expeditions into the wild regions in the extreme east of India for the purpose of securing the liberation of slaves. These regions were partly included in the areas excluded from the Convention of last year. The expeditions were entirely successful, and slavery has now practically ceased in Burma. But the severe and dangerous nature of the operations is unhappily shown in the fact that one British Officer, one Indian non-commissioned officer and one Indian follower lost their lives as a result of a treacherous attack made by the inhabitants of a disaffected village. I need not say more about these two events, as full details have already been communicated to all Members of the League, except that in the case of Kalat we have very recently received fresh information of a tour which has been carried out to survey the effects of the measure of last year in that State. It is reported as a result of the tour that "it can now be safely said that slavery no longer exists in the Kalat State, that the transition from slavery to free labour has taken place without any undue disturbance of social or economic conditions and that there is no danger of a return to the former state."

I am naturally glad to be able to bring to your notice the success which has attended the notable reforms initiated and carried through by one of the Ruling Princes of India.
